

The Movement
&
The Moment

The Movement
&
The Moment

A Tale of Discovery

From:

ONE WHO LOVES YOU

Transmitted to:

RANDI L. JACOBS

Copyright 2016 © by Randi L. Jacobs
All rights reserved.

ISBN-13: 978-0-9700252-7-2

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016900180

First Edition, Second Printing
Printed in United States of America

Front Cover: Artist's view of Extrasolar Planet GJ1214b NASA, ESA and D. Aguilar STSci-PRC 12-13. Public Domain
Back Cover: Proxima Centauri, Alpha Centauri C NASA, ESA, K.Sahu and J. Anderson (STSci). H. Bond (STSci and Pennsylvania State University). M. Dominik (University of St. Andrews). Public Domain. This does not imply endorsement from NASA.

From:
One Who Loves You
Transmitted To:
Randi L. Jacobs,
The Listening Scribe

FOUNDATION FOR TRANSFORMATION
P.O. Box 1025
Washougal, WA 98671

listeningscribe@pacifier.com
sothatyoumayknow.com

Other So That You May Know Books

Awakening to Oneness

Teachings for Transformation

A New Beginning, Volume I

Teachings for Transformation

A New Beginning, Volume II

Teachings for Transformation

The Resurrected

A Tale of Joy

The Book of Changes

A Primer of Transformation

Available at www.sothatyoumayknow.com

Prologue

Randi, the name of this new work is The Movement & The Moment. What a funny name for a book! What a peculiar name and how can this ever be something that will catapult the minds and hearts of people there? A question that will be answered as we continue. This story will be mythical and will be an analogy or a metaphor, dear one, and yet it will certainly be interesting to others.

The story starts in a place...

Chapter 1

The story starts in a place that no one has ever visited nor heard of. It is a place of reality, though, and a place that exists in the known universe. It is a place where a race of beings reside that are similar to Earthlings, and who carry on their life in much the same way people/Earthlings do. Not without problems do these ones exist, and not without questions and searching. It is truly a place that moves to the moment of time, slowly evolving, to coming into the truth of whom and what these ones are. It is in this place, which we can call AnDramada, though that is not its real name, that we can open the door onto a scene filled with such questions and searching.

Here, AnDramadians have elevated the science of questions and searching to the level of top priority. It is the value that children are reared to and it is the motivation for life there.

The universities are formed around big questions, and all who choose to attend, focus their studies on adding more knowledge to the big question that university has as its focus. For example, in the northern part of AnDramada, the central problem or question is Are we alone in the universe? The schools, colleges and higher institutions of learning focus all their attention on this.

As focused as this may seem, eons of time have not scientifically proven the existence of life elsewhere and so the question remains. The topic has occupied these beings for centuries and truly remains the mystery on everyone's mind.

Some philosophers say that if the problem were solved, the question answered, the AnDramadians would have trouble finding meaning, for what would the Northerns focus on then? So entrenched is this question in the minds and hearts of the Northerns, that they hold the question more dear—possibly more dear—than the answer.

So glimmers of possibilities that life exists elsewhere are looked at askance, and though bright Northern children receive prizes for their work, only the Elders are given respect in true validation of efforts made. Some progress must be made, or the citizens of the land would not continue. So sets the scene for the story, and so sets the framework our characters are in.

On the minds of two young people, around twenty in human years, is this ongoing question. They have been to the observatory that night and have seen movement in a galaxy near by. AnNoon and RaYell have been together for a year, and have found that they harmonize, blend and synthesize their thoughts and feelings well. Their commitment to ‘The Quest,’ as it is called, has united them in activity and meaning. Earnestly and with passion, the two have united in what could be called a bond of obedience to curiosity and to fervent exploration. The Elders have sanctified this bond and those who raised them delight in this dedicated couple.

This day, AnNoon wonders if what he saw was real. Countless sightings of movements in the heavens have been reported and yet the Elders have not been enthusiastic. AnNoon and RaYell have tension in their bodies as they discuss whether to tell the Elders about this sighting. For though evidence mounts, the reaction to this is not always predictable and often reports are ignored. It was reported more than once that an overzealous searcher went missing after stirring the masses with his joyous report of sightings.

As bodily needs such as food and clothing, shelter and all the other necessities of life on AnDramada need to be provided, those who don't make the grade as scientists, Questers, are put to work providing these needs. The Elders decide. Yes, there is a class system on AnDramada, and the underclass strives to make it to the Quester class. The promise of movement to the Quester class is given, and occasionally a Provider can leave his manual labor and gain entrance to the Quester class.

So many strive for this, and many work their whole lives to be given the chance to quest. The Elders decide. RaYell and AnNoon have close friends in their class, and also a few in the Provider class. ChoZen, who showed bright promise as a Quester, was moved to the Provider class when the Elders found he had secretly sent a message through telepathy—what many disregard and criticize as nonscientific, as illusion—to a point of light which had appeared in the night sky.

ChoZen, who had mastered much of astrophysics, had a curious and deep desire to turn inward, to look at how mind works, had been labeled heretical, as this was not the 'question.' And indeed, had been put into the fields, digging and planting the tubers that were essential to the AnDramadian's diet.

All day he toiled, but not complaining, for his mind was busy focusing on the inner workings, the joy of the stillness of his mind. How he wanted to shout out to others, there is more going on—there is more to us—we have a great place to study—it's not out there—it's inside! ChoZen, who held RaYell and AnNoon as closest friends, was waiting for a time to talk with his friends and tell them how wonderful 'looking inward' can be.

There was to be a festival soon, as the season had turned colder, and crimson and gold light fell on the ground. The tubers were large now and needed to be dug and stored.

Always, the Questers and the Providers mingled during this time of year, and dedication to ‘The Quest,’ through singing and dancing, was mixed with celebratory eating and drinking. It was a joyous time with much searching of the stars and planets, the myriad galaxies, and the large ball that shone over AnDramada, called the Org. The Org, crimson now that the Tuber Festival was there, was beautiful beyond words, and the sight of it stirred the Questers to a frenzy, as they dedicated themselves to their quest.

The Elders now were watching ChoZen, and had put certain ones as informers there to report back to them if ChoZen talked of this thing called telepathy. For it was the Elders who ascertained the worthiness of methods involved in ‘The Quest.’ So serious was the violation of this rule, that banishment to a faraway place called DaMada—a prison island of sorts—was the outcome. ChoZen did not know of the informers, and felt that his movement down to the Provider status was the end of it.

Little did he know that his dearest friends had been sworn into the role of informers, and little did they know that they would be informing on ChoZen. So we are brought to a point where loyalty to mission, to ‘The Quest,’ could result in betrayal. We are brought to the point where RaYell and AnNoon will face a dear friend and must choose.

ChoZen longs to tell his friends about telepathy and the world within. He has discovered that Mind is truly the substance, the invisible substance, of trans-communication. He has come to know that the best way to answer the age old question ‘Are we alone in the universe?’ is not by looking outward but by turning inward and asking. For the joining with everything happens here. ChoZen has received inner messages from One who has identified himself as ChoZen's guide and who has substantiated to ChoZen that what he is experiencing is absolutely real.

Quietly and patiently, inner guidance has replaced the dogma of his early indoctrination of the importance of the obedience to the Elders, and to the Quester mindset, with a new understanding, a new awareness, and a new expansion of possibility.

So it is with eagerness that ChoZen runs down the path that festival evening to his dear friends. Circling together, the three hold hands and laughing, as is the custom when greeting close friends on AnDramada.

Now they race to the creek, laying down in the tall cool grass by the water's edge. Laughing and looking at the Org, they are happy. RaYell and AnNoon begin the automatic chant to 'The Quest.' But ChoZen is silent. RaYell and AnNoon stop and listen—all is still but the faint sound of festivities in the distance. Now is the time, ChoZen tells himself, now is the time to tell them.

He begins to share what he has discovered. He unwraps the gift slowly, telling each revelation, each new knowing, and the availability of a wonderful guide to each and every one. He then encourages his friends to try it, to go within and learn of the truth, "Just let the Quester thing go for a while and trust that there is something more there," he urges.

RaYell focuses on the Org, the crimson light pouring down. Her training tells her that she is hearing blasphemy. She has sworn to the Elders that she will tell if she heard talk like this. She knows that her words will certainly ban ChoZen to DaMada, never to be seen again. She also knows that AnNoon won't tell, for he won't betray a friend.

Now RaYell is faced with a choice. She pushes it aside thinking, I will focus on this tomorrow. Tonight, let the joy be felt, the friendship be continued.

As the three return to the food and the festivities, each has experienced something that will usher in change. Now the three separate and return to their dwellings, alone with the thought of what they have heard and talked about, what they know of each other, and what choices they must make. AnNoon lets RaYell know that he intends to keep the information quiet—that he will not tell the Elders and jeopardize his dear friend’s existence.

“RaYell, you won’t tell, will you?”

“AnNoon, we swore to tell the Elders, we swore—how can you expect me to disregard that AnNoon, how?”

“Just let it go from your mind—you can do it—just forget it!”

Now RaYell turns away from AnNoon and goes into her room. Here she can think and decide what she must do. Here she will not be influenced by AnNoon and his pressuring. Quietly, she closes her eyes, perplexed and haunted by her own integrity which will not let her forget and her love of ChoZen, a friend, so dear. What should she do, what should she do?

Chapter 2

Soon the choice must be made, for the report to the Elders must be made before nightfall. A delay would look like RaYell is in sympathy and would certainly cause demotion to the Provider status.

How can she not tell, for the consequences are formidable to a small woman used to the luxury of scientific status on AnDramada. Working in the fields or in the Provider's camps would be a comedown of magnitude for RaYell. She silently cries out in anguish at the choice facing her. "What should I do? What should I do?"

AnNoon is in the food preparation area getting their morning meal prepared. The sound of food cooking brings nausea to her, as she is wracked by what's to come this day. A truth told—a friend gone. Slowly, she dresses and grooms herself for the day. Now she looks in the reflective window and sees herself—ashamed at what she must do and angry that she is caught in this worst of dilemmas. Worst of all, AnNoon will be punished for his nondisclosure, and will likely be placed in the Provider class, or worse, banned also. Now her love will be gone, her best friend gone, her life torn apart.

But ChoZen had chosen to go outside of accepted methods, outside the rules he knew so well, she reasons. He brought it on himself! He brought it on himself!

AnNoon calls out, "RaYell, I hope you thought about what I said last night—forget that you heard anything—no one will ever know—just forget it!"

RaYell, not wanting to confront AnNoon, slips out the back way and heads to the tall grasses, waving in the wind. The grasses have been a favorite refuge for her, taller than she, thick and soft, they had provided a place to go as a child, whenever she needed to be alone to think, without the pressure of others. She finds a soft place, lays down with the comfort of the Org bathing her in its light. She thinks back to what ChoZen was saying last night. His words haunt her as she hears him saying, “It’s wonderful, there is someone there for you inside—you have a guide inside—someone who loves you—who will help you know what to do.”

There was a sincerity in his voice, an honesty that she knew he was telling her what he knew from his own experience. She believed him—that was the real problem—she believed him! RaYell quickly decided to go and talk to AnNoon about this and see if he thought what ChoZen said was true. She valued his opinion mightily and was one of the things that had attracted him to her. AnNoon would help her with this.

Now the morning light filled her eyes and blinking from the brightness, she saw a tall figure on the path ahead of her. It was one of the Elders dressed in the long, dark, hooded robe that was the hallmark of ordination to Elderhood. JuStonian turned and saw her there, and waited for her to walk beside him. “RaYell, was not the festival wonderful last night? Have you ever felt more happiness, RaYell? Is there anything you would tell me about last evening, RaYell?”

The moment had arrived—the point of no return was there—before she could even decide—there it was. Now the words came out unhesitatingly, “No sir, other than the festival was wonderful beyond words. I’ll see you later at the Ceremonial this evening. I must go find AnNoon.”

She had lied! Without a moment’s hesitation, she had lied! Strangely, the guilt that she thought would come was not there. Instead, she felt a union with AnNoon and ChoZen and a new found strength to look at things a new way. Running home, she ran into AnNoon's arms telling him what had happened. Now the bond of love was strong and AnNoon felt warmth throughout his body as the two embraced.

But the need to tell ChoZen of what had occurred, of their induction as informers, and that RaYell had not betrayed him, was on their minds as they headed out the door to the Ceremonial that evening.

The Ceremonial, always held the second night of the Tuber Festival, was intended to further the motivation of the Northerns to search the heavens for signs of life. The vows of commitment to 'The Quest' were given by all the new inductees to the Quester class and those few who were moving up from the Provider class. The Elders always demanded that the memorization of the mission statement start at the age of four years, so the little children of both classes would study this together. They would recite this and be held accountable for knowing it from that time forth. The evening would end up outside around the fire, and all would enjoy the lovely drink from the tubers, and would dance into the evening as the sparks flew, wafting into the AnDramadian sky.

The Ceremonial always held a surprise, for there would be one who would be chosen as a citizen of promise. This Quester would be given an assignment, specifically designed by the Elders, to look at new strategies for exploring the heavens. This was a great honor and those citizens chosen were headed for eventual ordination to Elderhood. The person chosen usually was someone older who had earned the right to this great commission.

Many names had been bantered about, and many thought that SigWald would be the one. He was most diligent in his efforts and was trustworthy. He was older and had proven himself many times. So when the name was announced, many were surprised, for it was not SigWald at all, it was AnNoon! The Elders said that the promise of AnNoon's intelligence and his great curiosity were the reasons he was chosen. His appointment to this position filled RaYell's heart with pride, for she shared the enthusiasm of the Elders and knew he was a great choice. AnNoon was astonished and took the honor graciously without any hesitation.

Now AnNoon and RaYell were greeted and praised wherever they went, and many wished them well, as AnNoon became famous throughout northern AnDramada. ChoZen, from his position as a Provider, was not privy to much that would occur to his friends and was held as one on the sidelines there. But ChoZen was not held on the sidelines of their friendship and the three still remained close.

In the whirlwind of activity, and the movement into a place of honor, RaYell and AnNoon forgot about the incident by the creek, and forgot that they had heard ChoZen saying heretical things. ChoZen never knew that his friends were sworn to be informers, and they never told him that they had not betrayed him. So the incident was forgotten and quickly moved into the past as the three were now involved in different things—each involved in his or her own new life changes.

ChoZen now had begun a personal experiment of his own. Quietly and without telling anyone, he began a series of telepathic messages directed at the galaxy to the east, and to a particular point in that galaxy. Here he had seen movement, had seen evidence of deliberate and intentional movement, which seemed to respond to his telepathic transmittal.

But being trained as a scientist, he now wanted to repeat the process over many nights and document what he saw in a journal that he kept in his room. Without the use of the compositors, which were the tools of the Questers, ChoZen patiently hand wrote all that he saw. Then he would comment on the findings and ask for input from his guide what was meant. Then he would write that all down and take the next step given him. This process was producing phenomenal results and the verification of trans-communication was certain. The lights he saw were responding!

To hold in such wonderful news was almost impossible for ChoZen, for the age old question was answered. “We’re not alone! We’re not alone!” he told himself, circling in the air as he jumped with delight. Who could he tell—how could he let the news out? It was in consultation with inner guidance that ChoZen was told to be patient and to hold the joy to himself for a while—that the circumstances needed to be right in order for the impact of this to be accepted. So ChoZen continued his trans-communication, both to his new friends in the eastern inner galaxy and to his dear guide inside, who was always there for him.

AnNoon had also been given a new technique for searching the heavens. This involved using the high intensity beam which could propel light deep into space. The Elders had suggested he develop some sort of pattern of on/off signal to see if any light would respond.

Now AnNoon spent many nights in the observatory and he, also, thought he saw a response. The Elders, however, were quick to point out the response was too random and that it could not be from life, but rather was caused by stellar interference and space dust. Time and time again this happened.

AnNoon now knew that his efforts would be thwarted, and that any progress would only be recognized by arbitrary and fickle Elders bent on maintaining the question and rigid in accepting new information. His respect for them had now turned into simple tolerance, but he knew that disdain and revolt were hovering close by. His love of RaYell and his joy in the news that they would be having a child kept him tethered to the difficult situation he found himself in.

Chapter 3

On AnDramada, children are reared in groups, and those born within one full turning of the Org through the seasons are reared together. The Quester and the Provider children are raised in community schools, all learning the role they play, and all learning the dedication to 'The Quest.' Parental love is there, but the children are raised, first and foremost, to be citizens of AnDramada.

The Provider children are given responsibilities that include tending to the needs of the Quester children, and the Questers understand this to be their right. All the children are given what they need though, and all the children are held as valuable to AnDramada.

RaYell was looking forward to the birth of their child and knew that this infant would have a good life with a celebrated father and with status certain as long as they followed the rules/guidelines of Questerhood. And so, information was carefully screened, and only that which furthered the needs of the Northerns was allowed to be taught to the children.

Occasionally, a child would rebel and would show outright aversion to what was taught. These children were placed in a special school and given added instruction. Some children never did become what could be called good and faithful AnDramadians. They were called Isolates.

Always, these children were watched for heretical thoughts and actions. Parents were dismayed if their child showed such tendencies and seldom talked about it. From One who has been a child like this I can tell you that these children experienced the pain of isolation and endured loneliness.

RaYell soon observed that her little boy was different from the others. For he did not seem to want to join in with the others, nor repeat the mission statement that the others so earnestly voiced. At three, little JoHan seemed to want to explore by himself. He preferred to be outside in the fields and always pointed toward the Org. He particularly loved the night sky and would ask a hundred questions of his mother and father.

“Who lives there? When can we see them?” he would ask, “When will they visit us?” RaYell would explain that this is the question all are searching for, but that no one knows yet, for sure, if others are there.

“This is what Father does, JoHan, tries to find out.”

“I know they’re there, Mother, I know.”

RaYell would dismiss this comment and would say, “Someday we’ll all find out, JoHan, but we must focus on ‘The Quest’ to find them, focus on ‘The Quest.’”

After these outbursts, RaYell and AnNoon would talk about their child and quietly disturbed, they would wonder what his life would be like.

AnNoon now felt that something was wrong with the way things worked there on AnDramada. His work at the observatory yielded no recognized merit but he was praised for his persistence and commitment. But though many found this to be enough, AnNoon felt empty inside, stalled and thwarted—and inwardly angry.

It was at a time when he had been going through a long dry period without much going on that he thought about his old friend ChoZen, and longed to talk with him again. The idea of turning inward for answers as ChoZen had proclaimed haunted him and he longed to talk again with ChoZen.

Now that he was a public figure with many friends among the Elites and the Elders, this meeting would be difficult to arrange. Now the informers were many and secretive they were, always on the lookout for betrayal. Husbands and wives were known to inform on each other, and parents also informed on their grown children. A surface display of congeniality disguised a brooding sense of distrust in one another. More and more were turning to the tuber drink to settle the feelings, to dull the suspicions, there.

A day came when nothing much was expected of AnNoon. No meetings scheduled, a routine day. He did not tell RaYell of his plans to try to see ChoZen for she would worry. He knew that ChoZen was now working in the camps, put to the task of making barrels for the drink. He knew that ChoZen was alone much of the time, and lived in a small dwelling behind the tall grasses by the creek's edge.

At noon, ChoZen would return to his hovel and have a meal. Here is where AnNoon planned to meet him. If all would go well, he would not be seen. If he was seen, he would say he needed a Provider to make special barrels for his drink. He knew that his stature had weight and many would dismiss this as an ordinary request of a Quester to a Provider. Yet it was not without risk and the thought of DaMada sent chills down his back.

ChoZen was also having a routine day that day, and had wet the panels waiting for the fires to burn hot to forge the rims. His mind was now in almost constant communication with his guide and his life had gone smoothly. His scientific work had been progressing and many journals had been filled. Placed in a box under the floor boards, they were safe from inquisitors. Now he decided to take his noon meal and allow for the panels to continue soaking. The stew that had been cooking over the fire now was ready and the loaves, too, were there.

ChoZen looked into the distance and saw a figure approaching. Right away he knew it was AnNoon, and his heart jumped for joy at the thought of seeing his friend. ChoZen spread out the meager meal and took clay mugs and filled them with drink. Spreading his arms out, he ran to AnNoon and circled mightily, laughing and hugging as he invited him in.

The two ate the simple repast, and delighted in the renewal of friendship. AnNoon told him of JoHan and how inquisitive he was, his own person, already! ChoZen then asked about RaYell and said he missed her, but understood that the position they were now in precluded any contact. AnNoon agreed and said even this visit was risky and not without possible consequences. “Why are you here, AnNoon, there must be a reason?”

“ChoZen, I have been disheartened over what I am doing—or not doing—at the observatory. There are truly forces that work against any progress, ChoZen. You and I have known this, but I have seen and felt this first hand. I have been following the rules and have given great intensity to my work, but anything that looks like ‘life’ is dismissed and ignored. I have been thinking about what you told us that night at the creek, that the place to look is inward. This idea just stays with me, but it is so heretical, I can’t bring myself to try, but I want to.”

ChoZen was overjoyed to hear this and now took the time to share his experiment with AnNoon. He took out the journals and one by one, the two examined his notes. Clear evidence of intelligent response, without a doubt.

“What is the process, ChoZen? If I keep things secret maybe I, too, can confirm this life in the eastern inner galaxy.”

“You have a guide, AnNoon, each one has a guide who will help you to know what steps to take. You must clear your mind and let all thoughts go—empty it out—then gently ask if someone’s there. You will hear, see, or feel a signal that is uniquely your own and this will confirm to you that you are in guidance. Now listen and do not get it confused with your own thinking. You will know, for you will always feel supported from guidance. Your guide loves you and wants you to know him, AnNoon.”

AnNoon thanks his dear friend and quickly departs. He takes the wooded path back to the observatory, and no one inquires where he was but a Provider, cleaning the floors.

“Out for lunch, Sir?” That was it. AnNoon breathed a sigh of relief as he went back to work.

Chapter 4

Now the days were filled with adhering to the rules of the Elders during the day, and opening to the new understanding at night and when AnNoon was alone. At first there was an awkwardness and a fear actually, because the technique was so new, so different from how he had been trained to use his mind.

But at last, after many tries, AnNoon felt that he was indeed joined there by a presence, or a Voice that did seem to be talking to him. The moment that he knew for sure that the Voice was not his own thinking and that he indeed had a guide, left AnNoon with such a feeling of joy and relief. He knew he was not alone anymore and that his life would now dramatically change.

During this time of practice, AnNoon thought of his little son JoHan and RaYell. Now he would instruct them in this new understanding. Would they, too, find inner guidance? Would JoHan understand?

There were certainly risks involved, for if he were to be discovered, their life would be torn apart. But he could not conceal this most wonderful truth, for it would change their lives for the better in so many ways.

RaYell was alarmed at first, but so trusted AnNoon that she too, soon devoted time to getting in touch with her guide and, to her joy and amazement, she too, found that she was abided with and loved by inner guidance. The couple decided to introduce this to JoHan in small ways. But JoHan seemed to have an inner sense of guidance already and took to the idea of One within guiding him easily and unquestioningly. How happy was life now for the family as life took on a quality of adventure and newness.

However, AnNoon had aroused some suspicions amongst the Elders, for he seemed to disregard both their praise and their admonishments. He no longer seemed to care about adherence to rules of pledging his allegiance to ‘The Quest’ each morning, and others had noticed a different, less concerned demeanor from AnNoon.

JuStonian and the others now felt the need for some informers to be put in place. It was in the home that they felt they would get the most accurate sense of why changes had occurred. The Provider who had been assigned to help RaYell each day, now had a new mission—to spy on the family and to inform the Elders of any changes that might indicate heretical thought and behavior.

The Provider, a person whom had seemed trustworthy, now began privately scrutinizing the family. Private conversations and remarks were tracked, and anything that looked like changed behavior was relayed to the Elders. Even bursts of happiness that did not involve the mission, ‘The Quest,’ were thought of as possibly heretical, for the Elders saw even random happiness as suspect. It was a place intolerant of independent thought and ideas or even emotions that were not somehow generated by AnDramadian culture.

Now rumor was rampant amongst the people, and the Providers had links with each other so that they could deal with the constant fear of being informed on. The Providers clearly knew of the class system and the powerlessness they had in the society. To compensate, they used strategies to protect themselves from banishment to DaMada. It was an underground communication system that only Providers had privy to. And so, through the network there in the north of AnDramada, ChoZen learned of the Provider that was in the household of AnNoon and RaYell and of her allegiance to the Elders. He learned that she had told them of heretical activities in the household, lack of dedication to mission and secretive and unexplained emotions and outbursts of laughter and happiness. She told of little JoHan and his dislike of going to community school and how RaYell would keep him with her to roam the woods and grasses.

ChoZen thought of his dear friends, and though he had not talked to AnNoon since the visit, had been told by his guide that the family was now in touch with inner guidance. He was also told that they were at grave risk of banishment. ChoZen felt he must act in some way to let them know that they must escape, run away. ChoZen consulted with guidance, and was told that he was needed in this way, and that he should go to the meadow by the creek early in the morning.

The next morning ChoZen took the path in the woods to the meadow. There he saw RaYell and JoHan walking in the tall grasses. Quietly, he walked after them, gently calling to them. RaYell turned and saw him and ran toward him circling in joy, little JoHan circling, too. ChoZen then led them to the woods where they would not be seen.

“RaYell, you are in grave danger. My guidance has told me that you are being informed on and that the Elders are going to banish you and AnNoon. They will place JoHan with others and you will not see him again. You must leave, RaYell, you all must leave tonight!” Stunned, RaYell began putting the pieces together, one by one.

Now she understood why their Provider had been acting so strangely. “ChoZen, where should we go?” ChoZen was quiet for a moment.

“Guidance says go into the northern most part of AnDramada, into the mountain country. Few others live there. Go tonight. Go to HonDorf and I will meet you in three days time at the mill by the water wheel there—when the Org is low in the sky—I will meet you. Bring only a few things. AnNoon will be in complete agreement with this. He will be in contact with his guidance. We all will be. We must trust, RaYell, we must trust.”

ChoZen knew that RaYell was in touch with her guidance, and he knew she would follow step by step what she was told. He knew that this plan was meant to bring them to safety, and to allow for JoHan to grow up learning a new way to live there.

And so it was that late that night, when the Org was low in the sky, two adult figures were seen with a third little one in a back carrier, moving quietly along the path through the town into the woods. Heading north now, and away from town, the figures found a protected grassy area, and lay down to rest, pulling the hooded wraps over them for warmth. Sleep did come to them all, for they felt that guidance had saved them from a life in DaMada, and the wrenching apart of their beloved JoHan from the family. At least for a few hours they were safe.

The Org, now rising, was golden in its morning light. The family arose and quickly had loaves and drink and then started out again. Foremost on their minds was getting distance between them and the town. The Elders, who surely would have noticed by now that they had left, would have a search party gathering and plans made to cover a large amount of territory.

AnNoon said to RaYell, “We are in our guide’s hands, RaYell, so pay attention to what you hear, and so will I.”

“So will I,” chimed in little JoHan. All laughed, as they hurried on.

The miles went fast but by midday the family showed signs of fatigue. Not wanting to delay too much, they saw a brook with what looked like fresh flowing water. They drank fully. They spotted the foothills to the mountains in the distance.

“If we can get there by this evening, there are places to hide without much danger of being found.” Quietly, AnNoon listened to guidance and was given verification that this plan was good.

“Mother, Father, mine says go to that tree stump.”

“No, JoHan, we must go now.” But in fairness, they walked to the stump. There, buzzing, were the little ones who made the sweet stuff all AnDramadians loved, the food that filled them with energy. Swishing the little ones away, the three broke off pieces, enjoying some and putting some in their packs.

“You were right JoHan, what a treat! We must listen to your guide, too!”

Now with energy a plenty, the three set off walking many miles that afternoon, until the Org was low in the sky. Soon they arrived at the foothills and found a sheltered area behind a rock formation, covered with low-growing branches. Guidance confirmed this was a good place to rest. Exhausted, the three fell asleep to the sound of the wind blowing and the Org’s light, now a deep orange, spilling down on them.

Another day and they would be in the isolated village of HonDorf, and ChoZen would be there. As the miles passed, the reality of what they had done set in. RaYell and AnNoon now knew that the life they had known was over, that what lay before them was unknown and was a mystery of profound proportions. Should they survive this trip and find a place away from the Elders and away from those who would destroy them, they would still be faced with living day to day. They would be faced with raising a child without others to help or support them.

Now the enormity of this move set in, and RaYell quietly cried out of exhaustion, and out of overwhelming feelings of uncertainty. AnNoon could only hold her and say, “We’re alive, RaYell, we’re free and we have each other. RaYell, we have JoHan and we have a new way to live—we have guidance. RaYell, we’re here because of guidance and we’re safe because of guidance—our guides won’t let us down, they won’t let us down.”

Chapter 5

Strangely, the remaining day went fast and without incident. Strength was there to get to the water wheel in HonDorf, and smiles aplenty shown through as ChoZen met them, twirling together in delight at meeting safely, here in this small mountain village.

The Org now was low in the sky and ChoZen told them of his elderly uncle, DillBert, who lived here and who had been an Isolate as a child. Choosing to live away from the AnDramadian culture, he and his wife, OrDell, raised the tubers and edibles and kept the little four-legged horned ones that gave milk and meat. Their skins, sewed by OrDell, were used to store the drink. ChoZen had been there earlier, and asked if they could stay awhile to rest from their travel and to consult and make plans for what next to do. DillBert and OrDell were delighted and had prepared a warm meal for the little group.

Now, after a warm meal and cleaning up in the steam pool that lay behind the small cottage, the family went to the loft, there to sleep soundly. Before drifting off, AnNoon turned inward and expressed gratitude to his guidance. The cool mountain wind was blowing, but inside was warmth. Just like us, he thought, it's all inside.

The morning broke with the sound of bells, as the little horned ones moved to the meadows. JoHan was up and ready to investigate. Not one to miss an adventure, he was already outside exploring his new surroundings. And there was so much to explore! The mountain stream which meandered through the rocky outcropping, tumbled briskly as it came to a drop, creating a small waterfall. The water splashed up, and as the light from the Org shone through the water, many colors glistened in the cool air. JoHan saw that the stream was narrow enough in some places to walk across on rocks he could use as stepping stones.

Across the stream was a woods filled with the tall fragrant trees that spired in the air. What would he find there? Not one to miss anything, he joyfully walked along, spying a flower here and a bird there. The trees looked dark.

He thought he heard his Mother calling, “Jooo...Han, Jooo...Han,” but his curiosity and his intrigue led him on. Once in the trees, things seemed to be confusing for JoHan. He no longer could see the Org and the stream now seemed far away.

He turned and thought he saw a clearing in a break through the trees and hurried there. But it was only a space cleared by fallen trees. “Maaa..ther, Faaa....ther,” he called. The thought that he was lost did not concern him, for he was sure that soon he would find his way to the creek again and to the stepping stones that would take him back to the cottage. He turned back and the trees were everywhere!

Now what should he do? Feeling tired, he lay down and fell asleep, as the Org, now clearly overhead, signaled the day at half point. RaYell and AnNoon were alarmed, for nowhere was little JoHan. Calling and calling they searched the area. OrDell, DillBert and ChoZen began going to each villager and asking for their help. The small group gladly came and made a plan to divide the woods into sections, each searching that section and reporting back when through.

Now the task became urgent, for the Org was setting lower and the orange-red light no longer provided clear vision as to where to go and what to see. How afraid the couple was for their dear little son and how worried they were.

Then it was that AnNoon said, “In our fear we have not taken time to listen to guidance, RaYell, we must do that now.” So the two sat down and went within, quietly and without anxiety, nor demandingly, they asked of their guides what do to. Here is what they were told.

“Your little son is asleep and will be all right. He will not be found until morning. Now we would say, to let the bright morning Org guide you, and trust that JoHan will be found. We will talk with JoHan, too.”

And so the villagers left as the Org set low in the sky, and the couple returned to the cottage to eat and rest. JoHan awoke several times during the night, but was told by guidance to not be afraid, that his parents would find him in the morning, to just stay where he was and sleep a little longer.

As the Org rose that morning, RaYell and AnNoon did find JoHan there in the woods, sleeping soundly. How glad little JoHan was to see his parents! After JoHan had a meal and a warm soak in the steam pool behind the cottage, the three thanked their guides for protection and for the love that surrounded them all that day. JoHan promised RaYell and AnNoon that he would always check in with his guidance, and would try to never be lost again.

Chapter 6

Now came a time of increased reflection on the parts of ChoZen, AnNoon and RaYell. For the news had spread that the AnDramadians were searching the mountains for them. They had thought that if they were not involved in the culture, and were not undermining the methods the Elders used to follow ‘The Quest,’ they would be forgotten and dismissed there, as betrayers and runaways.

It was speculated that the Elders might want to use them as examples of what can happen if Questers and Providers chose to leave. Although murder and violence were not part of the culture, banishment was, and to be banished to DaMada was the ultimate punishment for the citizens of AnDramada.

Reports of the remote island with its rocky out-croppings, whipped by winds and without the companionship of others, certainly without JoHan, sent chills down the spines of the three. How could they keep their whereabouts secret? What should they do? Here were big questions, and so together, they turned to their guides and asked for next steps to take.

It was with disbelief that they were told that their job now, their mission, was to infiltrate the culture through the underground message channels, and begin to disseminate the news of direct connection to guidance. Those in the Provider class would be most willing to listen as they were the oppressed ones there. Now the question was, how are we supposed to do this? And the answer was, that each step of the way would be guided, and that the way would be made plain to them, that they were being held in the minds and hearts of those on the invisible plane, and were being given protection and safety there.

Although this was most encouraging to the three, there was still trepidation and some fear, for the mission they were about to embark on could only be seen as filled with risk and deception there.

“We have been brought this far,” said AnNoon, “we must trust here.”

ChoZen said that this would be the greatest gift that could be brought to the people of AnDramada if, indeed, they could open up to guidance. But the masses must be won over one by one, as each one comes to know the truth there. Now the three began planning in earnest, and were told that the time to leave was approaching. Because of the grave dangers that the three felt they would be in, they asked DillBert and OrDell to take care of JoHan for a while, until they returned. The couple was happy to do this, as they had grown to know and love JoHan, and JoHan had learned to love the mountain cottage and the little horned ones that roamed freely there.

Now RaYell and AnNoon sat down with JoHan and explained what was happening and that they would not be gone so long, and that they would come to get him when the time was right. JoHan seemed to understand and said he had his guidance there with him, and also, that he felt fine being there with the older couple. This brought relief to RaYell and soon the outline of what to do became apparent.

It would be a teaching process that would be needed to bring the truth to the people. It would require individual teaching and teaching to small groups. Each one would need to share their own experience, and each one would need to bring guidance into each situation. For it would be the guides of the people, validating and verifying to them that what they heard was true, that would ultimately bring change. How could the three ever know whether the ones they were talking to would betray them—would bring the Elders into the situation? This was the challenge and this was the dilemma that confronted the three. Filled with a sense of purpose and filled with a renewed vision of the meaning of their lives, the three looked forward to what lay ahead.

ChoZen, who knew the underground message network well, and knew of the leaders there that represented thousands of Providers, now began laying out the system of leadership that had been developed. As the network was so interwoven, messages could travel fast, and within hours, all Providers could be alerted to the actions of the Elders. The Questers did not know that the Providers held regular underground meetings, at which time alerts were given and those who would betray were identified. It was known that informers from the Quester class had once tried to infiltrate these meetings, but were identified by lack of knowing the coding that was changed regularly.

ChoZen's guidance told him that through these meetings, opportunities for sharing news of guidance could be had. Now there came an opportunity for the three to attend a meeting, for DillBert heard that such a meeting was to be held in the neighboring village a day's journey away. The three set out early the next morning, and were told of a place called a haven house where they could stay.

Haven houses, or places of refuge, were spread throughout the land and they were held in the strictest of secrecy. These houses were often public places, eating establishments or inns that were not suspect because they appeared so open. However, they held tunnels and hidden rooms that offered haven to Providers threatened with banishment.

They also held rooms capable of holding larger groups and these too, were hidden. This elaborate channel of meeting places were given code names, which changed frequently. A Provider would say to a neighbor, the Org is glorious this evening, and so glorious was the code name for that meeting place that evening. And so the word was spread that glorious was housing a meeting that evening.

“How you feeling, sister?”

“Just glorious, just glorious.”

“How’s the digging, brother?”

“Hard, but glorious,” and so the word was spread.

As the three journeyed, they talked about how they would tell the others. ChoZen would need to be the spokesperson for he was a Provider. Now the three knew that it was up to guidance to direct them at the meeting. Each one would need to speak through and only then could the invisible world, the world of guidance, come through.

The entrance to the tunnel that led to the meeting room was in the woods. Concealed by boulders and trees, it was inconspicuous. Wedging their bodies through a small opening, the tunnel was dimly lit by air holes along the top. RaYell and AnNoon were surprised at this, for they had no idea that all of this existed in northern AnDramada. RaYell had been given the unadorned clothes of a Provider by OrDell, and AnNoon, too, was now dressed in working clothes. They were not now recognizable as Questers, and it was hoped that attention would not be drawn to them. Without the Quester finery, the two looked like simple Providers living in the land.

ChoZen led the way down the tunnel to the large, open, meeting place much like a cave there under the inn. Light was dim and candles were placed in holders on the wall. The people were now filing in and took seats on grass mats that were provided. Quietly and without noise they entered and quietly they sat down and waited.

The Provider leader, ThistleDown, started the evening. ThistleDown was strong and sinewy and held much influence amongst the Providers. He had never aspired to Questerhood, for he had always felt as an equal to all who lived in northern AnDramada. He worked hard to provide for his wife and large family. The Questers had placed him as a land overseer, and he worked to ensure tubers were planted, grown and harvested using the ancient methods of his ancestors. His love of AnDramada and of the Org was tempered with the distaste of hierarchy that held everyone in servitude there. His leadership had prevented numerous ones from banishment, as they were able to move, hide, or stay underground, until the Elders gave up.

Now the Elders were not interested in punishment per se, but they were interested in maintaining the status of the Questers and the mission and the meaning that AnDramadians held as their culture. The scientific mind set must be adhered to at all times. Therefore, scientific proofs were necessary for all claims. The imposition of a reality other than what was seen, heard, touched, and felt was blasphemy and immediately called for banishment.

Now ThistleDown began speaking. "We have amongst us, this day, guests who will speak to us after our meeting. ChoZen, who some of you may have heard of, has come with friends to tell us something he has discovered. Let us listen to him and allow for his discovery to be made known." Soon it was time for ChoZen to speak. He immediately closed his eyes and quietly asked for his guide to speak through to the ones gathered here.

I have something wonderful to tell you today. It is a discovery that has changed my life. You know that the Elders have told us that only that which can be seen, touched, felt, and heard is real. Only that which is visible is real. We have been taught that any idea other than this is blasphemy and is worthy of banishment.

I have discovered that within our minds, is a place of connection to invisible guidance. All of us have a guide waiting for us, to help us in times of trouble, or in good times, too. This guide will give you steps to take to get you through whatever you are facing there. Your guide will not shame you, nor blame you, nor cause you discontent.

Your guide knows all about you and knows what to tell you to further you along there. You will find safety, security, and love there, my fellow Providers. Now you do not need to believe me, for it is your own experience that will confirm this to you.

You each have a sign, a signal, a light, a tone, a touch that is uniquely yours, that will verify this to you. I can tell you that this is news that will transform you there, and will protect you, keep you safe, and bring great joy to you.

Let us all quiet our thinking mindsets and let go of all thoughts. Ask for your guide to show you his or her presence and make him or herself known to you. Do not think that you are being misled here, and do not think that this is meant to betray you there. You are, indeed, connected to an invisible presence who loves you.

“Let us think on what ChoZen has told us” said ThistleDown, as the meeting was dismissed.

Chapter 7

Many who heard ChoZen that evening were puzzled by what he said. Many felt that he was not to be trusted, for his words were so foreign to them, but some saw the sincerity of his words and decided to try, in their own ways, to get in touch with inner guidance. And some did learn of the wonderful resource available to them. Each of those who did find inner guidance told a trusted loved one about it, and these in turn, found their guidance.

Now began a series of meetings throughout northern AnDramada where RaYell, ChoZen and AnNoon would take turns telling their experiences of inner guidance. They felt joy in this, and felt that they were truly on target with their lives. The meetings were well attended, and a new spirit of trust began to develop amongst the Providers. This was evident in the ways people responded to one another, and to their work, and in the movement of people each engaged in their own guidance-led lives.

Now the movement of guidance continued, bringing to bear on circumstances, much needed help. Self esteem was raised as people realized that they were equal to each other and not lower, less worthy than others. As this elevation of the Provider class was felt throughout the land, there came into existence a desire to understand more of who these guides were, that existed in space, in Mind, and gave so fully to each one.

The curiosity of those who were in touch, now brought a desire for further exploration into how Mind works and how it connects with everything. The questions that were brought up at the meetings, now caused RaYell, ChoZen and AnNoon to include new information into the meetings, as it came forth for them, through guidance. The question most frequently brought up was, Are we connected? Is Mind like the air we breath, there for everyone? AnNoon's guidance said:

Mind is the field of energy that holds All within it. It is holding each thing, each one, there, and is made up of energy, like light that floods All with its substance. All is this same substance and it is life—alive, moving, dynamic and meaningful. It is a vibrational field and each one therein is a vibrational being that exists in and as this field. Therefore, the field is available to All. This Source is like the Org—nothing escapes its penetration, and nothing exists that is not in and of it.

Now the people were interested in communication and asked, If Mind communicates with each of us, can we communicate with each other through Mind?

RaYell began:

Communication is the function of Mind as it penetrates through to you. It relays information you can use immediately, and most importantly, it relays meaning to your life. Now trans-communication is possible between each other and is most apparent in those who are open to receive. Communication cannot be fully experienced without a willingness on the part of the participants. Willingness is the key here for guidance. Mind, cannot force information on you, nor give you much needed help without your willingness to hear, to receive. When you have quieted your thinking mind sets, and have asked for guidance, you have been given that guidance. As you have practiced this, you have felt more sure of it, but your willingness is always the key.

Now the three understood that their purpose was not only to tell others of guidance but to teach and learn as they also opened to it. The three were learning along with the others, and each meeting was a new revelation to them. They understood that what they were doing was radical, and eventually, would cause a paradigm shift in the culture there. They knew that what they were sharing held remarkable truth that had been hidden and had now come to light through the openness of ChoZen as he had turned to follow his curiosity about Mind.

As the days flowed forth, the trust level amongst the people grew, and the harmony experienced seemed to penetrate the very air there on AnDramada. It was a time of new beginnings, and a time of letting go of the old mindset, the enculturated way.

RaYell felt the need to return to JoHan as she longed for her little boy and AnNoon also wanted to return. And so, after many turns of the Org, the three headed back to HonDorf, and to JoHan, DillBert and OrDell.

It was a warm reunion, and JoHan had much to tell of life in the mountain with the little, four-legged, horned ones, and things that DillBert and OrDell had taught him. He was now an expert at climbing the rocks, and could tell where the little ones would be grazing each day. He told of the night sky, and of how DillBert had told him of the many galaxies that could be seen, and of the movement in the heavens of light that looked liked space ships.

How thrilled was JoHan to let his parents know that he had been with guidance each day and now had a friend within who guided him always. This brought joy to the couple and they, too, shared their experiences of guidance.

DillBert and OrDell now wanted to know more of guidance. And so, AnNoon shared his experience with them. DillBert said, “You know, I have often felt that I had a friend inside my head—I called it my Mountain Spirit. I have heard this Voice since I was a child and that was why I couldn’t follow what the Elders said. I knew that there was something invisible that helped me—that guided me—and I knew that it was real. As a child and as I was growing up, my Mountain Spirit always was there and if I followed what I was told—everything turned out right. How could I not follow such a kind Voice as this? How could I not?”

OrDell also said she knew she was joined by One who loved her and protected her and comforted her. Now she knew it was her guide, also.

That night, DillBert lit a fire in the stone pit. OrDell had invited the villagers to come to welcome the return of Cho-Zen, RaYell and AnNoon. Now a joyous celebration was had. Food, drink and merriment brought laughter to the group. And as the Org hung low in the sky, with its deep orange glow, spiritual guides working with the people also smiled and rejoiced, as many more now had opened up to the invisible plane and to their Greater Wholeness.

Chapter 8

We have come to a point where the progression of guidance has moved quietly throughout the land. We have come to a point where many have heard and have found the Great Resource within. But there is trouble brewing within the hierarchy there, for they are aware that something profound has moved through the land and altered the mission, ‘The Quest,’ there amongst the people.

The Elders now are alarmed, and have come together for a meeting that will include strategies to uncover and eliminate this new heresy among the people. They have now come together, and are searching to uncover what has occurred there. JuStonian has convened the meeting, and has called the hierarchy together. He outlines to them what he has observed, and others, too, declare their concerns.

“Following ‘The Quest’ no longer is burning in the hearts of our people, our Providers,” he utters. “This causes me great alarm and concern. What is it that has so infiltrated our Providers that they no longer seem to be fervent in their desire to move upwardly, to the Questing mindset? What is it?”

An Elder replies, “I have noticed that the people seem to be less ardent also, and I have noticed that they seem to want to ignore us. We are not looked at with honor any more, and this causes me great concern. They are turning us into irrelevancy. I am outraged at this, fellow Elders, I am outraged. How could this have happened? What has infiltrated our Providers to act in such a way? Who is behind this and how can we banish them, so that we can return to our true culture, the culture of Questing?”

The Elders recount recent incidences of betrayal, and as they search, they remember their protege AnNoon. Here is where the attention focuses now, and here is where the Elders analyze his behavior. They call on the informer who relayed the information of AnNoon and RaYell. Now the Elders are angry that they let the search party off the hook when they did not find them back then. Now they are angry and they wonder where the couple is. They wonder if they are the ones responsible for this, for they remember AnNoon and his changed attitude towards them.

Now they develop a plan to find him with the purpose of banishment. The plan will involve calling together Providers and Questers who are devoted to the mission, 'The Quest,' and who will eagerly give up their time and energy to uncover AnNoon.

There will be a cadre of a hundred or so such informers spread throughout AnDramada, searching every town and village and all the country in between. It is a dedicated and formidable group that has one motive—one mission—to find and banish AnNoon.

Now the hunt is on in earnest and not a stone will be left unturned to find him. The maps are drawn and the land sectioned off as each unit is given their territory to cover. Much of the work will be done through espionage and through gaining intelligence through the people, for it is only as the people open up that AnNoon's whereabouts will be found.

Now the underground message channels begin spreading the news that there is an all out attack on finding AnNoon and banishing him. AnNoon and RaYell soon find out that they are hunted and in grave danger there. Now they must develop a plan and so again they turn to guidance.

We know of the intention of the Elders to find you and banish you. We know of this and we can tell you that your safety is secure and your well-being is our concern. We would say that your plan of action must include opening to the Elders, the news of guidance.

Yes, this sounds formidable to you and sounds as if impossible to you, and yet this is what is called for here. This is what is called for. For we see your place in the universe as one of full awakening there, and so you must trust that what we tell you is the truth. We would not tell you something that would cause you harm nor seek to play tricks on you, for we love you and want only that which is best for you. We will guide you in this each step of the way there, we will guide you in this. All is well, you must trust here.

AnNoon holds hands with RaYell and they speak to each other in love and in trust. “We have been protected and helped each step of the way so far, and now we are asked to trust even more. We know that fulfillment is what is meant for us and for our planet, and so, let us listen and follow guidance here. Let us listen and follow guidance.”

It is with growing trepidation that the three begin planning what their next steps should be. For the consequences of a misstep would be severe. How should they begin, and who should they contact? It is decided with guidance that JoHan should again stay with DillBert and OrDell as they now have grown accustomed to this small boy living with them. They are delighted to have him live there and JoHan, too, seems to be fine with living there. But RaYell is unhappy leaving her son, and asks that she be allowed to stay with him for a while. Her need to raise her boy is great, and so it is decided that ChoZen and AnNoon will go forward alone.

The two men have decided that their best plan is to be direct in their approach, and this will ultimately prove most effective. Their guides have let it be known that the direct method will be the best, that teaching to even these ones, will allow for guidance to enter into their lives and to work the transformation that is needed.

The men plan a journey back into the heart of northern AnDramada and to the township of their birth. It is accepted that they will know what to do once they arrive, and it is accepted that guidance will provide the way.

Now there are tearful good-byes, and as RaYell hugs her dear AnNoon, she wonders if this will be the last time. But in her heart she knows that he will return, and that a new beginning on AnDramada will occur. JoHan hugs his father and ChoZen as the men leave the tiny village of HonDorf not to return for many turns of the Org.

Chapter 9

Heading south, the two journey through many villages and towns. They stay in haven houses, and let it be known that they are now going to tell the Elders about inner guidance. The Providers are a buzz with the news, and the message network spreads the word. Many want to be there when AnNoon and ChoZen talk to the Elders and show their support. There is an underground swell of Providers eager to at last confront the Elders, and at last move into a culture of freedom and individual choice.

No longer do the Providers want to be servants and slaves, and no longer do they want to adhere to a mindset that does not allow for free will of thought, word, and deed. No longer do they want to only allow for the scientific point of view, as they know that what is really meaningful to them is the relationship they have developed with their guidance—their guides on the spiritual plane.

The leader of this group is ThistleDown, and now he confers with ChoZen and AnNoon as the three strategize to issue an invitation to JuStonian and the others to meet. It is as the Elders receive the invitation that they are curious, but also furious, that such an event could be, but they now think it is in their best interest to meet, as here is an opportunity to capture AnNoon and bring him to banishment.

The meeting is set for two days hence at the large meeting hall in the town. The Elders are not aware that there will be a large crowd of Providers accompanying AnNoon, nor do they quite know what will take place. They have arranged for the transport to DaMada and for troops of informers and Questers there, to ambush AnNoon on his way out. Now the meeting place is in the center of the town, and Providers from near and far will be there. All those who side with ThistleDown and AnNoon have been busy telling dozens and even hundreds to be there. The plan is to allow for AnNoon and ChoZen to enter first and approach the Elders. Then, when they are about to start, open the doors and let ThistleDown and the crowd come in and take seats.

The Elders, who pride themselves on listening and debating, see this as an opportunity to hear AnNoon out so that they can gain insight into the nature of the heresy. This will give them the chance to deprogram the Providers and to reinstate the fundamentals of life on AnDramada.

Now the Elders have heard through their sources, that there will be a crowd of Providers there, but they see this as an opportunity to show this heretic being forever banished to DaMada and the horror that can happen if heresy is allowed to come forth. They plan to go along with everything until the end, and then, in a show of power and authority, bring in the troops to capture AnNoon and load him in the transport.

The day of the meeting has arrived. Many have departed from their homes and are making the journey to town. They are jubilant, for at last, their voices will be heard, and at last, they will begin the equalization of a people under subjection. How wonderful they know life will be, for they see new freedom just ahead.

But before this is to be, many have turned to their inner guidance and asked for steps to take in this endeavor. Many have found that guidance has told them to approach their oppressors with love and kindness, but also with firmness as to what they want.

They have been given orders to not allow for violence to occur, and to bring a civility and a unity into the meeting. Also, that they will not be alone there, and that all the guides will be there too, on the spiritual plane. And so, the large group has multiplied many times over by the multitudes on the invisible plane, joining with them, and giving them courage and strength of conviction. Joyfully, the crowd moves forward, and the chant of “Li-ber-ty, Li-ber-ty,” can be heard.

AnNoon and ChoZen do not know what they will say, but trust that as they arrive they will be given the right words to share with the Elders there. They have counseled with their guides, and now are accompanied and fortified with this relationship of solidarity.

Joyously they walk to the meeting room, and with the courage of mighty men, they go forward. Now they think about the planet and the ability to release the mindsets of the oppressors. They think about the awakening to a new dawn, a new day, and a new experience of connection to the mighty ones on the invisible planes who love them and accompany them there. How joyous this is to carry with them as they move forward to victory.

As they arrive, they enter the tall double doors of the central meeting room. In front of them are the Elders, robed and seated in large, ornately-carved chairs in a row in the front of the room. Their chairs are elevated above the floor on a platform, so that others must look up to them. Ju-Stonian sits in the center of the line and beckons AnNoon and ChoZen to come forward to the front.

The two approach the Elders and now are asked to tell them what this meeting is about. AnNoon listens inwardly and begins:

We have come before you today to share with you something of import. Now we would ask that you hold your reactions to what we are saying until we have finished, and then we will answer any questions that you may have. We applaud the scientific method which has held us in its grasp for centuries. We applaud this, but we must tell you that the scientific method of understanding and confirming life is truly not the way that we can know things. For we can know things another way. And that is the main reason we are coming to you this day. We know that you will think that this is blasphemy, and we know that you will find what we say as heretical, but we are calling on you to experiment with your own sense of 'knowing.'

You see, each of us has a place in our Minds, in our consciousness, that connects to another level of experience. It is truly a level that permeates and penetrates everything and connects everything within itself. We have discovered that as we allow for our Minds to be quiet and as we allow for our Minds, our guides, to speak to us, we can find a way to live that is truly the way we are meant to live.

You see, each of us is meant to live from this plane, this level of life, the spiritual level. Each of us has a place in consciousness that connects directly with this level. This guidance is the most loving and intelligent guidance that could ever be found. And it is available to everyone, without status, nor privilege, nor station in life. It is a free resource here for all. JuStonian, you have this gift and all of you Elders have this gift. Now we ask you to acknowledge this and let the Providers use this greatest of gifts, freely. Let them move to the moment of time with the loving words of guidance.

Now the Providers who have crowded into the room begin to cheer. "Guid...ance! Guid...ance!" they chant. The Elders are overwhelmed with this and JuStonian stands to speak.

“How can you know that you are not being duped within your mind, AnNoon, how do you know? It seems to me that an incarnate spirit could easily enter your mind and deceive you there. How are these good people to know that they are not being deceived?”

“Ah, this is a good question JuStonian, and it its truly a thing that takes practice to hear true guidance. But guidance is interested in the well being of each one. Nothing else. Guidance is most interested in awakening each of us to awareness that we are all connected, that each of us is a part of the Wholeness, the movement of life multidimensionally felt. JuStonian, I would challenge you and the others to do an experiment and return here next week to see if you have noticed anything or heard anything in your minds. I would challenge you.”

Chapter 10

Now the Elders look at each other and then JuStonian speaks: “AnNoon, you have challenged the panel here, and we have heard your request. This way of accessing truth sounds heretical to us and we cannot accept your invitation. We cannot accept something that is so filled with ambiguity and false and misleading interpretations. Truly, we think you have led the people astray, and therefore we must tell you that you are now looked at as an enemy of the state of AnDramada, and you will be considered a heretic from now on. Seize him! Seize him!”

Now the doors open and troops come in and the Providers yell, “No! No! Don’t take him, don’t take him!” ThistleDown tries to constrain the one large guard who has hold of AnNoon, and the two wrestle with each other.

Then AnNoon says to ThistleDown, “No, ThistleDown. Let them take me. I will be all right—let them take me.”

At hearing this ThistleDown calms the group down and says, “Trust, trust in guidance, trust in guidance.” The group now leaves and AnNoon is placed in the transport.

Meanwhile, ChoZen has been able to leave the situation through getting lost in the crowd and heading out. He is not easily recognized as he fits in with the Providers there.

ChoZen determines that his best strategy is to return to the haven house and talk with ThistleDown and the others. There is anger on the part of the people and they are eager to get AnNoon back. Some are already strategizing ways to intercept the transport and get AnNoon.

Now ThistleDown speaks to the group that has gathered there. “Let us listen for guidance, dear people, and let us follow what we hear. Let us commune here later this evening, and let us hear what you have heard from your guides.”

Now the people go home and agree to return later that evening. ChoZen sits with ThistleDown, and the two question how it is that guidance could have let AnNoon get captured. How is it when we were promised safety in this, that AnNoon truly now is heading for DaMada, and who knows if he will be able to be rescued? These things haunt the two, and yet they know that they must trust here.

Each one decides to be alone with his own guide and to return in the evening to see what has been told. ChoZen leaves the haven house and heads to the woods. He wants to be alone with the important guidance he must hear, so that he gets it clearly and completely—so that he hears nothing coming from his own fear and anger, nor from his thinking mindset, the mindset of ego, of separation. He wants to hear from the joined perspective and so he goes to a small and peaceful hamlet in the woods and sits there beneath a large tree. He is fearful and he is shaken at what has happened to his dear friend. He worries about RaYell, and if she will have heard the news, and what she must be thinking. Will she think he has let her down?

Now he quiets his thinking and asks in earnest what steps should we take here? What is the thing to do here? He listens, and then is heard in his Mind.

“ChoZen, I am with you there. You are not alone and I will give you specific steps to take as you are brought to what needs to occur. First, let me assure you that AnNoon is being guided in his situation and he is given what he needs there to find peace, even as he is brought to DaMada. He is given peace and an understanding that he will be all right, and that he will not be there long and that he is joined always with his guidance.”

Now ChoZen listens as guidance speaks again. “We would instruct you to organize a small team there with the intent of getting AnNoon. We would say get ThistleDown and a team of four others to plan the escape. This will take listening closely and moving with the stealth of a leopard. This will take both courage, and also, it will take a willingness to risk life and limb there. Now those who are chosen will need to get agreement from all they love, and will need to dedicate their time for at least a season's turn of the Org. Allow RaYell to be one of the chosen ones, and together, you and ThistleDown choose three others. Choose those who have found their guidance and choose men of dedication to the mindset of freedom. Now together you and ThistleDown choose, with guidance always involved."

ChoZen now knows what he will share at the meeting that evening, and returns to the haven house confident that he has heard plainly and clearly, and that he has a plan in place to share with the group. It is as he allows for a thankful heart to be experienced that he is now at peace and can feel confident in what lies ahead. Guidance again has confirmed to him that he is not alone and that he will always be joined there. The next phase of his life will be a time of many tests of guidance and a time of trust and courage. But he is strong in his convictions and feels not alone.

The evening quickly arrives and all the others are gathered there intensely interested in what has been heard and what next steps to take. ThistleDown starts the meeting:

"We have come here tonight to listen to what guidance has told us regarding next steps to take in this situation. Let us hear what you have heard."

ChoZen stands up and says: "Dear friends, I have heard that a team is to be chosen and this team has as its purpose to release AnNoon from captivity. I was told that this will take men of valor and who have the willingness to risk their lives for the eventual freeing of AnDramada, from the tyranny of the false mindset there, and from domination and servitude to the Quester class. Those who are chosen must be willing to give a season's worth of time, and understand that they will be away from their families for that time. They must understand that it will take all that they have in courage and fortitude to do this most important thing."

At this point the crowd looks at each other and cheers. Hands are raised as men volunteer to be on the team. ThisleDown confirms that his guidance also sees a team being chosen. Then he says, "My guidance has said that RaYell should be on the team. Can a women be put in such a dangerous situation there and what would happen to the little son they have?"

AnNoon says he also has been told that RaYell will be one of the chosen ones, and so the two agree that guidance must make her see that this is right for her. All those who have volunteered now come to the front of the room and together, in consult with inner guidance, the two choose three.

These are PeTros, a man known for his craggy courage and strong will, and TyMeros, one who can decipher and make use of his sharp intellect. And then, in a turn of events, a women is chosen, with urging from guidance. Her name is SyBell, and is noted for her dedication to the Providers. Her skills include cooking and organizing and is quick and steely willed when given a task she believes in.

The team has been selected and agree to meet at dawn's first light to plan what next. The crowd now disperses, and all feel confident that what has happened here this evening is right for the movement ahead. Eventually, they know that freedom is at hand for AnNoon, and that freedom, somehow, is at hand for a class of people ready to emerge into true emancipation. There is gratitude to the three chosen and to the guides of all who have shared the mindset of Oneness with the group.

From ONE Who Loves You

Chapter 11

Bright and early the next morning, the five meet together in the haven house meeting room. Through the message network, Providers have sent the message to RaYell that she is needed. She has talked with her guidance and now is ready to join the group. DillBert and OrDell have agreed to take JoHan and are concerned about AnNoon and afraid for what lies ahead. RaYell tells them that she is guided to go, and that all will be placed in the hands of guidance there. She will be accompanied to the haven house by a Provider who will guard her well and get her safely to the group.

Now she says good-bye to JoHan and he, too, understands. "I love you, Mother," he says, "I know that you and Father will be back when you are safely together. I am okay here and I have my best friend, my guide with me." She hugs him and tears herself away knowing that if she stays longer she may not go. Her little boy is held now in the well-being of the older couple and she hugs them and thanks them profusely.

"We will return, we will return," she says. The five have been notified that in a day's time RaYell will be there and so preparations are made for the long journey to DaMada.

DaMada, off the rugged southern coastline of AnDramada, is located in a spot which will take both sea and land travel to get there. The six will use horse transport for part of the way, and then will need to acquire a boat to take them to the island. All of this must be done in secrecy, for the Elders have expected that AnNoon will be sought, and have many informers and troops on the look out.

It is a dangerous undertaking and so plans are made to travel through wooded areas off the main roads. All the movement will be done at night and sleeping will be done during the day. Provisions are planned and packed and horses are furnished with bed rolls and simple necessities to bring along for living.

It will be five nights journey to the coastline and that is if nothing occurs. For along the way, there are mountains and a desert to cross. So harsh is the environment, that few have survived the vast changes in weather that they will encounter. But hope is strong. It is a painful good-bye to families and a guarded beginning that the six now undertake. For the departure is at night and the way is lit only by the red-orange hue of the Org and the starry sky.

Through the woods the six go, moving at first on a trail that the Providers have known of, but which is little known by the Questers there. This trail will get them a good distance along, and in the morning there is a haven house, the last one to be seen for a while, where they can stay and sleep during the day. The six move quietly along, the air pierced only by an occasional whinny of the horses. Distance is made and the move south brings the group to the rugged terrain known as the Borderland, for it borders the foothills of the mountain range known as The Gray Hawks. Named for the winged ones that circle the lower peaks, the stone outcroppings look like sharp beaks ready to devour those who would cross over.

Now at the first morning light, the six see the inn where underground there is a place for them to sleep with safety. Stabling the horses in the barn, the six find the hidden entrance and make their way to the chambers beneath. Now after a meal, the six sleep, but first each turns inward and thanks guidance for the night's safe journey and for food, sleep, and each other, and for their loved one's far away. Now it is evening and the six will begin another night's journey. Tomorrow morning they will be into the mountains, and will need to seek shelter, with hopes they can find a cave to hide their horses, and to feel out of sight from harm.

The six have formed a bond of friendship, discovering hidden talents and strengths as they proceed. They know they will be tested, and they know the importance of what they are undertaking. As the Borderland is crossed and the landscape becomes rocky, the horses find it difficult to see, as the star-filled night and the low-hanging Org provide little light. ChoZen feels some confusion in where to head as he is the leader of the group and points the way. Now the path has been left behind and they generally head south. They see the mountains as a black ridge in the distance, barely visible and seeming so far off.

As ChoZen rides along, his mind remembers the many nights he would use telepathy to see if life existed in the galaxy. Now he wonders if those far away ones who answered him are aware of what he and the group are involved with. His guidance answers affirmative and ChoZen sends a message, a request for help to show the way—safely show the way. Not expecting such an immediate answer, ChoZen is surprised to see a moving light blinking on and off, as if to say, “We hear you—follow us.”

ChoZen now heads the group in a slightly different direction following the blinking light ahead. He smiles as the reaffirmation of life elsewhere that cares, that is involved, beckons back. Now ChoZen feels renewed vigor and forward movement there and the others sense a leader is in charge. Confidence is felt throughout the group and much progress is made through the hard terrain.

As the fatigued group finally makes it to the foothills, the starry night gives way to the first light of dawn. Now the search for a cave to shelter the group is on, but nothing can be seen. Tired and hungry, the women are ready to settle behind some trees there, but ThistleDown says no—that these trees are not cover enough for the horses. This would be a dead give away to troops on the prowl for them.

Then off in the distance, behind a stand of trees, water is heard trickling. PeTros goes to inspect and finds a small stream leading from a cave-like entrance in the rocky cliff above. He scrambles to the entrance and finds a large cavern that is adequate for them all. The stream runs to one side and leaves room for all to rest without getting wet.

Now ChoZen looks into the heavens and thanks the ones who guided them here to this safe place. SyBell and RaYell prepare the food that they have brought and all eat to their fill. Now with horses watered and grazed, the group settles down to rest. But the sound of thunderstorms in the north waken them as lightning bolts rage outside. Soon there is a torrential downpour, but the six are safe in the cave.

Throughout the day the rains pour down. ThistleDown encourages everyone to sleep and says the night will be there soon and the next leg of the journey will be more difficult. And so the group settles down for several hours of sleep.

Chapter 12

That evening, the group quietly leaves the cave and heads up the rocky trail onward. Many miles have past and as the night slips by, ChoZen again turns to guidance for help. There is an unsure feeling now, for as the morning comes, it is unknown how far into the mountains they will be, and if they will find a safe place to sleep. They are sore and travel weary, but press on. The temperature has dipped to close to freezing, but the fur coats they wear keep them warm.

Now the horses are going slower, for they must pick their way through the rocks and at an extended elevation. The night light is limited to the stars and to the low-hanging Org, but the reflection off the snow that is seen in patches, gives them some additional light.

As the group stops during the night for water at a mountain stream, RaYell questions ChoZen about plans for rescuing AnNoon. She feels that DaMada will be impenetrable, and that there is no known means of escape. ChoZen reassures her that they are being guided, and that the ones on the spiritual planes will show them the way. This alleviates some worry from RaYell and she turns inward and opens to receive what may be heard there from her guidance.

Now the six are exhausted and shelter must be found as the morning light breaks through. They are several thousand feet above sea level, and now realize they have crossed the highest point and have begun the descent. Now ChoZen looks skyward, and as the last lights leave the night sky, he sees a blinking to the east.

He turns and rides that way telling the others to wait. There hidden in the rocky spires, is an enclosed area unseen from view by overhanging rocks, but certainly adequate for hiding the horses and sleeping. It is dry and dark with even a water source close by, a small stream to provide much needed hydration. The six are overjoyed, and quickly settle into food preparation, taking care of the horses, and settling down to sleep. This has proved to be a remarkable find, and the response of all is deep gratitude to the guides and the ones on the spiritual planes accompanying them.

Meanwhile, AnNoon has been brought through the mountain pass a day earlier and has come by way of a more traveled route. He and his guards have crossed the desert which is on the other side of The Gray Hawks, and now have come to the small coastal town of HeadRock. It sits on a peninsula that juts out to sea and forms a fan-shaped wedge into the water. Large and small ships come into the sheltered port, and the AnDramadian culture reigns supreme here, too. Providers slave to haul in the fish and other seafood for the Questers here and those in the heartland of AnDramada. The 'Questing mindset' is supreme and many Questers live here working in the ocean observatory which sits atop the high rocky outcropping, the head rock, which towers over the small town.

If one were to climb the steps to the top of that observatory, and look out to sea in the far distance, about a day's sail away, one would see an island outcropping, whipped by the sea and high winds, gray and ominous and difficult to land on. Here is DaMada.

AnNoon has been placed on a ship, tethered, and placed in a hold in the ship's belly. He has not been injured though, and has been provided with enough sustenance and water to survive there. He has held onto his guide's words that he would not be harmed and that he would not be imprisoned long. He has chosen to stay in almost constant contact with his guides and the reassurance he has received has given him a calm sense of quiet and a feeling that his imprisonment is serving a larger purpose there. For he has asked his guides to show him how all of this will help the Providers and all the citizens of AnDramada to come into the truth of their existence—that they are not alone and that they have a new way to learn of truth. He has asked and he is being told that this will all unfold as the days progress there—that he should stay open to guidance and trust, trust, trust. Allow it all to unfold. He will be given specifics there, when movement and action are required.

Now he is told to go along with his captors, and hold them not in contempt, nor in the mindset of hatred, but rather see them as brothers, there. This is giving AnNoon a chance to use his feelings and his mind in a new way, and as he adopts this mindset, his captors seem to respond with less harshness and tend to mind their own business more, giving AnNoon more time without constant surveillance.

He can rest and sleep and breathe without others annoying him. His thoughts go to RaYell and to little JoHan and he places them in the trust of inner guidance and of the love that he knows holds them in safety and in the embrace of a Source that holds all in its Mind, the Mind of Oneness.

AnNoon listens as guidance reassures him that he is not forsaken, and that soon the movement into freedom will be felt. Without knowing how or when, AnNoon is left to focus on how events have unfolded, and how the possibility of change for the people of AnDramada could actually occur. AnNoon knows that the task will be brought under the guidance of the spiritual ones, those who exist on the other side, who are aware of the whole of what is occurring on the planet. Their viewpoint brings into focus a new way of being and a new way of living that far surpasses the old.

For this new way of understanding life includes so much more and opens the door on endless possibility of joining with those who exist on the other planets throughout the universe. The magnitude of this and the joy it brings to AnNoon makes the ordeal he is going through seem minuscule and releases AnNoon from any sense of victimhood.

The others have now seen HeadRock and have found a way to blend into the crowds in the town-scape. They have gone unnoticed and blend in as citizens there. A few curious ones look at them, but no evidence of alarm is sounded. The group has agreed to meet when evening comes.

Longing to see AnNoon, RaYell searches the crowds looking for any clues of where he might be. She wonders if he has come this way and is at DaMada already. Looking out to sea she sees a faint dark land mass miles off in the distance and knows this is DaMada.

Now she turns inward and asks her guidance where he is as her eyes focus on the ship anchored there in the harbor. "Could he be there?" she asks. Given some sense of reassurance, she will tell the others this evening to formulate a plan. Now she heads back to the woods to sleep as she and the others are tired from their journey.

Chapter 13

A plan is developed to search the ship to see if AnNoon is there. Here SyBell will play a critical role as she can appear as a tradesperson who brings supplies to the ship. She has thought about how she can accomplish this and offers her suggestions.

There is always a need for foodstuffs and SyBell will bring purchased goods to offer to the stewards there. She feels she can entice them to buy her goods and to bring them into the ship's galley. She will bring delicacies that she is familiar with, and will seek to please the Captain and the higher ranking ones on the vessel. This will seem innocent, as other tradespeople frequent the ship to offer goods and services prior to departure. Now SyBell will find a receptive crew as she offers smiles and winks along with her goods. The group agrees and SyBell will go early the next day.

Now the group has heard through rumors in the town that the Elders have been searching for them. There are informers scattered throughout the area asking questions and probing into the lives of the citizens there. Word has passed through the Provider network that AnNoon may be coming and those who are aware of what has transpired with Ju-Stonian and the Elders now are solidly united in blocking the Elders from finding him. All must be done with the utmost secrecy and only the trusted citizens, those who know of AnNoon and his vow to free the Providers there, are privy to what is unfolding.

SyBell has found a trusted one to purchase food delicacies from, and has acquired the necessary permits and information to carry on. She has learned of who is in charge on the ship, and has learned the steps to take to get on board without undo suspicion.

Easily, she sells the officers her goods, and asks to bring the food to the galley below. She is led by a crew member who also holds the cause of the Providers as his own and has told SyBell that AnNoon is on board. He takes her to the captive's hold and covers for her as she gets AnNoon's attention. She tells AnNoon that the group of six is there and are going to follow the ship to DaMada and will be in touch with him. She lists the names of the six, RaYell, ChoZen, ThistleDown and the others. AnNoon is overjoyed as he hears the news as SyBell leaves, for she must go to avoid suspicion. AnNoon's heart leaps to think RaYell is close and that he is not alone there. Others are close by and devising a plan to help him escape. Now AnNoon relaxes and stays open to what will transpire next.

SyBell has returned to the group and has informed them of what occurred. She also has heard that the ship will depart that day and that they must either attempt to retrieve him before the departure or wait until the ship has arrived at DaMada.

Now the others have heard that the Elder's troops are stationed everywhere, incognito, and that they have placed guards all around and on the ship—that the ability to get AnNoon will require secrecy and cunning along with use of the crew member on board who is in sympathy. He has stated his willingness to help, and has told SyBell that he will do all that is possible to release AnNoon.

Within the hour though, the ship has departed, and the six are now faced with the challenge of rescuing AnNoon from DaMada. ChoZen turns to the group and asks them to each turn to guidance to find out how they should proceed. And so the group, sanctuaried in the woods, spends time, each one turning inward, and seeking next steps from the spiritual dimension.

Now the plan evolves with PeTros being sent out to find a boat capable of maneuvering the six to the forsaken island. The departure must be at night and must be from a point outside the main harbor. The rugged coast line with its curved and craggy shore, will be surveyed by TyMeros and an inconspicuous departure point will be located. Together, PeTros and TyMeros will arrange for the boat to be brought there and kept out of sight.

The Provider network and the spiritual guides working in tandem with the six now unfold next steps to take, and a boat is located and brought to the departure point. The six are told that they should leave that night, and will arrive in DaMada at dawn's light. The horses and supplies are placed in trust with Providers, and that evening the six silently slip through the woods to the awaiting boat, and head out to sea. The rig is small, but fitted with sails and with all that is necessary for them to make the journey to arrive by morning light.

ThistleDown has had boating experience and handles the boat without difficulty. The six now know that what lies ahead will entail great danger, and also great stealth, for they will be entering a place of treachery and harshness. Their resolve and their reliance on guidance places them open to receive input and to trust that what is heard will prove most helpful to them and to all.

Chapter 14

We now are at a point where the six are in a position of expectancy. They are also in a position of joining with their guides, and have placed their greater mission as the guidepost, the lighthouse, for their actions.

They have no knowledge of how the events will unfold, nor how this all fits into the larger purpose—to advance the Provider class into freedom. They have enough experience to know that they are joined with the mighty hierarchy on the next plane, and that they are not embarking on something that will not be able to be done. Without the experience that they had gained in living out from guidance, they would not have had the confidence to proceed. The backlog of experience in an unfolding that proved most helpful to all, has shored them up in their belief and their resolve to follow.

As the waves whip up as a strong wind unfurls its blustery force, the six have one intention in mind, to get An-Noon free and to return home again. They know that much more is unfolding, but focus is needed on the task at hand. And so, as the light of morning dawns, the gray rocky mass of DaMada is seen in the mist ahead. ThistleDown lowers the sail and the men row the boat along the shore to find a place to moor.

Soon a break in the rocky cliffs just big enough for a boat landing is found. ChoZen and ThistleDown and the others pull into the small spot and haul the boat behind a rocky ledge. There, hidden from direct view behind the ledge, is a foot path that leads to a cave-like structure and would provide the group a place to rest for a while. The simple food supplies are shared, as the six fall asleep easily, so weary from an all night journey.

It is RaYell who wakes up and is eager to get moving again. She notices that the cave has what looks like a tunnel that is not high enough to stand up in, but could be navigated by crawling. Cobwebs and debris line the entrance, but are easily cleared away to reveal a seemingly narrow but passable tunnel through the cliffs. She awakens ChoZen and together they ask guidance if this is the route to take. They are answered in the affirmative, and all are awakened and the movement through begins.

The six have no knowledge of where the tunnel will take them, but each event that has occurred so far seems to be like a blueprint for them—and so trust has increased and expectancy is high. Therefore, when the hour-long journey through the small tunnel lands them in the tall brush behind dark and gray prison walls, they are not surprised. A prayer of gratitude is offered up silently by each one and there in the tall grasses and underbrush, the group hunkers down for next steps.

ChoZen observes that the prison entrance must be on the other side as the fortress-like structure has only barred windows high on the upper stories. It is decided that ChoZen and RaYell will circle around the building to assess what is there and to ascertain possible ways to proceed. As the two come into view of the front side, they see that the sea does not allow for a harbor, rather ships are moored out to sea and barges are in place to transport the goods to shore.

There appear to be prisoners working behind fenced areas. Guards stand in towers overlooking these areas and at the gate where the barged goods are brought into the prison. As the two watch from the periphery, they see that there are entrances at each side behind the fenced areas where prisoners enter and leave. There seem to be shifts of prisoners going in and out at certain times. Some are guarded one to one, and others are seemingly left to go in and out at will. The fence is impenetrable with torturous barbed wire across the top.

Now the two return to the others with the information. The task of rescuing AnNoon seems impossible. Now they turn inward and ask guidance what to do and soon ChoZen sees that the best approach seems to be entering the prison concealed amongst the goods that are barged from the ship at sea.

SyBell remembers that the sailor that helped her told her that a trip is made to DaMada almost every day. It is noted that the ship is there late in the day. The group now return to the cave through the tunnel and plan the rescue. As the evening light fades, the six rest and recuperate. Who should board the ship and how should the rescue occur? It is agreed that more observation is needed, and that tomorrow they will return to the tall grasses in the periphery, and see what more information they can gain.

Before sleeping, the group makes a circle, holding hands and offering gratitude that spirit helpers are there with them. They feel the presence strongly, and their confidence builds as the mighty transcendent joins with them in their minds and hearts. "We're not alone in this," ChoZen says, and the others agree. The wild wind of DaMada whips outside the cave but peace is felt within.

Chapter 15

As the morning light dawns, the group quietly makes their way through the tunnel to the grassy areas outside the prison walls. They will split up into three groups. RaYell and SyBell will move to the front, ChoZen and Thistle-Down to the right side and TyMeros and PeTros to the left. They will pay attention to comings and goings, guard shifts beginning and ending, and especially any sight of AnNoon in the prison work areas. They know that he knows they are there and know that he will be planning, too. Communication must take place somehow.

Meanwhile, AnNoon has been placed in a cell on the main floor. Viewed as a benign prisoner, he has not been placed in top security, and is left most of the time to himself. He has been told that he will be working in the mornings, breaking rocks and loading them on carts to be used for ongoing building of the fortress structure.

AnNoon has been in constant guidance and is aware that the six are on the island. He is aware that escape will be soon and is alert to all events that occur in the prison. His intention clears the path and he is ready for quick and deliberate moves as that is called for. He is aware that he is not alone in this, and that he will be given what he needs to proceed. As the morning light dawns, AnNoon wonders if this will be the day. He is ready and he is waiting.

The prisoners line up for their morning meal of bread and gruel, and then are herded out the door to the work areas. Some are old and have been there for dozens of years. Most who come die on DaMada. Many have accepted their fate and have become mere shadows of their former selves. Weak and silent, they follow the rules of the prison and have shortened lives there.

AnNoon scans the grassy areas as he breaks up the rocks. The heavy iron mallets clang in the wind. He moves closer to the fence, looking up as often as possible, peering into the horizon. Did he see something move there? Was there someone in the grass by the waterfront? Was that a head popping up? Was that RaYell? His heart leaped for joy as he saw the face, if only for a moment, of his beloved.

RaYell, overjoyed, hugged SyBell. “I saw him, I saw him!” she whispered. “He’s right there, right inside that fence—there by the front edge—see him?” SyBell nodded. Together, they hugged in glee, knowing that soon he would be with them safe and secure. But how could they get him?

Now as the six returned to the cave, RaYell and SyBell shared their great joy at having seen AnNoon and with RaYell sure that he had seen her.

“Now we know that at mid morning AnNoon is out in the work yard,” ChoZen said. “We know that he knows we’re here, and that we are working on a plan. We’ve got to get into that prison some way.”

PeTros said that he observed that the guards changed shifts at mid day. For a few minutes the guards do not focus on the prison yard, but are engaged in chatting with each other. Perhaps a message could be given AnNoon at that point if he would still be in the yard working, passed through the fence. But what would the message say?

ChoZen turned inward and asked for guidance right then and there and was told this. “Tell AnNoon that he will be given a chance to work in the prison kitchen making the tuber drink. Tell AnNoon that you will gain entrance to the kitchen and that the escape will happen there, soon. Be ready. Let SyBell give AnNoon the message as she brings goods to the kitchen for the prisoner’s meal. She will get the chance to speak to him directly. Tell her to contact the ship's mate who helped her and is in 'the know.' She will be allowed to bring goods to the kitchen and to the prisoners. Trust here."

The next morning, the six filed through the tunnel to the grassy areas in front of the prison. A ship had docked a way out and barges were bringing in huge piles of tubers to be made into drink and food. SyBell thought she recognized the mate that was on the barge as the one who had befriended her—who had promised to help. When the other mate had gone to get the transport to bring it to the barge, SyBell called out to him. He immediately recognized her and beckoned her forward. She ran to him and hid behind the pile of tubers on the barge. She explained to him what they were up to, and he said he would get her into the kitchen claiming she was a scullery maid on the ship and helped with kitchen duties and other things.

When the transport came, no questions were asked, and SyBell rode along with the two into the prison gates to the kitchen. A simple explanation to the guards was all that was needed, as many thought a woman with a man from the Provider class was common. SyBell in her work clothes and, dirty they were, passed as a companion of sorts.

SyBell told the guard that she knew a recipe for making the tuber drink that was known far and wide for its flavor. It required a special ingredient that only she knew. Now the kitchen cook overheard this and asked her to tell him the secret. She replied that she could only show him and that she would need to come back tomorrow. The chief cook agreed and seemed eager to have a new recipe to add to his list. He was a noted tuber expert and wanted to increase any knowledge he could.

As SyBell left the kitchen, her intent was to get An-Noon's attention and tell him of her plan. She noticed him behind the fenced work area and as she passed nearby, she saw that the guards had turned to talk to each other during shift change, as PeTros had said. She got AnNoon's attention while the mate whom she was with covered for her as he talked to the guard. She told AnNoon that she would be in the kitchen tomorrow morning, and that a rescue would be attempted—to pay attention—and be ready to move fast. All of this happened without a hitch, and SyBell returned to the group inconspicuously, as she left the prison grounds and headed into the tall grasses.

There was much jubilation as the six reveled in the success of getting a message to AnNoon, and of SyBell's success in gaining entrance to the kitchen. Now the group had to devise a plan for AnNoon's escape, and so back at the cave they turned inward again to guidance.

“AnNoon will be in the kitchen cleaning the tubers. He will be asked to unload a pile from the transport and will be asked to bring them to the kitchen, armload after armload. After the first few armloads, he will not be noticed as much. The mate who is helping will cover AnNoon with a large basket after unloading the last armload, and will tell the driver to go to the barges to get another load.

The guards and kitchen staff will be so engrossed and charmed by SyBell's instruction for the new recipe, they will not notice much. When AnNoon reaches the shore, ChoZen will be there to guide him to the grassy area and to the cave. SyBell will stay with the kitchen staff and no connection will be made between her and AnNoon. After a few hours in the kitchen, she will go back to the ship with the mate and will return to HeadRock from there. The rest will head back in the boat at nightfall.”

With gratitude and humility the group laid down to rest and knew that strength and fortitude would be necessary

the next day. But they were not alone there and many on the spiritual planes were there also. The escape would go without a problem, and soon the six were reunited in Head-Rock and were on the journey home. AnNoon felt his heart overflowing with love for RaYell and for the five whom had risked so much for him. The journey home involved retracing their path and listening to guidance to direct them. They were eager to return to their families and to bring some resolution to the trip.

The group knew that they were still being looked for, and knew that life now would be filled with challenges, as they still had a promise to fulfill to the Providers there and to the Questors, all who would benefit greatly by, and would experience radical changes by, learning of, and coming into, deliberate and meaningful guidance.

Chapter 16

Here let us take stock of the situation that our characters find themselves in. They have returned from a harrowing journey and rescued AnNoon. They have endured hardship and uncertainty along the way. They have leaned on guidance to point the way, and they have brought the mindset of Oneness to their endeavor.

But they are aware that their mission has just begun, for the people of AnDramada are caught in slavery to a mindset that limits and reduces them to the dictates of a few. The mission has enlarged and felt as worthy of great intention and effort there. The vision is clear and the means to achieve that vision is known. But the working out of that vision and that mission is what lies ahead. Now the fatigue that has accompanied the group is being lifted and a sense of renewal is felt.

The group splits up now and AnNoon, RaYell and ChoZen head for HonDorf. Still traveling at night, they have escaped any notice from those who might be searching for them. It is with great joy that the family is reunited and JoHan now seems taller and more mature. Could this be the little boy they left? He is calm and thoughtful and filled with youthful enthusiasm, sharing his news of life with OrDell and DillBert. But the arms of his mother brings tears to his eyes as he cries in relief at having them home and together again. As the reunion passes and life settles down to normal again, AnNoon and ChoZen begin planning the next phase of their mission. They have set up meetings with the Providers throughout the coming days, and will listen to guidance in how to proceed.

The news they have heard is that many more have turned to guidance now, and there is peace amongst the people, but the dictates of the Questers has become more harsh and punitive. Without warning, the demands on the people accelerate. More is expected of them and allegiance is now required more openly. Pledges and affirmations to the Questers and to the values of the AnDramadian culture are made each day, and Overseers threaten those who are laggard in their response. It feels as if the noose is tightening there, as the Questors feel threatened by the people as they seem calm and not fearful, as fearful is the response the Questors want.

And so ChoZen and AnNoon know that they must persist in their efforts to gain the attention of the minds and hearts of those who would enslave. They know that it is only through direct personal experience that the individuals who make up the Elite will ever change.

Now as the days proceed one after the other, ChoZen and AnNoon go forth to the haven houses sharing and teaching the good news of direct connection to the spiritual plane. It is widely known that the two are heretics to the culture of the Questers, but to the Providers, the two are loved and acclaimed as truth sayers and teachers paving the way for freedom and new life for those on AnDramada. The quiet way of inner guidance goes undetected by the Questers, and the miracle of life unfolds with new joy and invigoration.

On the spiritual plane, those who are working with AnNoon and ChoZen have set to work to bring to the two, much needed help. They have seen the progression of a people becoming aware of their true inheritance as children of the Source and all that this means. Now they see that this planet is ready to evolve into its place in the universe and join the hierarchy there. This evolutionary step will bring AnDramada through the miasma of separation and into the awareness of Oneness with All.

The great celebration that is being planned for that time is underway, for it will not be long before the numbers on AnDramada who are aware, who connect, are greater than those who are unaware and who still live in separation.

It is a numbers game that is being played out there. And so, the guides who work with AnNoon and ChoZen know that the teaching to individuals and groups is important. Each one that freely turns inward and learns of what is so lovingly available is one more to add to the multitude, and one more to gain the inheritance so freely endowed there.

Chapter 17

Moving on in this tale of a planet moving into its connection to the Allness and to the hierarchy on the spiritual planes, there is much to explain and much to elaborate on. For the movement of this planet can be looked at as parallel to planet Earth. In many ways, there is a similarity and a movement that has as its objective, bringing the Earth into an awareness of its importance and its sovereignty as an equal party, an intrinsic and undivided aspect of the Whole.

Planet Earth is now lessening the density of illusion that it is separate and unconnected. It is becoming aware that there is nothing that operates solo and without ramifications to all else. The ignorance of a people that sees itself as without connection to Source is weakening, as evidence mounts that Earth is intrinsically part of a Universal Whole and as important as anything else there is. Here lies the crux of the delusion, the miasma that infiltrates the minds and hearts of many.

Soon though, this belief in separation will cease, as evidence mounts that cannot be denied and cannot be refuted. This evidentiary unfolding is rapidly approaching the point where those who open to the truth of existence outnumber those who still are walled off in separation.

As the clearing proceeds, those who do not want to let go of the elite status they have given themselves as controllers of their own fate, will rebel. They will use whatever means possible to dissuade the awareness of connection to Source, to the intelligent movement of life that is beyond thinking, so that they will remain controllers in their own minds. However, as light follows darkness and day follows night, the shining forth of truth will prevail.

For Minds that are joined with Source, open then to move forward from that joining, which will usher in the radical shift of the ages.

Now will come forth huge and wonderful waves of washing clean the eons of ignorance. Now will come forth the fresh air and exhilaration of a people free to move from guidance into a forever movement of light and love and progression as beings coming from Source and joining the other planes of existence. How wonderful this will be and what a mighty outcry of jubilation will sound as the multitudes throughout the universe who are aware, celebrate with their brothers and sisters at last. Now the true movement of a people will be felt in all its glory.

Chapter 18

It is time to return to our story for there is much to tell, and much to learn. As the days pass by, the people who have found guidance start to understand that change is not brought about by force. Rather they have come to understand that change is a ‘yielding into’ what each has come to know from his/her spiritual guide. This releasing of the forceful way, ushers in a nurturing way to each other, plants and animals, and all things on the planet. There is an air of jubilation, for at last the subservience felt is replaced with the knowledge of the dignity of equal beings in relationship to Source—all having infinite value and meaning. Strength to get work done and to joy in that work is felt.

It is in small ways that the Questers are impacted at first. The noticeable change in Providers seems to bring to communities, invigoration unseen before. But JuStonian and the Elders have not given up their search for AnNoon and ChoZen. They have offered a reward to anyone who would turn them in, and this reward is immediate movement up to the Quester class.

This would bring with it property and income for that one and his/her family. Far and wide this information has been spread and so it is curious to JuStonian and the others that no one has come forth to inform. It is known far and wide that AnNoon and ChoZen, criminals of the state and wanted for the gravest of travesties, that of furthering heresy among the people, now will be put to death when found. Still no one has come forth with information.

The mystery of AnNoon’s disappearance from DaMada infuriates the Elders and has increased the fever to capture and kill him.

The Questers have couched this as treason. Cunningly, they appear as loyal and duty bound to take care of AnDramada. They have surrounded the Need to Kill Orders with affirmations of affection and loyalty to Motherland AnDramada and to her bountiful gifts. AnNoon and ChoZen are seen as betrayers of all that is good and right, of the rational mindset and the scientific method that has made the land and people what they are.

The Elders have begun re-indoctrination to the people and have now come up with arguments against inner guidance. They say that AnNoon has become deranged and like a lunatic, espousing things that are demonic in nature. They assert that ChoZen has followed his delusional ways and lives from a mind bent on betrayal of the people. They assert that there is grave danger to the children as they might look on them as heroes. They tell the people to be on guard and to reaffirm commitment to the scientific method, morning, noon and night.

This constant indoctrination echoes throughout the land, in the schools, observatories and neighborhoods. But a vast number of Providers have learned to turn inward for answers, and the quiet, gentle way of guidance has convinced them that this way to discover truth rings true.

The drum beat from the Elders intent on killing AnNoon and ChoZen creates an environment in which nastiness abounds. That is, inquisitors are everywhere. The tension mounts daily. Questers look at their Providers with distrust and interrogate them. Cruelty unseen before is appearing. AnNoon and ChoZen and the others know that there is an uprising that will occur because it is almost impossible for daily life to continue on. Will those who have turned to guidance be killed also? Will their connection to AnNoon and ChoZen bring them to the point of mass genocide?

There is a fear that this could happen in the back of everyone's mind. This horrible thought brings AnNoon and Cho-Zen, together with ThistleDown and the others, to a group meeting at one of the haven houses.

The tension has built to a point where something must be done or a decision must be made as to how to proceed. It is clear that guidance has always called for a peaceful way of living and a loving way to each and every thing, and yet life is getting more difficult for all. What should they do? What should they do?

On the spiritual plane many see the situation that is occurring on the planet. They will now move with great intention to aid the people there. They will bring to bear on the situation much needed help and will provide a way to proceed that will calm the situation and allow for the healing power of living love to put all things right.

As all things are brought out of chaos into harmony with this energy of living love, which is in all and infuses all things, it is only to bring this to the awareness of the Questers, the Elite and the Elders there that the problems will dissipate. And so, through the meeting there in the haven house, this strategy is brought forth.

Chapter 19

JuStonian, walking along a path in the woods, is tense these days, as he sees shifts among the Providers. He is tense and angry that his leadership has placed him in a position where he must play ‘the heavy.’ He has never really liked to enforce the rules and yet he believes them to be the bedrock for his planet to survive on. He has known of the history of ignorance and superstition in his land and wants only for the people to use logic, reason and scientific proof for living. This has allowed for structure to be had and predictability to be experienced throughout the generations.

Now he is faced with heretics—and especially painful, is that he chose that one—AnNoon, whom he had held in such high regard—high enough to honor him as the chosen Quester—the highest of honors to be had.

JuStonian was dismayed and disturbed as the times seemed so turbulent and in such shambles. He was having health problems, too. Now that he was older, his energy was flagging and medications did not seem to help. The others were asking him to think about relinquishing some duties, but it was not time yet—not now that all this had happened.

Sadly, JuStonian glanced at the sky. The Org did not even seem to cheer him as it usually did. He knew that the Elders and the other Questers were as sincere as he was in insisting on bringing the heretics to justice, but it was bothersome to all to be in the place of the heavy ones. Little warmth was felt these days from others, and the future seemed uncertain. JuStonian seemed to have lost a grip on things and his decision-making seemed inadequate, though always, he used those critical thinking skills that he had been trained to use from early childhood. He wanted to stop in the inn and spend the evening drinking the tuber drink. He wanted to blot out all that was unfolding there on An-Dramada.

He saw a log bench under a tree on the path and decided to sit down and rest for a while. Closing his eyes he thought back to the meeting he had with ChoZen and An-Noon and of AnNoon's claim that there was a better way to make decisions—to know what to do.

JuStonian thought about the people shouting and the words, guidance—guidance ringing in his ears. Guidance, he thought, what a funny concept. What did AnNoon say—to just stop thinking for a while and let everything go? Let there be a stillness in one's mind? JuStonian leaned against the tree trunk and relaxed. Quietly, he released the thoughts that were in his mind and there, for an instant, his mind was blank—quiet—like a still lake. All was peaceful.

At last, a moment without the tormenting thoughts that had just previously been there, haunting him and hounding him. A moment's break in the torment. He breathed quietly—one breath—two breaths, slowly he let go of all cares and concerns. Again he breathed slowly and deeply, quietly centering himself. The peace was refreshing to him and he felt a sense of renewal. "This can be explained with rational thought," he said to himself, "just meditation—nothing else going on here."

He glanced up and noticed that he must have been there for quite a while as the Org had now dropped down lower in the sky. Strangely rejuvenated, he walked home without needing or wanting to stop. Now he just wanted to sleep in his own bed—to rest and sleep.

Chapter 20

At home, JuStonian climbed the stairs to his loft and settled into bed. Gazing at the stars which shone through a skylight, he remembered his quiet time at the tree moments ago. He wondered if he should try it again as the peace he had experienced was so inviting to him. He wondered if shutting down his thinking was shutting down his most precious asset. “Was there danger in this?” he thought.

But the remembered peace was what he was after at that point. Now he shut his eyes and again released all thought. He again allowed his mind to be as a quiet lake, rippleless in the night air. A question kept haunting him though, and would not go away. “Is there someone there in my consciousness?” he wondered. “Is there really someone there?”

“Yes, JuStonian, I am here for you.” Startled, JuStonian bolted upright. Now he began a chant to the Org and vowed allegiance to ‘The Quest’ and to the AnDramadian way. The incident left him momentarily shaken, but he dismissed what he heard as a moment of delusion to be denigrated and forgotten.

The next morning as JuStonian was preparing for the day, he remembered last evening and thought about the clear voice he had heard “Yes, Justonian, I am here for you,” the voice said. “I am here for you.”

Now JuStonian knew that a tiny crack in his belief system had occurred. He knew he must work hard to recite allegiance to Questerhood and to the scientific method. His fervent and methodical recitation and his vows of allegiance were accompanied by a gnawing, a curiosity, that would not leave him. All of this was a private matter, thought JuStonian, no need to tell anyone as it would soon disappear. He knew that what he energized in his mind would grow and what he ignored would be released—this was scientific. So the chants to the Org and the recitations took on a bigger place in his life now.

But the gnawing would not cease. “Was this really a delusion? What would happen if I tried it again?” he thought. And so, the next weekend, on a night when he would be able to be home alone without interruption, he again laid down and went into the silence, releasing the thoughts. A part of him felt as if he was committing a crime, yet who would know, he thought—a private matter—a matter of one’s own choosing.

“That’s right, JuStonian, it is a matter of your own choosing. No one can force this on you. It is a matter of your own free will.” Quietly, JuStonian listened. He felt motionless in his bed, wanting to engage but fearful also.

“Is there someone there?” he asked.

“Indeed, I am here for you, I am your inner guidance.” Now JuStonian asked the question, “What do you want from me?”

“I want to provide guidance to you from the spiritual dimension of yourself, your greater Wholeness. I cannot manipulate myself into your awareness, nor cajole, nor seduce you to come to me for help, you must come of your own free will. It is your birthright as a child of Source to have free will which is held inviolable, as without question, to honor and allow fully.”

Now JuStonian felt he had enough and so began focusing his thoughts on the busy day he had tomorrow as he would be meeting again with the Elders to report on re-indoctrination techniques and how things were progressing along this line. So many questions to be answered and so many problems to be solved. How would they handle the growing disregard of the Providers for non-allegiance to 'The Quest'? How could they bring them back without harshness and cruelty? The very nature of rational thinking was to teach and persuade through reason and intellectual means, not harsh physical means. What a dilemma they were in and how could they ever get things to where they used to be. Could not even tradition hold sway here?

Chapter 21

The tension is building and the Providers are looking to inner guidance to find a way. Now the underground meetings are held more frequently, and the groups are getting larger. It has been decided with spiritual guidance that the meetings will bring much needed help to assuage the tensions and harsh circumstances of life on AnDramada.

It is decided that a portion of each meeting will be used for speaking through as guidance leads. Now this phenomenon is truly available to all those who are willing to participate. Speaking through is useful in groups because it allows for communication to be heard from various guides in response to one another and heard by all. It is a method of arriving at solutions that involves group response, and is valid to be used in situations where a whole group consciousness is needed to solve a problem, or move in a direction that will provide assistance to all.

Now the movement will not occur if all do not benefit, and so the guides look at the whole of the situation before offering next steps. The spiritual dimension views the whole situation that those are involved in from the viewpoint of the total unfolding of a people there. And so, this process is important to pay attention to. Many know of this as a true principle of spirituality. Now the group begins group guidance and this is what is heard.

One woman indicates that she is being told to bring about change through quiet acts of love to the Questers. She is told that quiet acts of kindness will do more good than all the teaching that they may hear.

Another Provider says that her guidance is telling her to hold the Questers in her mind as sisters and brothers, and to look on their harshness as merely ignorance to be ignored there. The group agrees that they are not to become militant in their lives, for this would bring death and destruction to many. There is a resolve to continue being kind to the Questers, but also to ask for guidance at each encounter to bring about change. This is the only way for real change to occur, for it is only with the involvement of the spiritual dimension that radical shifting can occur.

Now the group departs with renewed vision of what they must do in their daily lives, and that patience and persistence are called for, that the movement will occur as they allow for guidance each and every moment.

AnNoon and ChoZen have a new understanding of what resolve and dedication mean, and hold mightily to the intention of freeing the Providers there on AnDramada. The mission is known, and the means to fulfill that mission is through guidance. They know that the working through and the unfolding must occur in the time frame of those on the spiritual dimension, and that their job is to stay open and curious and ready to move as they are so guided.

Chapter 22

JuStonian moves quietly these days as he has had several more sessions with his guide. He still finds the whole thing disturbing and would like to forget it. But he has a curious nature, and is at the same time, intrigued. He has discovered that the Voice he hears has given him sound advice regarding his health, and also, how to conduct the meetings of the Elders with more aplomb, more confidence. He has found that he is more rested and peaceful and more open to hear what others are saying. The re-indoctrination seems to be going well, for there is no hostility from the Providers—only a calm acceptance, or at least a civility that is different from what he had noticed before.

Wanting to spend some extended time alone, he has told the others that he will be gone for a few days rest, to the mountains near HonDorf, to an isolated retreat center he knows of. JuStonian longs for these days, as he seems to have developed a need to be alone, to find peace in quiet and in the beauty of nature. He hires a transport and sends a messenger ahead to notify the center of his arrival there soon.

Two nights before he leaves, JuStonian is told by guidance, that his trip will be a transformative blessing to him, that it will bring him into renewal such that he has never seen before. JuStonian dismisses this as fantasy, but nonetheless, it brings a hopeful feeling to him.

He is looking forward to soaking in the hot springs that HonDorf is noted for, and the healing waters to penetrate into his old bones and allow for relief from the aches and pains he has endured. He is looking forward to walks in the forested areas and to basking in the beauty of the Org in the cool mountain air. He has vowed to bring no paperwork, nor leadership obligations with him, and will eat simple and healthful meals. But before his departure, he will visit the Provider Camps by the creek to see the process of indoctrination and the rallies which have as their main purpose, recitation and affirmation of the AnDramadian way, the scientific way.

Walking down the path he sees the hovel that ChoZen had lived in. Curious, he steps inside. No one had occupied the place since ChoZen had become a heretic. JuStonian looks at the table and chairs, the wooden bed and the floor, wooden planks with a woven reed rug over it. He sits at the table to rest a minute, thinking back to the time when ChoZen had been demoted to the Provider class. He was espousing telepathy—that’s right, JuStonian thought, it was telepathy.

Out of the corner of his eye, JuStonian thought he saw something coming up from the floor. Pulling the rug back he sees a loose plank and pulls up the end. There, neatly stacked, are books—journals they look like. “What are these?” he asks himself. He puts the journals into a shoulder bag he finds on a peg on the door, and slings it over his shoulder. These he will investigate later, but now he must return home, for tomorrow he will leave for his trip to HonDorf.

That night JuStonian feels a strange momentum, not excitement exactly, but a forward and hopeful feeling, some deep feeling he vaguely remembered having as a child, as if the future held all things to be possible. Now he fell asleep easily and awoke the next morning with a smile on his face and a strange longing.

Chapter 23

Who would know that this day, life would change for JuStonian. Who would know that the events that would occur would open the door, not only on a changed life for him, but a changed life for the people on AnDramada and for the hierarchy that exists throughout the universe. Who would know that the simple act of releasing a mindset would usher in radical shifting of a people and a planet. Who would know!

That day JuStonian left his abode and climbed into the transport without hesitation, taking along only a few things. At the last moment, he slung the bag from ChoZen's hovel over his shoulder, not knowing why exactly, but just doing it. The day was overcast with an occasional breakthrough of the Org, lovely in its reddish hue. JuStonian leaned back against the seat leaving the driver to his task. He was at peace and felt again that strange longing that had haunted him that morning. Now JuStonian closed his eyes and allowed for the clearing of his mindset, his thinking, and opened to the deep peace that he had come to know. Sheepishly, he asked, "Are you there?"

"Indeed, JuStonian, I am here for you—have never left you." JuStonian wondered—what was it again I wanted to ask?

"You wanted to know about the longing you feel and I will tell you. You see, dear one, you long for home. You long for connection to family, and you long for the deep love of your Source. As you have lived as a separate one, you have cut off the lifeline, the awareness of who and what you are. You are much more, JuStonian, you are truly much more! You are a direct inheritor of the Source and the nature of that Source is living love, full, complete, unending. It is your birthright JuStonian, your true birthright. This awareness is pushing you to open up to accept it and to embrace it as the truth of you.”

JuStonian looked out at the passing landscape and felt his heart fill with feeling. Now the tears fell down his cheeks as he wept quietly. He felt the love and saw that this love was who he truly was. Deeply he wept, and as the awareness became clear to him, his heart filled with joy. He felt at one with the sky, the trees, the Org, the driver, the transport, the horses—everything was this living love. Energy, vibrant energy, that had meaning and this meaning was love—magnificent—all encompassing love—beyond words—complete love and nothing but love—that was the only thing he could say—complete love—nothing missing! Now he knew that he had been wrong. That his foundation of belief in science, his belief in only that which could be seen and measured, was wrong. That there was so much more to life than what he had thought.

Now JuStonian asked his guidance, “What am I to do?” and was told, “It will all become clear to you, dear one. No need to worry. I am with you and those of us who exist as your greater Wholeness on the spiritual plane will work with you. Now your mission is to bring the planet into awareness of what you have come to know. The steps to take will be given you and you will have what it takes to do this. Remember, this is a universal happening of the greatest importance.”

Chapter 24

As JuStonian approached the retreat center with its large log lodge and its bank of fir trees in the hills beyond, he sensed that now he would need to somehow convert the Elders to a new way of thinking. He feared that he may, himself, be placed at risk of banishment, and also, that the whole of AnDramada would be in an uproar. The civility and the order of the people would now be replaced with unrest and turmoil. The people would feel uncertain of their roles and their responsibilities. He now saw that change was inevitable, and that the citizens would have to go through this. He wondered if he would be looked at as a betrayer and a heretic.

Then he thought of AnNoon and tears came to his eyes. AnNoon was telling him the truth of existence. He was acting out of love and out of knowing when he called for the Elders to go within. How he wanted to talk to AnNoon and let him know what he had discovered. How he wanted to share his own experience with him.

The day was fast coming to a close and JuStonian decided that a quiet soak in the pool behind the lodge would be the perfect way to end a day of life-changing experience. He felt deeply grateful and refreshed as he allowed the wonderful heat to penetrate his body, cleaning and refreshing and relaxing him. That night as he settled down in his bed, he again wept with gratitude. Life now would be radically different for JuStonian, and, as if a veil had been lifted, he saw clearly for the first time.

The next morning, JuStonian saw the shoulder bag laying on the table and decided to look through the books—journals they were, he noted. He saw that the entries were written by ChoZen, and that they were records of something—what was it? Now he read—Sent telepathic message to eastern galaxy. Date and time were noted. Response time was also noted as the entries revealed there was clear evidence of intelligent response. Pages and pages of these entries and pages and pages of what looked like feedback from someone—who was it? Then JuStonian realized it was coming from ChoZen’s own guide. Without a doubt, evidence of intelligent responding life was there.

JuStonian’s heart leaped for joy and as he realized that ‘The Quest’ was over, and that this was clear proof that the universe held intelligent and responding life.

Now the immensity of what he was looking at was felt. Centuries of obfuscation and rebuttal from a planet refusing to acknowledge that it was joined with intelligent life were fading away, as ice melts from a lake, the lies and ignorance vanished, replaced by reality and truth and a desire to know those other beings better.

Now he knew that the family he was longing for was this universal family that wanted so to join with AnDramada, and herald in a new beginning as members of the Universal Hierarchy there. How wonderful and profound this all was, and how eager JuStonian was to share it with his friends, the other Questers and the Elites. How would they respond? He would go forward with it anyway and trust that his guidance would help him “each step of the way,” he said, “each step of the way.”

Chapter 25

Now JuStonian left his room and proceeded to take a walk in the forested path behind the lodge. He knew that the path led into the village of HonDorf and to the water wheel in the center of town. This would be a great stopping point for him, and a chance to see village life in this quiet northern outpost.

The air was particularly crisp and clean this morning and the sound of birds filled the air. The Org in all its beauty shone down, casting reddish hues all around. “How beautiful,” he thought, “how beautiful this planet is.” His legs picked up speed as he felt the energy of his body increase with the activity. He said to himself, “I have never been so filled with joy as I am now.”

Meanwhile, AnNoon and RaYell and little JoHan had decided to go into town that day, also. There was a festival that day, celebrating HonDorf and its ancient ancestry, a memorial of sorts, for those who had gone before, a happy memorial. DillBert and OrDell also were attending but had left hours earlier. ChoZen had chosen to spend the day alone, for it had been some time since he had time to himself. He decided to walk the forest path that led to the village, and meet up later with the group for a light evening meal there in the village. Plans had been made and every one was looking forward to the day.

As JuStonian turned southerly toward the village, he saw a figure approaching. It must be a Provider, he thought. ChoZen knew that the figure he saw was JuStonian.

Turning to run into the woods, he asked guidance what he should do. Without a pause the message was—go forward and trust—do not run. And, indeed, this is what ChoZen did. When JuStonian realized that it was ChoZen approaching he was overjoyed. Running forward he called out, “ChoZen, ChoZen—I have something to tell you—something wonderful!” Approaching each other ChoZen was surprised as JuStonian hugged him and circled.

“Listen to this. I have found out that there is inner guidance, ChoZen. You and AnNoon were right! We all have guides! ChoZen, I read your journals and I believe there is life out there. We are not alone.”

In disbelief, ChoZen looked at JuStonian. Was this a ploy to catch him? No, he was sincere, he was sincere! Together, the two walked along and JuStonian told him everything, knowing that he was talking to a kindred heart. Now the two embraced again, and tears filled ChoZen’s eyes. “We must tell AnNoon and RaYell, they will be thrilled!”

Now as the group met that evening, and as the news was shared and the shock of it all settled in, there was an awareness that all had the mission of sharing with the others on the planet, this wonderful news of connection.

JuStonian was fully on board with the mission and knew that his input and activity could help immensely. He also knew that only as they all turned to guidance could they allow for radical change to occur. They were the means for the spiritual ones to work through into the physical plane. It would take zeal, and dedication and persistence, but most of all it would take listening to what steps to take as given to them from the spiritual dimension. The movement was in the moment of connection, always.

Chapter 26

It is at this point that we will take a few moments to place the story in context of what is occurring on planet Earth. We will place the movement in terms of the unfolding that truly is occurring there. You see, those of us who are working with you on the spiritual plane are aware of the vast releasing of ignorance that is occurring at a rapid pace.

We see the many who have opened up to the more of them, and have allowed for the Voice for Truth to be heard. These ones are truly now measuring in the millions there and, as on AnDramada, it is a numbers game. For the movement ahead universally will be made as the majority opens to receive it.

You see, you are also part of a planetary hierarchy that exists and is waiting and longing for you to join with us. Planet Earth has long been in our vision as an infant that is ready to walk now, and ready to hold hands with her brothers and sisters and grow up. You have long been held hostage to ignorance which has limited your growth. But the ignorance of a planet that can no longer limit itself is being released there. It is truly a time of great joy for us as we anticipate the companionship of you knowing of our love for you and for our Source.

We can tell you that the Source of all of us is One and this Source is Mind and manifests as the energy of living love. Mightily this Mind of Oneness moves in and through all. You are included as a part of the Wholeness. It is wise to ponder this as you live. What does it mean to be One with the Mind of the Source? Well, it means much, so much for you. First, it means that you are not isolated and alone. Second, it means that you have a place of refuge, a place of security and a place of truth to turn to. We can tell you that this place of truth is known as the only place to find truth, for all else is based on separateness, so does not have the connection, the lifeline, the power to move in any way that will allow for radical transformation to occur.

You are truly meant to move into newness always, dear one, for it is a principle of your Source to live forever anew, renewed and unfolding with the creative energy of living love as your Source.

How wonderful to meditate on this and to think how profound this is—to live in newness—always unfolding dynamically new each and every moment. All is this newness and this energy of love. Let us return to our story and see how Source allows for transformation to unfold.

Chapter 27

How can JuStonian tell the Elders and the Elites that he has found guidance and that AnNoon was right? How can he share this? The masses of Questers are still convinced that the scientific mindset is the mindset to engage in. How can this seemingly impossible feat of changing a people to become open to receive that which cannot be seen and which cannot be measured be accomplished?

It is soon time for the Tuber Festival to occur again. So much has happened since the last one, and the Providers know that this year they cannot pledge allegiance to the An-Dramadian culture and to ‘The Quest.’

JuStonian must find a way to tell them without causing the Elders to banish him and hold him hostage. How can this occur? It is decided that JuStonian will return home after his few days of rest and continue to work with the Elites and the Elders, there. He will turn to guidance each day to take steps forward as he so hears. Now the others will continue on with their Provider meetings and with listening to their guidance.

JuStonian feels a mighty challenge ahead, but is told to trust that all will unfold perfectly. As he returns to his abode and to his loft, he gazes at the night sky. What a difference a few days have made. What a life changing difference! He has opened to receive this evening, and finds that his guidance is there as usual, ready to give him much needed help.

“JuStonian, we are with you there and we can tell you that you are held in the Mind of Source. We see the mission you have been given, and we can tell you that all will unfold perfectly for you. You are being guided each step of the way, so you must listen as events unfold. All is in the hands of the Source, of Mind, and will bring order out of chaos and forward movement out of stagnation. We would say get a good night sleep and tomorrow we will move forward there. Remember we are with you each step of the way.”

Now as JuStonian closes his eyes, a great sense of well being and peace is felt in his body and mind. “All is well,” he says to himself, “all is well.”

As the Org breaks through, the morning light suffuses the air with golden reddish hues, breathtakingly beautiful and felt as fresh and new to JuStonian. He turns inward and offers thanks for a brilliant new day and asks for guidance on how the day will best be used. He is told to allow for speaking through as he talks with others there. “Just be open and say what comes to you, but release thinking and come into knowing.”

Not sure what this means, JuStonian is willing to open to it. As he heads to the observatory office he wonders how this will unfold. There is something bothering him and he wonders what it is that is annoying him. He stops and quiets his mindset and asks, “What is it? What is it?”

“JuStonian, you are upset that you are limited in your ability to share and you want to tell others about the good news of direct connection. Now you are annoyed because you must be quiet or you will be looked at as a heretic. This is uncomfortable for you and feels as so limiting. You want to share there and you want to bring others up to speed—in the know—of what is truly available there for all. You feel faced with a task that seems impossible and you must trust here, dear one, you must trust. We can tell you that your task will be felt as truly doable as you open to receive. Let us stay open, dear one, stay open.”

Now JuStonian enters the observatory and is met with the Elders who are working there, and who want to talk with him about the upcoming ceremony at the Tuber Festival. It is time to choose a Quester to be the next protege and to open to how the Elders will deal with the new uninvovement of the people in the AnDramadian value system. So much to discuss, and the Elites and Elders are awaiting the meeting. JuStonian wonders what he can say to them and if he should choose this time to be quiet and let the others lead. As he seats himself in the council, he is asked how his time away was and if he feels refreshed and ready to work again.

“I had an experience,” he begins. “I had an experience that truly was unusual, friends. Now you will find this to be hard to believe, but I can tell you that it is true. You see, I now know that we must broaden our way of approaching things here on the planet. We must open to a new way to finding our truth. And I would suggest that this new technique be given to our new protege as a way to come into connection with possible life out there in the universe.”

“JuStonian, does this new way meet the standards of science that is necessary for the technique to be used?”

“Yes it does, because it can be used again and again and is repeatable with results certain. But it also is allowing for more of our Mind to be used. It is truly important that we realize that Mind is where connection happens. Mind is more than what we have thought my friends.”

“JuStonian, this sounds heretical to us.”

“Before you make a judgement, let me lay out the experiment that is proposed. I propose that all of you try this so that you will feel comfortable with it, and so that you will be able to endorse this as a new way to access life on other planets. Now you will feel most comfortable if you know that nothing harmful will come of this. Nothing harmful will occur. You see, I have met one who has tried this and has found verification of life out there. I have found one who has used the scientific method to uncover a vast and involved planetary system of life. A hierarchy, a Universal Hierarchy of which we are a part, but don't know it yet."

"Who is this one, JuStonian, who is this one?"

"His name will be revealed to you in time, but before that, I want to let you know that you are talking to one who has experienced this. You know me and you have trust in me. And so, I am asking you to proceed without judgement and do this experiment. Proceed with an open mind to something new."

As JuStonian lays out the steps to come into connection and to open to the spiritual dimension, he himself is joined, and so the words are words that are coming from the place of truth. Thus those who have released their thinking mind-set now feel into the truth as it is laid out to them. The meeting ends with many vowing to try to experiment at home that evening and to report back the next day.

There has been no charge of heretical thinking made, only a question or two was brought up, and the meeting was civil. With a grateful heart, JuStonian returns home that evening.

Chapter 28

Our scene changes as we look at the underlying principles of what is occurring here. For the need to put all of this in perspective is called for. We see that JuStonian has called upon his inner guidance to tell the others about Mind, and we see that the others have received the information without hostility. We see that the respect that the others had for JuStonian was a key in accepting what he had come to know. The need for forward movement was there and the call to open to receive was also there.

Now these ingredients are truly necessary for the forward movement to occur. For it is necessary that all the ingredients be in play for the transformational changes to occur. There must be a need, those who are ready to give, and those who are ready to receive. There must be an openness and a willingness, and there must be one who is connected to that place of transformation within.

All of these things were present at this meeting. There was a group of Elders looking for answers. There was a respected member who had the answers, and there was a deep need to know what path to take. We see that without any one of these ingredients movement would not have occurred.

How does this pertain to life on planet Earth now? We see a need for you to move forward into your planetary Wholeness. We see the time of growth there and we see the openness of a people ready to move forward. Many are connected to the spiritual dimension now and many are teaching—giving others the way.

Now is the time to open to receive this greatest news of the transformational way. For Mind envelopes the All.

Mind moves through and in all and has as its very nature, transformation. Making new and healing all with transforming love and light. What great news this is, and how wonderful for you to be in this time of awakening to the more of you that is there. I would encourage each and every one who is reading this book to realize and experiment with what is given here.

Now is the time of a new beginning on planet Earth and now is the time for you to awaken to your Wholeness, your Mind of your Source. You also will find that you are joined there and you are met with the multidimensional means to move lovingly forward. Now is the time, dear one, truly now is the time.

Chapter 29

JuStonian has broken the veil of entrenched thinking. He has allowed for newness to be brought forth, and he has penetrated the barrier of limited thinking. As the others now have agreed to try a new way to use Mind, a sudden shift in perception will occur. Now no longer will there be such an entrenched mindset there. And so, in the days that follow, other Elders are met with their guides and slowly Mind begins the transformational experience. For it will take time to truly let go of all that has been so entrenched there. But as the numbers of those grow who are in connection to their right mind, their Mind of Wholeness, transformation will occur.

The story continues now and we see that the Elders now look into the heavens at night with a new eye for seeing. They ask that Mind show them the truth, and now many are seeing movement there, with the naked eye. No longer dependent on the telescopes, but rather clearly, with the naked eye, are these movements made visible. Now the Elders know that this Tuber Festival must be different from the others, that no longer can they rely solely on the past ways of doing things.

The growing confidence in another dimension spreads throughout the land and a new radiance is seen in the people. A hopeful and joyful people respond eagerly to the news that the Elders have moved away from the old ways. How wonderful this is to the people there! As the Tuber Festival approaches, JuStonian and the others have decided that instead of choosing one who will be the protege this year, they will open 'Questing' up to many more. They will encourage a broad involvement of the people in the Quest.

They have decided to allow the people to configure how this will unfold. No longer will they dictate allegiance to a mindset that no longer applies. Can this change happen without throwing out the very way the structure there is? Will the Providers refuse to care for the Questers?

JuStonian ponders these things, and knows that the life on AnDramada that was known, is now over. A great equality now will take place. Some of those who have cherished their power and control the most will have a hard time with this and will rebel, but many more realize that connecting to the spiritual dimension will bring to bear profound transformation for everyone—better than anything that money and power can give them. Heralding in a new beginning of the joined perspective means many more are involved in what is occurring on AnDramada.

Now the Northerns will turn the tide on the old question, “Are we alone in the universe?” to “How will those others who we know are there, interact with us, and how will we move forward into the planetary hierarchy?”

There will be a great releasing first. All those who have been called heretical will be moved into normal status as citizens of AnDramada. Those who have been held at DaMada for heretical thoughts, will be returned home and will be embraced and nurtured back to health and full status.

This Tuber Festival will be remembered in AnDramadian history as the time when restoration took place and the Minds of the people opened up. I can tell you that planet Earth is at this point. Millions are now uncovering whom and what they really are, for it is time for the great releasing there. You are ready, Earthlings, you are ready!

Chapter 30

Let us return to our story for there is much to tell. An-Noon and the others now are free to be normal citizens of AnDramada. The people have settled into this new mindset and a more equitable distribution of power and wealth has been instigated. The people are viewed as equal citizens there and the distinction between the classes has lessened.

JoHan now is moving into his adolescent years free of the stigmas that have so dominated the culture there. There is a renewed vision of 'The Quest' and this involves an intense interest in how the others in the planetary system will interact with the planet AnDramada. JoHan sees himself as a direct link to that planetary hierarchy, as do many others, for he has been given verification of this time and time again. He has stood alongside his parents and ChoZen and others waiting for steps to take to move forward there. The remarkable releasing of the entrenched mindset has issued forth openness and receptiveness.

Now as it is known that Mind is the place of transformation, it is in Mind that the news, the progression will occur. And so, Mind Groups have been set up to receive information. Mind Groups occur throughout the land and each one who has come into contact with guidance belongs to a Mind Group.

Information that is received is transmitted to others and now, in many areas of development, real needs have been met and new directions have been given. Always, these groups are joyously attended and taken with the utmost sincerity. Mind Groups are interchangeable and people can choose to attend different groups as they so desire. Each Mind Group has a leader for the evening, but this leader can change easily without disruption of the group.

The Tuber Festivals now celebrate not only the harvest of the tubers, but also the invitation to attend is made to the other planets that are part of the local hierarchy. It is now known that the transmissions are given from another dimension, but that this dimension includes the physical reality.

There is to be a Tuber Festival soon and the invitation has been made to the planetary hierarchy to attend. There is an invitation to show themselves in the physical realm if this is appropriate also. The people know that the Mind of the Source will decide what is truly beneficial for its Wholeness.

JoHan, though young, has been chosen to be the leader of his Mind Group. He has shown remarkable maturity for a teenager, and is well respected by all. Throughout the land, this young man stands out as one to listen to. He seems to be fearless in front of a group, and shows the compassion of a true moral leader.

Willingly, he has accepted this mantel, and willingly, he follows inner guidance. JoHan now knows that the planet is on the precipice of something new in the planetary system. He has been told that something will occur this festival that will mark the beginning of travel to the planets in the eastern galaxy. How this will occur he is not sure, but his guidance has verified to him that this is the what is there to be discovered.

His Mind Group knows this and word has spread that something profound is about to occur. Radical shifting is what is possible, for citizens on AnDramada will usher in a new involvement with the greater Wholeness of which they are a part.

Others also, now are getting messages of space travel and of beings from the outer galaxy helping them in this way. There is an air of anticipation and an air of joyous excitement these days as the Tuber Festival approaches. Many citizens are seen smiling at each other and bubbling with enthusiasm for life and what it holds. How wonderful the knowledge of inner guidance is to these people, for it opens the door into newness, always.

Planet Earth is also in this same situation. You are ready to learn of travel to other parts of the universe and of the involvement of other beings in your system. Change will occur there for you, and your limited horizon will enlarge significantly. You are not alone there, Earthlings, you are not alone!

Chapter 31

The day of the Tuber Festival has come, and eagerly citizens congregate in various locations throughout the land. The Mind Groups have met the night before and anticipation is high. JoHan proceeds to the festival with his parents and ChoZen and the merriment begins. As the day comes to a close and the beautiful Org lowers to a deep red and twilight is there, fires are started for the dancing to begin. A gentle breeze blows through, and the sweet smell of autumn leaves fills the air.

It is the custom to lay down in the grasses at this time and chant to the Org, that lovely red ball that provides light and life to the planet. As the citizens lie in repose, something stirs in the air. A silver ball hovers over them, shimmering and gaseous. This is the moment—and quiet awe is felt.

Now those in repose feel a releasing of their Minds, their consciousness, and a lifting above into this silver ball. Their bodies remain lying on the ground, but their Minds, their spiritual selves/bodies have entered the dimension of space travel. Now they travel through time and space to a place that they have never known of. They enter a vista of beauty that far surpasses anything they have seen on their planet. Gazing around, music is heard that is unspeakable in its beauty and tranquility. Colors of radiance dance before them, and they are filled with love that is everywhere and includes them. How marvelous is this experience, and how happy and transformed are those who have experienced it! The event did not last long, for soon they were back on AnDramada, lying on the ground, looking at the Org. As they returned, they got up and hugged each other circling in joy.

JoHan spoke first: “Citizens, we have entered a new beginning in connection to our space brothers and sisters. We have been shown a new planet and a new dimension of understanding. Let us anticipate more of what we have experienced and celebrate this night, for we at last have discovered what we have been searching for, our greater family and our greater reality. We are joined, dear ones, we are joined!”

Now out of body experiences became familiar to the citizens there, and the variety and intensity of experience was felt by many. Throughout the land many now had these experiences, and the Mind Groups were filled with reports of what was seen and heard and experienced.

As remarkable as these experiences were, the love for each other and for their home planet remained strong, and the knowledge that the Source was in charge gave peace to people and allowed for a certain groundedness to be constant.

The duties of loving each other, children and pets, taking care of hearth and home and finding joy in working and playing and loving, all truly were enriched and magnified. The experiences only served to increase involvement with their own planet and with each other. How wonderful life was, ever unfolding anew.

When the people realized that the Source manifested as a Wholeness, they realized that to nurture and care for all was to nurture one’s self. This discovery never caused fear, nor disruption in life.

Now ‘The Quest’ became one of quiet openness within each one. Gifts began coming forth in music, art, science, medicine and healing and in all the areas of life.

Talents of individuals were increased and given to others and a remarkable freshness and newness was felt. Each day heralded in gifts to fulfill needs of the citizens there, and pleasure in life surpassed anything they had known. But the story does not end here, either. There is more to tell, so let us proceed to that more.

Chapter 32

Let us turn again to our story and let us focus on the transformation that is occurring. The people have allowed for their limited thinking to be released. The place of peace within, allows for the mindset of the Source to be known and the people feel into newness, always. What is it that has made the change? What is it that has caused such a radical shift to be made?

Here is where the great value of this book is given to you. Here is where the meaning that was intended in this writing can be felt. It is not without a greater mission in the unfolding of a people, that this work is given to you. You see, dear reader, you are so much more than you have been led to believe from your culture, your mind of separation, there. You are so much more! We here, on the spiritual side, want so for you to wake up to whom and what you truly are.

You see, you are a direct inheritor of your Source, and in this, you have resources available to you that will alter forever your life of servitude there, your life of come-along and go-along. We must point out to you that your culture has as its mission to harness you to a work ethic that truly puts you in servitude to corporations and to institutions that have as their motive, profiteering. Truly, it is their well-being that is at stake always, not yours.

And so, you are tethered to a mind set of servitude. Now some of you may say, but I enjoy my work and my work gives me satisfaction. But really, you must understand that as you align yourself with your Source, you gain true satisfaction there. For it is only here that you will ‘plug into,’ align with, and join with the greater Wholeness of you. You are not singular in your life, either as a person, nor as an entity. You are joined always with your Source. You have limited yourself, dear one, you have limited and cut off the lifeline there that will bring your true self into being, your true self into life. You are not an orphan, nor a bastard without parentage. You are, indeed, a part of a parental and loving Source that has never left you. It is truly for you to move into this place within, for the law, the principles of this realm to unfold.

The laws of this realm are love of the most profound kind, rooted in and sustaining love that includes security, safety and nurturing of you always. How wonderful this is and how meaningful your life can be.

Now you must abandon your belief in separation and in a random and hit or miss notion of life. You must abandon your belief that life deals you a deck of cards that are either good or bad or mediocre. You must abandon your belief in accidental, happenstance luck or misfortune, for that is not the way. That is truly not the way. It is the way of the separated sense of self, but not the way of the joined perspective.

We see you there and we have your interest at heart, your well-being in our mind. We, who know of our connection, are working with you mightily there and we are not willing to stop ever, for it is truly our mission to bring all into awareness of whom and what you are. We see you and we are taking every opportunity to awaken you there.

Allow for a crack in your belief system, dear one, and allow for the truth to come pouring through. Let in this most wonderful message and this most wonderful truth. Let it in.

What more can we say to you there? We are telling you this again and again so that you will get it, you will get it and begin the movement into transformation. It is truly for you to allow, dear one. Take a moment or two this day. Quiet your thinking mindset and let in the awareness of whom and what you are. You are not alone there ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

The Movement & The Moment

Chapter 33

As we journey through this volume, let us have as our vision, to move lightly through without burdens nor fear there. The movement you are in is one of freedom and choice, for always, you must choose how you will hold your mindset. Here is the key, dear one. How will you hold your mind as you live? Such a simple question and yet such a powerful result in your choice. This question is truly ‘The Question’ that should be at the heart of your ‘Quest,’ for it is the question that should be asked at each choice point. The answer you give to this question will chart the course for your journey each step of the way.

Let me give you a method for ascertaining whether what you choose will be a benefit for you, or a boon, or a boon-doggle. Let me tell you that the answer to give to the question of how to hold your mind is critical to your future unfolding, to the here and now.

At each choice point you will hear the Voice for Truth or the voice for separation. The voice for separation will have as its motive, undermining your well-being and setting you ajar. Here is the great deception given, for it is a voice for unharnessing the great strength of the mighty Source you come from. As you unharness this Source you leave yourself isolated, alone, and left to fend for on your own and immediately, strategies are developed to cope. These defense systems, which can include true harm for yourself and others, are bent on one objective—keeping you ajar, ill at ease and alone. Now the culture will fill your head with promises of gain and of acceptance as you follow its dictates, and momentarily you will feel that all is right with your world. But sooner or later, that separate sense of self will intrude, insinuate itself into your thinking. You will not feel into real completeness there as you live from separation, and all the things that the culture promises you to fill you up will prove inept to do it. For without connection to Source, you are incomplete. You are alone and you are at risk of the perils of one without an anchor, or a harbor, without a place of refuge and relief, safety and security and a place of true joy.

I'm telling you this so that you can know that this is not the way of your species, but is a way that evolved when man/woman kind decided to separate from Source and make a go of it alone. It was a choice available to everyone, and as the masses chose this, others followed. It is now the way of the three-dimensional world. But we are here to help you there and so ready to open to you what is the truth of you, dear one, so ready to help you there.

Now we would say to you, that living from separation is coming to a close as more and more abandon the helplessness of separation and join with Wholeness there. Now you will find true joy, true forward movement and true liberation as you are anchored and connected most fully to whom and what you are. You have the mighty Wholeness as your security and your safety and your knowing of next steps to take, forward movement. You have joy, dear one, you have wonderful joy! We can tell you with certainty, that as you read this, you are on the path. Now the call is to turn inward and ask. Ask of your guide, of the Father/Mother, of your Source to show you the way. Quiet your thinking mindset and allow. You are not alone there, ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One

Chapter 34

The journey you are on truly is a journey of connection which can be called the dynamic interplay between light and darkness. Connection is the interplay of a hand reaching out to a life preserver, or a foot placed securely on the path to freedom. These images are meant to give you what could be called dynamic and changing images, for without the preserver all is lost, and without the path where could one go?

This connectivity also involves an opening on the part of the receiver, for without an opening nothing can come through. This opening is what we here are working on with you. For we so want you to allow for what is said here to generate at least some curiosity to see if what is said here is true. If you choose not to even try, how can we help? Is it not worth a try, dear one, is it not worth a try?

Do not put this book down and say, “this is not for me” without even giving it a try. Do you not have enough curiosity to at least open a bit to see if what is said here may hold something for you? Are you not at least a little bit curious? Who has something to gain from this other than you? We have no monetary goal, nor are we a part of a religious institution, nor a movement that is organized and propagated from some ideology. The message we have is simple. The message we so want to give you is only that you are truly much more! It is a gift we want to give you there, a gift of your true inheritance.

If someone came to you and said you have received a large and bountiful inheritance, would you not jump at this? Would this not be a gift for you? Well, dear one, you have received that inheritance! It is with you even now, only for you to open to it.

Truly, the connectivity we speak of will not let in any harm. It is not an incarnate spirit of evil, nor a ghost that will intrude in your life. No, nothing of the sort. It is the greater Wholeness of you. It is your right mind, your mind of connectivity that we are encouraging. You are connected to the Allness and have that Allness as your birthright, dear one, truly as your birthright.

What a gift for you, to let go of the separation and join. Now will come forth for you, the way to live that will be so right for you. Now will come forth huge and wonderful waves of releasing of the mindset of ignorance and all that goes along with that.

Truly, now is the time to wake up there, dear one. This book challenges you to let go of your mindset of separation and come into connectivity with your Source. You are not alone there, ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 35

Allow for the ‘mindset of connection’ to come forth there. It is truly as you do this that you will gain entrance to your ‘knowing’ mindset, and have a way to move forward. These words are truly meant for you to embrace, for they are words that hold the transformational way.

Now you can find joy in this journey, dear one, and joy in the relationship you have found. What a relief to now know that you are joined in your life, with a Source that has only your well-being at heart. What a joy for you to now know, that whatever occurs can be put in perspective, and guided by One who has the transcendent view.

The means to find this relationship are so simple. The means to open are truly within. We can tell you that you will find much needed help here. We can tell you that here is the answer for you and here is the dynamic and life-changing way to live. Now as you hear this and as you ponder what this could mean, we can tell you that it is truly worth the effort to try. It’s worth the effort, dear one.

This volume is coming to you for a reason! For a reason and for a purpose that is truly divine in nature. You are not alone there. You are, indeed, a part of the Universal Wholeness. For all is One and you are an intrinsic part of that Oneness. So much to give you and so much for you to give to your others there. Would you not like a peace that far surpasses anything you have known? Would you not like a peace that engulfs you in its purity and in its healing qualities? For peace is much more than absence of turmoil. It is, in and of itself, a worthy and wonderful feeling, a delightful feeling, and a feeling worth finding. You may say, “but I want the feeling of excitement and edginess.” You have been taught that these are feelings that will make you most alive. But I can tell you with truth, that the true life enhancing feeling is the feeling of deep peace. You are so much more, dear one, truly you are so much more.

Now we will focus again on the story and on the characters that we find. For each one has been transformed and each one will move according to his/her inner guidance.

Let us again return to the story and find the more of what is there to discover. The people of AnDramada have released the mindset of separation and have allowed for guidance to be heard. They have opened to receive much needed help. The people have found their lives enriched beyond measure and a new freedom is embraced. Each one feels into the newness of his/her own life, which now can be felt as invigoration and energy. Dynamic in nature and effect, each one brings to the Whole, his/her own unique set of gifts. No one is more valuable than anyone else, and no one is more important nor viewed as 'less than' the others. This great equity brings a dignity and a respect for each other that allows for the greatness within each one to be felt.

Not as egos but as humble participants in their Source's will, as a part of that Source, do these ones live. This changed mindset ushers in not only individual change, but communal change, as every one benefits. The very grasses and trees, the flowers, the air, the animals, the waters, all benefit from this nurturing and energetic mindset. The sparkle and the freshness is seen in everything and new exhilaration is experienced. How wonderful is that!

Many are experiencing gifts of precognition, and are becoming more and more telepathic. 'Out of body experiences' are commonplace. Healing is felt within and some become healers. But sickness is rare now. Health abounds. Food is tastier and plentiful as people see food as a gift which all share. Simplicity is felt as all needs are met, and having things becomes less important. For they are not necessary to live there and are seen as superfluous. The people now have more time to play and enjoy life and frequent walks and enjoyment of nature is experienced.

Love is more deeply felt and jealousy has been lessened. Does this sound idyllic? Impossible for your planet? It isn't. It truly isn't an impossibility and is the way you are meant to live there. There is a better way, dear one, there is a better way. Life can truly be an enjoyable and fulfilling experience for everyone! That is the way your Source would have you live, fulfilled and fulfilling. Allow, dear one, allow!

Chapter 36

AnNoon felt with all his heart that his life held meaning and substance and purpose. He felt that he was placed there, at that time in the history of AnDramada, to give a gift, and to place his trust in the larger unfolding that was occurring. He felt that what occurred there would be far-reaching in its impact and in its meaning for the planet. His willingness to share bore fruit and allowed for a radical shift in how life was lived.

He didn't stop to let tradition and old patterns slow him down, nor did he hold on to a false sense of security that the culture could and would provide meaning to him. His life was one of willingly going ahead with guidance even in the face of danger and uncertainty. His courage was fortified by the certain 'knowing' that he was on the right path. This mindset of courage to follow and willingly to move forward showed others how to live.

How can you who live on Earth—do the same—give your gift? Only as you listen and move forward from your guidance. Now the call is to turn inward and allow, for you are not a random being there, without a mission. You are not just one more person but rather your life holds meaning for your others there.

I can tell you that you are truly much more than you think. How wonderful to know, dear one, that you truly are not a random happenstance merger of a sperm and an egg with no other meaning to your life. Your life is truly one of the deepest meaning and substance. Again, let me share that you are an intrinsic part of the Allness. You are not singular in your life, but always connected there. When the full scope of this is felt it will free you as no other will do!

From ONE Who Loves You

Always, are you free to live, and as you do so live from connection to Source, your life will radically shift. Lean into your Wholeness and feel yourself as joined. Carry this joining with you as you go through your life. How comfortable to have a friend there always to turn to, who is intelligent beyond anything you can know and yet takes you as you are and guides you from right where you are. You are not alone there ever, dear one. Truly, you are not alone there ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 37

What is the nature of trust? That is what we will discuss in this chapter, for it truly is important for you there. Trust is ‘leaning into’ without knowing outcome. Trust is believing and knowing that what you are experiencing is true—what your mindset allows—without having outcome certain. Now trust will be experienced more and more as the results of guidance are felt. For outcome is that which verifies to you that what you are hearing is bearing fruit.

Now the call for you is to listen and follow what you have heard from guidance and then ‘trust into.’ We can tell you that the need for trust is mighty, for the Source moves in a way that is brand new, so history of outcome cannot be looked at as what will happen next in each situation. Do you get the distinction? You can build trust because previous outcomes you have experienced are so beneficial, but trust is called for as to what the outcome will be.

It is wise to always know that the Source views things from the transcendent perspective and has the Allness as his/her viewpoint. Therefore, the outcome of guidance will benefit many there, and will prove to be the best choice for the Allness. This is truly important, for you will need to let go of what you have viewed as successful and what the world views as reasonable and right. The outcome may not be at all what you think it should be or what you are conditioned to believe. Here is where trust is called for. Remember, your Source has your fulfillment as his/her goal, your completion and your best interest at heart.

How wonderful this is to know, dear one, for it is as you trust, that the benefits will occur for you. Trust that you are abided with and that your Source knows next steps to take there. Trust in the divine wisdom and intelligence which is the Mind of your Father/Mother. Trust is the confidence that what will unfold is the perfect unfolding.

We would say to you that your trust must be cultivated and embraced and as you do so this, it will grow. Doubt is the opposite of trust, so do not let doubt in, for it will cloud your confidence there.

Chapter 38

Move forward with love. Move forward into the ever present and ever available relationship with inner guidance. Let us focus this chapter on what guidance is. Each one has a guide on the spiritual level who is working with you and who wants you to awaken to your Wholeness. Now this guide is a part of the Allness, the Wholeness of you, and therefore, can be called a part of who you are. This guide does have a separate identity and is known as an individual, but ultimately, this one is a part of you, also. Now the Mind of Wholeness exists there for you, and is known also as your Holy Spirit, your Holy Ghost within.

This spiritual place of connection is where you are joined, dear one, and can be felt as who you are, when you let go of the thinking mindset, the mindset of ego. You see, eons ago, you developed a way to be as you let go of connection. You chose to allow for limited thinking and developed strategies to survive on your own. These are the defense mechanisms that ultimately have served you ill, for they have increased the aloneness and the separateness that is so rampantly felt on your plane of existence.

You chose to go it alone and the wonderful connection to your parentage was forgotten. Now times are changing and the spiritual mindset is ready to resurface as the only place to live from. Your planetary isolation is about to end, for as you join with your spiritual Wholeness, you will be joined with the spiritual dimension and to your Source. Ask that this dimension, this connection, this Wholeness of you, be experienced, quiet your thinking mindset and 'let in.' How wonderful for you to now know that you are not alone there ever. How wonderful to know that the healing of a mind that was separated now is complete, as the joining makes it so evident that this is the way to live. We here who are working with you, want so for you to come into relationship there, and we so want you to know of the more of you that is there to experience. What a discovery for you, and what a place of radical transformation will be felt.

We can tell you that your life will become a joy for you as you now know that life is not meant for you to suffer and live and move alone. You are met with joy, dear one, truly you are met with joy. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One. As this chapter on 'What is Guidance' closes, you can trust that your guidance is working to make him/herself known to you always. There is a friend there for you to turn to. Trust into there, dear one, trust into here.

Chapter 39

I am with you there and I will guide you specifically. It is truly without hesitation that I give you this promise, and it is with the greatest interest in you and your forward movement that I share with you, much needed help. I, who have known you throughout your lifetime, your many lifetimes—for reincarnation is the truth there—want only for you, that which will be a boon and a blessing as you live.

You have heard of ‘the kingdom within’ which is in truth, the place where you are connected to your Wholeness, your entirety there. The kingdom is truly yours as you do so align yourself within, to that quiet place where the Wholeness, your guide, and/or I can meet you there and show you ‘the way.’ This is not an idle promise, dear one, nor is it a promise that should be sloughed off as insignificant, for you will benefit so profoundly from our connection.

We want for you to know of the ‘more’ of you that is there to be lived. We want you to know of the comfort and the care that is had for you here. Now it is truly up to you to open to it, and it is up to you to look with a willing mindset at this relationship. We, who love you without self interest, that is without anything that could be called monetary gain, nor a power trip, nor a win/lose situation, have your best interest at heart always. Along with the blessing, is the true reason we have, and that is to awaken you to who and what you are!

You see, you are truly much more than what you have been led to believe there. You are truly much more. Now the call is to open to receive, and to let in this most infinite and transcendent communication and connection. I cannot over emphasize too much, the importance of this, or can I repeat this too much, for it is necessary for you to hear it again and again. It is necessary for you to hear it over and over again, there.

We would say open to receive and discover the truth of you, that which was forgotten long ago and replaced with a separated sense of self. This is truly the way for you, dear one, truly the way. Soon you will feel into the presence of this guide, this guest who lives in you and who is you on the spiritual dimension. Soon you will turn here more often and ask, “Are you there, are you there for me?” And the answer will be given to you. We can tell you that as you bring to bear on this, your attention and your discipline, you will hear, dear one, and you will find that which was lost, again.

Now will come the great opening that will allow us to bring to you the guidance that will be so right for you. Bit by bit, and sometimes in large pieces will the separated sense be let go of. The dispelling of the erroneous ideas and the falsehoods that have held you captive for so long will dissipate as a cloud, a fog or an iceberg. The fresh air of newness will enter in, and you will be free to discover the unfolding reality, the truth of whom you are. Never alone, dear one, truly never alone.

Chapter 40

Go forward with an intention to bring into your life, a resource of profound and significant proportions. This resource is truly the most significant you could access there. Why? Because it offers you guidance from the transcendent viewpoint and has not only your best interest at heart, but those others who would be impacted by what is given you. This resource is truly of monumental importance, dear one, and I can assure you that is it there for you.

You see, you have directly available to you, the Mind of the Allness, the Mind of the Source. Can you believe this? Can you understand what is said here? How wonderful to allow for this input to guide you and gift you there. This resource not only can bring you into awareness of your spiritual nature, whom and what you truly are, but can assist you in all walks of life. So far as relationships with your others there, your employment, your needs for hearth and home, and your needs for psychological security and comfort, all are of concern from your guidance, this Great Resource within.

Now the call is to learn how to access this and to trust that what you are hearing is truly meant for you to live from. It takes courage to trust into, for it flies in the face of what your culture is so powerfully impelling into you. It flies in the face of what is viewed as right, and is looked at as a fringe thing and a thing that only those who are off balance are involved in.

But, dear one, this is not the truth! The truth is that this is the right way to live always. This way has been forgotten over eons of time and has closed off the very fundamental truth of whom and what you are. This wonderful resource, which is right there waiting for you to open to receive it, is there still, held there until you are ready to open to it.

I can tell you that you will find life to be fully grounded in truth and certainty and ‘right on’ feeling as you do so live from this way. Not haphazard or whimsical, nor interested in tricking you, nor leading you off the path is your guide, but lovingly, earnestly, solidly, with your best interest always at heart, does this one bring to you much needed help. I can tell you with certainty that this way is the way you were meant to live, dear one—truly, meant to live. Now the call is to begin! Begin the inward journey to your inheritance, and joy in the discovery awaiting to be found. You are not alone there ever! Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 41

What are some of the stumbling blocks you will encounter as you attempt to come into your guidance? That is what we will discuss in this chapter. First, you will feel that what you are hearing is coming from your thinking mind-set. You will tell yourself that what you are hearing is only your mind playing tricks on you. You will think that you have opened up to a suggestion, but that what you hear is not real. Now the way to challenge this is to repeat the process of connection.

As you repeat again and again, you will find that the messages, the guidance, truly cannot be coming from what has been known before because the guidance is so unique to you and so perfect for the situation that you are in.

There will be times when you will give up. You will not feel that your guidance gave you the right answer, and you will disregard the whole thing as junk to be forgotten. But sooner or later, you will feel curiosity and ponder about this thing called guidance, and you will try again. The guidance will be clearer this time, or at a time soon after, and you will now persist in your inquiries.

Perhaps you have asked your guide by means of writing your question down. This, too, is a good way to see if what you hear is answering your question—your need. The need will be met and you will be surprised at how well things have gone as you have asked to ‘come out’ from your spiritual guidance—your transcendent nature—as you move and live your life.

Another obstacle that you may encounter is the derision from others and from the media that puts all of this under the heading of spiritual fluff, that which is inconsequential. But as your experiences mount you will be given verification again and again, that 'coming out' from guidance truly has allowed for the best way forward there. It may be a subtle change or a dynamic one. The movement is in the Father's hands and will be unique to you and to the circumstances at hand. Allow for the openness to receive and you will be amazed at the way forward.

Now the time to bring to bear on your life this connection to the truth of you is now. Now is the time to open to your curiosity, and to not place this on the back burner there. Do not view this as boring or inconsequential, for indeed, it is the most important thing you could be involved in.

Truly, what we have shared with you here is the most important way to live. I can tell you that there are many now who are living 'out from' guidance and who have found the transformative way. Now is the time to let go and let in, for you are not singular in your life, dear one, truly you are joined, always. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 42

Move lightly through your world, and move lightly through the mire and the maze of limited thinking you are engaged in. We, who are working within you, know of the need for lightness of spirit as you come into guidance, for it will seem as great hardship and giving up if you do not view this decision as easy and doable. Now the decision to allow for the joined perspective will take persistence to stay with, and to continually turn here for next steps, but it will not be as hard work, nor efforting there. But it will take a decisive turning inward and listening, time and time again.

The spiritual nature of you is truly a light and delightful experience there. We can tell you that you will joy in the journey as you release the need for a mindset of complication and a mindset of work and effort. Easily, we give you our connection, easy and light is the way. You would not turn within if the way involved great effort and struggle. We do not want you to give up easily, but you need not expect hardship as you involve yourself in guidance.

We would encourage you to think in terms of an ‘emptying out’ and then an ‘allowing in’—an ‘emptying out’ of the thinking mindset and the ego infiltrations and the fragmentary way your separated sense of self works and an ‘inviting in’ of your guidance. Then listen, listen, listen, until you are clear about the next steps to take or the guidance given. Because many now are allowing for guidance to be heard, the opening to receive will be easier for you. The denseness and the separation are lifting and the entrenched way is dissipating. How wonderful for your planet to know that it will not be long before the releasing will be global and the mindset of connection will be felt.

Now will come the transforming of a planet into its true involvement in the planetary hierarchy—the universal involvement. How wonderful this will be for you, dear one, and how wonderful you will feel as you open to receive.

This book is given to you to encourage you to begin! It is given to you as a gift of invitation to release the bonds of separation and enter into the newness, the freshness of your true inheritance. Soon the few will be the many and the many will be the multitudes. Soon the children, the citizens of Earth will join their brothers and sisters on the other planets and move lovingly forward into the sublime union with Source.

We cannot tell you enough how we are looking forward to that time and you are held in our hearts and minds fully. We love you mightily and we want you to join us, dear one. Now is the time to join and now is the time to embrace your lineage and your heritage as never before. You are a part, an intrinsic part of the Wholeness, the Allness there. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 43

As you sit there and as you are reading this, there is a movement there that will usher in radical shifting, change. Truly, within the very mind of you, the Source awaits, ready to shed light on all that is occurring in your life. This new perception will allow for a mindset to be felt that is one of Wholeness, completeness, fullness and nonseparateness. This Wholeness will be felt as so healthful and normal for you, that you will wonder how you could have ever lived life a different way. The integration of your spiritual nature—the very truth of who and what you are—into your life, now is known as One who can be turned to and One who knows the way.

How bountiful you now will feel as an individual and as a joined one ready to embark on your journey, complete at last. How wonderful to feel this integrity of self as Unity and how wonderful to feel abided with, nurtured, loved, cherished, and brought into the flow of your divine mission/movement.

Now will come joy unparalleled before, for you will now know the truth of you, fully. How wonderful this is, dear one. Truly, how wonderful this is! We, who know you to be our sister or brother there, are so eager to have you know us, and so eager to join with you as a part of you, as you journey there. We are thrilled and delighted in this, and we cannot tell you how important what you are involved in is.

You are important there, dear one. Truly, you are important beyond words! Cherished are you, as an intrinsic part of the Wholeness. Without you, we cannot know our completeness and so we are working to bring you into this ‘knowing’ mindset, the mindset of ‘togetherness.’ Knit together well! Whole! Complete! Without separation! How healthy this feels as the inclusion and the joy of the Wholeness sinks in, or it may be radically felt there.

Now will come the great releasing of the layers of ignorance that have enveloped you, there. Now will come the releasing into the Mind of Source. Like letting go of unwanted and unnecessary trash, this releasing is felt and allows in the fresh air of newness, the fresh air of spirit as it flows into your mindset—newness, freshness, creativity, and possibility, dear one. How wonderful to feel ever anew there.

Now the releasing of your concept of sin, sickness and death will change as these are no longer meaningful to you. Welcome the miracle mindedness that is yours and joy in this newfound movement into completion. We are One, dear one, truly, we are One.

Chapter 44

Cherish the time you are living in and cherish those who are there with you. These words are meant to instill in you the importance of carrying your mindset as one of looking at time and others as vitally important to you.

Now the 'looking with vital importance' is truly necessary for you to place this time and these others into perspective. Looking at others as important will place them into the perspective of the Source, for he/she sees them as vitally important aspects of the Whole. When you view your others as a part of who you are, you will treat them as worthy of love and efforting there. Take the time to stop and think and turn inward as you interact with your others there and allow for the companionship of inner guidance to be felt.

As you feel into this companionship you will know how to be with your others, those whom you know and love. For it will be as ones cherished, as I do you, and as ones worthy of interest and intent to have them experience your love and involvement. Now as you do this they will be blessed and you will be blessed also. It is truly wise to take this guidance seriously, for it will have consequences there. It will have consequences there for you.

You have been blessed with others who know you and who are involved with you. If you find these others few and far between, know that you have One who is there always for you to turn to. I am here for you, dear one, and it is as you quiet your thinking mindset and turn here that I can give you the love and the nurturing that will gird you up, buoy you into joy as you realize that you are not alone there ever. How wonderful this will be, as you have a companion of the dearest kind with you always. You know, companionship, partnership, true love, smooths the way, supports you and moves you gently and lightly through the maze of the three-dimensional world. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there ever.

We would say to you that you should value your time there also. The time you have is the time you can move most fully to the love and the guidance of your Source. This will allow for the releasing of the miasma of separation and the delusional way your culture insinuates itself into you there.

The time you have is the time to turn inward and learn of the guide who loves you and accompanies you always. Move to the words of your inner guidance and see the remarkable delight of living love open to you. Now will come the joy of one in connection and the importance of what you are involved in will be felt. For your joining will lessen the density of the three-dimensional world and will allow for increased lightness of being. We are with you always, dear one, truly we are with you always.

Chapter 45

I am with you as you live. It is truly within the realm of spirit that I am with you there. The realm of spirit allows for penetration into the mindset of those who would invite me in. I am there for you and have gifts beyond measure for you. I have gifts and I have a promise that is one of mighty meaning and mighty significance as you live. This promise is one that you can carry with you always. I will not forsake you there ever, dear one. I will not betray you, nor be haphazard in my regard for you. Loyally, I am with you, and with the love of a beloved that knows no bounds. I will not let you go into the abyss of the three dimensional mindset there. For you would be lost and as one alone without a means to find your truth, whom and what you are.

Without connection to your guidance, your Wholeness, you will be as one adrift in a sea of turbulence without direction, and with the foreboding winds whipping you about. You would feel lost, alone and adrift there. This is not what your Source had for you as he/she created you there. This was not the way at all! But you left the nest. You crawled out into blinding light and said, "I'd rather do it myself." You left the security and the lifeline to the truth of you, and you departed hence to wander the three dimensional world alone and separated.

Now came into your world defenses to ward against the dangers that you felt as you lived. The defenses of attack and others were what you created to allow for you to live in what you thought was a dangerous world there, but you left the place of true life! You left the place of your lifeline to your Source.

Eons of time drifted by and eons of entrenched culture convinced you that you were right in your life of separation. But forward movement never was felt. It never happened, for it could not as you were now adrift.

The tides of time are turning now, dear one, as the truth of you, whom and what you really are is making itself known to you. At last, at last, you are opening to guidance and reaching out to your Source. As you do, you will find that this Source has never left you, but awaits your return to ask and to open to you. Without your invitation, guidance could not make itself known to you. Without your full consent, we were helpless to do anything. As you opened your curiosity a bit, we were able to make inroads and able to give you a glimpse of what is in store. You are at that point where you are hearing much more there, and you have let in the reality of whom and what you truly are.

Source, your Mind of Wholeness is there, fully engaged, as you do open to it. How wonderful this is, dear one. How wonderful this is to now know the truth. You are not alone there, ever. You are truly not alone. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 46

Now is the time to open to the truth of who and what you are. Now is the time to open to receive and now is the time to release the mindset of separation. Truly, you are at that point and delay is not called for here. It is important to know that delay will cause you hardship, for it will continue the way of isolation and waywardness that can only lead to what can be called, dismal outcome. For without the connection to your higher self, your divine self, you cannot know what will truly be a blessing for you and forward movement that has your best interest at heart. Truly, you are at that place where you are ready to open and receive.

Now as you do turn gently inward, ask that you be shown the way. We will not let you down, nor avoid your request, but earnestly and with great regard will we guide you, there. Now you can count on guidance of the most pure kind, for you are being led to come into the truth of who and what you are. Lovingly, we will guide you without delusion, nor wantonness, but purposefully and with intention will we guide you.

Always, your best interest is at the heart of the matter. Always, what will increase your fulfillment there is what we will bring to you. You will find that if you follow what is heard and allow for the unfolding, the way will be made plain to you. It is our deepest interest that we bring to you and it is our most loving and intelligent guidance that we bestow on you. We can tell you this, dear one, but you must ask to receive, for we cannot force ourselves on you, nor manipulate ourselves into you, nor cajole, nor entice you with what is said. Rather, you must come willingly and ask. It is truly only as you ask that the answer will be given.

Turn here mightily and ask that you be given guidance. Can this ever be something that will harm you? No, for always harm is experienced by the separation there. Now the view from the transcendent is what we are looking at and we see your movement there and we know what will give you much needed help, what will move you forward. And so, that is what we give you. If the way does not make sense to you and you have need of further clarification, ask and we will give it to you.

Now you can continue to ask until you have clarification there, and you can continue to explore this until you are satisfied and ready to move on guidance—that is, to follow through. This is important for you to do as more guidance cannot help you until you move on what has been given you already. So ask and get clear, then follow what you hear or make manifest in your mind what you hear. Truly, this is the way to live, dear one, truly this is the way to live. How wonderful for you, at last, to know of the truth of you! How wonderful at last! You are not alone there ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 47

Let us move forward with gladness and let us feel into the truth of what we are involved in. Now the times are truly allowing for real change to unfold. There is a movement afoot that will usher in radical shifting, as more and more let go of the three dimensional mindset, the mindset of separation. Always, you are joined and always, you are met with the love of your Source.

Now we can tell you that your life is of the utmost value for us, and it is a life of which we care deeply. We are not looking at you as one who is alone, nor adrift there, but we are involved with you at each step of the way. Our interest is eternal and our desire is deep. We so want for you to wake up there and we so want for you to feel into the truth of your life. You see, you are more than you think! Truly, you are a point of light there and a particle, a part, and an intrinsically involved aspect of the Whole.

These are not idle words but rather words of the very truth of you. We can tell you that the life you are living is a life that has as its roots, its base, its Source. Unlimited are you and unlimited is the Wholeness of which you are a part.

Now you can access this unlimited Wholeness directly, dear one, but it is only as you so desire that the way will be made plain. There is no other way. You must open to receive willingly, for we cannot ever impose ourselves on you, nor trick you into connection. Your free will is an absolute there as it is a gift directly from the Source. And so, this writing is coming to you with the intent of laying before you what is there as you do so open to receive.

You are truly much more than what you have been educated to believe in your schools and through the media and the culture which is dedicated to paint a picture of the herd mentality, and the duty to work for your corporations and your culture there. It is intent on you becoming an upright and outstanding citizen with all the rights and all the limitations that your laws put in place. Freedom is touted, but freedom is really nonexistent there as you live. For you are bound by a culture that says 'go along' and 'come along' and yield to the job, the market and the voice for greed and accumulation.

Now this is covered over with niceties and it is covered over with platitudes and pleasantries, but truly it is not the way. Your mentality of slave labor and getting into debt and being beholden to others is mighty there. It is time for a new beginning, dear one, and it is time to let go of the limited mindset. You have a way there to move forward perfectly suited for you. You have a mission you agreed to before you incarnated on Earth and you have a means to find out and live that mission.

Now the ultimate goal of all of this is to wake you up from the miasma of separation and have you understand that you are joined there, perfectly, with your Wholeness. This will ultimately allow for your involvement in the Universal Wholeness of which you are a part and your knowledge of other planes and planets will increase. The principle of 'ever unfolding anew' is there as you do so wake up. You are truly meant to wake up to the truth of you and that is our mission here. We want so for you to wake up there, dear one, wake up and live as you were meant to live. Never alone there ever, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 48

I am with you and I have only your best interest at heart. I am not here to deceive you, nor am I here to undermine your security and your well being. No, I am here for another purpose which is to guide you into connection there. You see, I have as my mission, leading the planet Earth into awareness and involvement in its planetary destiny.

The roots of this reach back long ago when I, too, was an Earthling there. I, too, felt your pain and your pleasure and your sadness and longing. I, too, felt the cruelty and the invasion of the culture into freedom there. I felt the distance of each one from the other and the separation of the poor from the rich, the class system there. I understood that the dominant culture had the power and the ones left to work and slave for this group of elites were looked at as chattel there, as worthless and expendable.

These ones were the ones I turned to as I lived, for they were the ones open to hear. They were the ones that saw the benefit from change and transformation. These ones were ready to receive the good news and benefit so much from it. I loved these ones and I worked among them earnestly and wholeheartedly. I loved them and I wanted so for them to realize their equality and their value as children of the Source. As they discovered the Holy Spirit of God within them and learned of this availability directly, they were changed. Their lives reflected the peace and the joy of those living in connection. Now they had the gifts of spirit bestowed on them mightily, and they spread the good news directly. How happy they were, and how relieved to know that they were loved and cherished by their Creator.

This news was given to them and they lived it in a quiet and unobtrusive manner, but they were also given the means to live with certainty, conviction and forward movement. They were not powerless, nor without the bulwark of the Wholeness added to them. The throngs on the other side were with them, bolstering them up, and heralding them and joining with them along the way.

So the multitudes increased mightily, with those on the spiritual plane joining with them wholeheartedly. How happy they were to know this and how happy I was to share with them. It was a movement of the greatest joy for me, and I knew that what had occurred would echo down through the ages.

Now my death did not end the good news, but verified to them the truth of eternal life, and the truth of life that existed on the other side of the physical plane.

I can tell you that this time on your Earth did not cease! For I am with you still on the spiritual plane, loving you and abiding with you always. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone. My mission is intact and I, along with countless others here on the spiritual plane, are working mightily there. Open to receive and trust that what you hear is real. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there, ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 49

Move forward and trust. Move forward and trust that what is unfolding in your life is truly that which can be brought to inner guidance to point the way. You may think that your life is without merit, or is one that is mundane and routine there. You may think that what you are involved in certainly could not be seen as with purpose for the Source and you may think that what you are involved in lacks significance.

But, dear one, you would be wrong, for your life is meaningful and is truly that which is felt as intrinsic to the Whole there. We, who love you, know you as our own. We, who are working with you, to awaken you to the truth of your life, your inheritance there, see you as important and worthy of the deepest love, concern and help. We have much needed help for you, and we have much needed support to give you. As you allow for the penetration of divine love and guidance to come through, you will be amazed at what truly is there for you.

You see, you are not alone there, and you are not without those of us who are assigned to you—your guides—eagerly looking for a way to gift you and shed light on your circumstances there. We, who know you well, look for opportunities to nudge you into curiosity and questioning. For without your curiosity you will not invite us in. You must feel that what is there is worthy of your interest and your intrigue.

Now we can tell you that what is here is more than worthy, dear one. It is the very truth of you waiting to be let in. Surely you have an ounce of curiosity to allow, don't you? This writing is meant to increase that curiosity and is meant to break up the miasma of the separated self. It is meant to usher in new thought and new meaning, the meaning your Creator has for you. Now as you do this will come a delightful relief, for you will know that you are not alone there to sort it out yourself. You will be given help and you will be given just what is needed in your life. In the big ways and in the small ways you will be given what you need there.

For you are not without access to the helpline of your Source. It is as you trust, and as you ask, that the gift can be bestowed on you. Let your Source give you what you truly need, for it is your Source that sees the whole picture there. It is your Source that knows what truly will provide the forward movement. Now is the time to allow, dear one, and enter into a relationship of brilliance, and a relationship of true love. I am there for you. We are One, you and I, we are One. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 50

Bring to bear on your life much needed help. You see, I can tell you this and you can say, “I don’t need help—I am getting along fine.” But your life is truly being lived as an automaton—grounded in separation and in a culture that says ‘come along and go along.’ Your life is truly one that is programmed there as you live from the separated sense of self.

Now you are given instruction from early infancy and you are taught to be successful in school and in work and in your community. You are taught that if you start saving your money from an early age and invest it in the corporate giants, you will be able to live and have a retirement. For you are taught that you are responsible for your well-being and no one else.

This infuses your thoughts and your actions and induces fear and often paralyzes you as the reality of a life of work and servitude faces you. You are taught that in doing this you will be judged as valuable to society and if not, you will be viewed as of little consequence—even expendable.

This harsh treatment is covered over with token subsidies from the government, and promises of the good life in your culture. But truly this way is the way of a slave and a beggar, beholden to corporate whims and dispensable easily if allowed to express that which is contrary to its desire.

Now we can tell you that work, in and of itself, is not bad and is truly worthwhile there, but it can be deadening if felt as given without freedom there. Now many are realizing that this program does not suit them, and they are turning to guidance to point the way. For your guides know what you are capable of and know what will truly provide you with meaning in your life and how to make a livelihood that involves freedom and creativity to be who you really are.

I can tell you that the life of freedom is what you are desiring, dear one, for this freedom will usher in change and transformation that will return you to your Source as sole guide for how to live. We can tell you that your guide knows you intrinsically, and knows that which will lead you forward there. What you will be involved in will not harm, nor hurt others, and will be a boon and a blessing there as that is the intent of Source, always. You are not alone there, and you are not meant to live as one tethered to a willful and whimsical job.

It is truly for you to live as a free person, using all your gifts in a life of joy and abundance there. We have this in mind for you and we can show you the way. This is not an idle promise, dear one, but it is a promise that is only available as you do so open to receive. Trust, dear one, and turn inward and ask of your guide, "Are you really there? Is there someone there for me? Show me the way." I will answer, dear one, truly, I will answer. Together always, we are One.

Chapter 51

Cherish the time you are living and do not allow for complacency to enter in. Do not think that what you are involved in is a haphazard movement, nor something that can be worked in as time allows. No, rather think in terms of importance and meaning there. Do not think in terms of working in a bit here and there but think in terms of first priority. That is the means to come into your true mission, for it must be placed on the forefront of your interest and your activity.

Now the little things will crowd the big things out if not paid attention to. The little things will seem as minor and meaningless and will absorb you there with their innuendo as that of necessity. But, indeed, you can change that as you live. You must change that, for the little things will eat you up and will devour your time and your talents. Ease of living is important, but not so that you forget the mission you are involved in. We do not want you to be stressed, but we do want you to pay attention and to focus your activity there, so that your gift can get given. This is not a sometime thing to be dallied with, nor held as secondary to other things. First priority is called for. First fruits of your energy and attention and earnestness and willingness. First fruits are called for.

Now we do not mean to sound like a parent reprimanding a child, nor do we want to sound as judgmental there, but we are, in earnest, working with you and we are, in earnest, guiding you and so we can only give as the openness and the attention is there to receive. This is important—what you are doing. This is important to you and to your others and to the kingdom, the Universal Wholeness. Why would we dither around here? Why would we give you an open door and then not expect you to walk through? We see you and we want you to open the door and walk through! We see you and we want you to open the door and walk through, come to get the blessings and give the blessings to your others. It must involve intense follow through there.

Now we will not desert you, but we do urge you to open to receive and place this as of greatest importance there. It is a mission of greatness we are calling you to. It is a mission of greatness, dear one.

Now the call is to move forward with purpose, diligence, discipline and determination. Trust that this gift you are giving is important beyond words. Let the importance and the immensity of the gift be felt. You are truly meant to give mightily there as a child of the Source, and the benefits to your others will be felt.

Allow, with full cooperation, this gift, to be given and move forward there, abundantly. This is our message to you this moment and in this movement. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 52

Allow for your life to include that relationship within, and allow for the gift of relationship to be felt. My love for you is truly real and truly is a love that involves not only words, but the gift of guidance for you.

My view from the transcendent is a view that takes in your whole situation and all those you are involved with. It takes into consideration that view from the past and the future also, and it takes into view the intimate needs of you. We can tell you that your needs are seen there and given importance. We will guide you in how to meet those needs, dear one, and we will give you the best advice/guidance, looking at all that you are involved in.

Now your life is truly felt as one of significance to us and we do not hold you as off in a corner to be dealt with when we must, but rather you are our focus, our mission and our responsibility as we carry on. You are the focus there.

Now this can be viewed as intrusion by some, for they would like to have us go away and have us depart from them so that they can dally with the ego a bit longer. They would like us to leave so that they can retain the power that they think they have which is really a delusional mindset there. For always, true power comes from the Source, dear one, and comes as you are open to receive next steps there. We can tell you that true power and forward movement are best felt when you allow for your separated thinking to be released and your mindset of completeness to be felt. So we are imploring you to take the time necessary to come into this quiet place of peace and feel into the presence of the spiritual dimension, the relationship of which we speak. I am here for you and you can count on me to gift you mightily there. You can count on true guidance and true love from me. You see, you are a part, an intrinsic part, of the Allness, and so we would be diminishing the Source if we diminished you. We would be marginalizing the Creator if we marginalized you, and so our earnest intent is to work with you, love you, guide you, provide you with blessings aplenty, and bring you into the flow of your life's work, your mission there.

You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there, ever. Now the call is to turn inward and ask that I show you the way and I will. You will be given a tone, a touch, a sight, a sound that is unique to you and you will know that this is guidance reassuring you, that you are, indeed, in connection. Now is the time to find anew that which was lost but now is found. Now is the time. I love you and will never let you go. We are One, dear one, truly we are One.

Chapter 53

We are working mightily with you for what you are engaged in is of the utmost importance there. What you are engaged in is crucial to the transformation of a planet. You see, all must become aware that they are connected directly. All must become aware that they are in communion with their Source. This is vital, for it is necessary that minds are open to receive. Without open minds and hearts the separation will continue there, and the meaning the Source has for you will be lost.

Therefore, the movement of mission you are involved in is of critical importance. For those of you who are seeking what your mission is, continue, continue! The way will be made plain and the movement into Wholeness will occur. Many have opened up and many are giving their gifts there. It is truly as the multitudes open to receive that the lifting of a planet from its infancy into its stature as citizens of the Universal Wholeness will be felt.

The time is fast approaching there when the people of planet Earth will rise up, stand up and be brought lovingly into the planetary Wholeness. We here are ready for you and we eagerly await your return. We await and we are working earnestly there, to lift the veil of separation and clear out the illusion that you are a separate species, and that you are somehow adrift in your universe. You see, dear ones, you are not adrift there, but you are nurtured and tended to. You are lovingly held in our thoughts, our Minds, the Mind of Wholeness of Source. You are lovingly being brought into the truth and you are lovingly being held as most dear to us.

Now you may think that this is far off in the future, but no, the releasing of a mindset of ignorance is closer than that. It is closer and it is palpably felt as real to us. We here, are working with the greatest diligence to lead you into the new planes of existence that have always been there, but have been held away from you by those that would see this as giving up their power to control. You have been held away by those who are interested in you staying small and dependent and as workers there, to promote greed and power for the few. We would encourage you to open to receive the truth of whom and what you are.

You see, you are direct inheritors there. You are members of the Wholeness, the Allness, the Source, and you have all that the Source has as yours. You are already perfect, but you have forgotten this. You view yourselves as so limited, dear ones.

But the times are changing there, and soon the miasma will dissipate, as clouds lifting from the sky, to reveal the sun in all its brilliance. How wonderful this will be and how meaningful to you to at last, enter the world and Universal Wholeness that you were meant to live in. We can tell you that you are joined there, and we can tell you that your brothers and sisters wait there. Never alone and never without help there, are we. We love you dearly, and we see you as our own. Let in, dear one, let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 54

Move forward with love in all that you do. This is so crucial for you to hear, for it will free you there to bring into the world the movement your Source would have you live. Now love is something that few really know about, for love is far more than what you have been programmed to know. Love, itself, is an energy which has as its central feature, setting all things right. It brings order out of confusion and chaos and makes things smooth. For your Source would have you live a life that is peaceful and smooth, free of anxiety and concern, want and willfulness that creates disorder and disharmony.

Love, therefore, is vital to your existence as you want to find the perfect way of living there. Now this may sound as if impossible in your situation, for you see others as filled with selfishness and greed which brings discord and discontent into the scene.

Now the way to hold these ones in your Mind is as those who are valuable to the Allness, but who don't know the truth there, and so as you let go of your greed and selfishness and hold your others without blame they, too, will respond to this and see you as harmless and innocent and will wonder about you.

Now the very nature of love is that it works without you doing anything other than to hold them in your mind as lovable and worthy of love. As you feel love from your Source, time and time again, you will then know how to hold your others in that love.

As you feel love without anything you have done to earn it, you will in return, hold your others there without anything they have done to earn it. Now this does not mean that you should have a self righteous attitude, for that truly is an attitude of separation. Rather, really see those others as a part of you, at the same level, only not knowing the truth. Hold them as brothers and sisters there and do not let your mind judge them as unequal.

There will be times when you will need to distance yourself from some, but even as you leave a situation, hold those ones as a part of you. Do not judge them, dear one, for they are indeed, a part of you and you would not want to be judged. Let love lead the way and observe the miraculous healing that will occur as the energy of living love sets all things right, heals and provides the balm that smooths things over and makes them harmonious. This is the truth, dear one, and this is something you can count on. Practice, practice, practice this daily.

Most importantly, love yourself as your Source loves you. You will learn as you feel into this love again and again. We are there guiding you, too, and we have your best interest at heart. Now the time to love All That Is, is there and so open to receive this love. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there ever.

Chapter 55

As you live there, you will be faced with what appear as obstacles to your forward movement. You will see life as continuing to present problems and you will question, why, why? But we can tell you that your life will move forward with purpose and meaning as you do allow for guidance to be heard. You may ask, “Why is my life seemingly filled with situations that put me in a place of vulnerability? Why am I placed in a situation that I cannot seem to control?”

Here is where the call to listen is really important there. Here is where the inner guidance you receive will gently walk you through, step by step, to the other side of what you are facing. We here know you and we see what situations you are faced with. We see the need for money as you live and the need for a means to survive there.

This is truly something that has been pommelled into you since childhood and your culture constantly blears out at you that things will satisfy you there, i.e. money, things, travel, and all the diversions of life on planet Earth at this time. But truly, your real satisfaction can only be felt within! For everything else can be placed in a category as that which is superfluous to whom and what you are. Even loving relationships with a partner or spouse, though wonderful, cannot truly answer the call for fulfillment.

For fulfillment can only come as you are aligned with your Wholeness there. Living from separation can only provide a very temporary means of fulfillment, which soon will seem as vaporous to you. Now we are not saying that relationships with loved ones are not important but we are saying that they truly lack providing what you need. For they are separate also. It is only as you join with the Infinitude of you, that you will see life as it is meant to be lived.

As you open the door to the transcendent, no longer will you feel that emptiness, that feeling of lack, for you will have found what you are looking for, and you will have found the truth of existence at last. How wonderful this will be as you join with your Source and your larger family throughout the universe. For you see, the alignment to your Mind, with Source, places you in touch, in tune, with who and what you really are. Complete, whole, an orphan no longer, but a part of All That Is and in line with the blessings that are there for you to embrace and hold as your inheritance.

Your others will greatly benefit from your alignment, and as they too, come into that place, they too, will feel their Wholeness. Now will come true joy and true satisfaction as the movement to your mission is felt. Now will come letting go of the baggage of eons of misinformation and eons of ego involvement that have held you a part for so long. Joined are you now and joined with All That You Are, indivisible from your Source. We are here working to help you come into this grand and most meaningful place of Wholeness there. Let in and allow, dear one, for the gifts are there for you to partake of. Never alone ever, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 56

Carry your mindset with conviction in the truth of you. Carry your mind firmly placed with your Source. This is so important for you, for it is necessary to do this as you will be brought again and again into the mindset of separation. Your culture insinuates itself into your life continually, and since this is all you have known, you will return there again and again.

Now, at first, the joined way will be a random thing, only brought to bear on occasion, and only when you are experiencing difficulty. You will not see the need for joining when things seem to be going fine. But the time to return to your Source is then. For it is when you are feeling fine and seemingly without difficulty that you should return again to feel into your truth. You see, it is a new way to use mind that you are developing, and if you do not have the skills down, the habit there, and the familiarity with it, you will not benefit as greatly.

You must realize that it is as you return again and again on a daily basis, and listen for what is there for you, whether guidance or validation of what you are involved in, or inviting your Source to join in your present feelings at the moment, that will truly benefit you. We can tell you that this practice is necessary, but it will be the experience of it that will validate it to you.

For words from us will not substitute for the practice of it. When you begin to get a feel for it, and as you empty your mind out of more of the random bits and pieces and fragments of thoughts that filter in from the three dimensional way, the ego way, and when judgements and hate, enter in, you will need to have a way to escape from those dynamics. Here is where we will help you, dear one. Just stop your present thinking and wait for the quiet to come. When peace is felt, invite us in. We will be there for you and will show you the way to proceed. Invite us in at this point, and trust that what you hear is the right way. This practice of peace and this practice of invitation is important. We would suggest daily practice.

Soon this will become natural to you and you will know of no other way. How wonderful and on target you will feel as you abandon your separated sense of self and join. How on target this will be for you—no longer circling around a problem but having the answer right there within. How wonderful to know the next steps to take. Now these may be dramatic steps, that is, life altering steps, or they may be little subtle ones, like taking a pause, a rest and allowing things to unfold.

Your guidance in interested in you experiencing all of the fulfillment, so it is in every area of life that your guidance should be turned to. All of life can be embraced by your guidance. We want you to be fulfilled on all levels there, and so do not settle for a partial gift but open to receive a big and full gift, true fulfillment in your life. Open to receive an immense gift there. Do not think you are worthy of only small happiness. Expect big happiness and big joy. That is the call.

Now as you read this put the book down and quiet your thinking mindset. This may take a few minutes but soon it will be like a still lake. Then ask that I join you there. First feel into our togetherness, and then you may ask what you are seeking. If you want, you may take a pencil and paper and write your question down. Then let me answer you. I am there for you, dear one, truly I am there for you. Never alone, dear one, truly never alone.

Chapter 57

Trust that what you are involved with is truly of importance. Trust that your life is meaningful beyond the three dimensional world you are now experiencing. We can tell you that your life is of the utmost importance, dear one, but it is as you open to receive that you will know this most intimately. You see, as you do so open, we will give you verification that what you are experiencing is real and has the power to transform your life as nothing else can.

Now you may think that the life you are living is okay. Nothing to really complain about—a few problems here and there, but nothing really to fuss over. But we can tell you that life is much more. Truly, as you embrace your limitations you are shutting out so much more. Your life is one that cannot—is not—separate from the Source of life itself !

As you contemplate this, let it sink in. Let the reality of this sink in. Now you are held in our hearts and minds as precious and worthy of great involvement on our part. You are worthy of much needed help, and that is the reason for this writing. That is the reason that we are working so diligently with many who are working to bring you into the full knowledge of whom and what you are. There is a reason for this beyond your own fulfillment, dear one.

You see, we won't be complete until you recognize your place in the Wholeness. We will miss you and your part if you do not wake up to the truth of you. The Source wants all his/her own to know of his/her connection to All That Is. This is the reason we are working so diligently there. It is the will of the Source that all would know of the love, the bounty and the inheritance that is so rightfully yours. Now the messages given in this book are messages that will open you up there and so, even though they seem oft repeated, they are truly important to hear again and again.

For it will take this to penetrate through the wall of illusion that has been so driven into your mind there, through the enculturation of a people, and through the insinuation of egos bent on maintaining separation as their means of survival. We can tell you that the wall of illusion is lifting there, dear one, the wall of illusion is coming down and the clear fresh air of the truth of your life is being felt strongly there.

How wonderful this is and how powerful you will feel as you embrace and let in this new awareness. Gently, your Source works, yet with the certainty that truth will prevail, it must prevail there, dear one, it must prevail for it is only that which is real!

Now as you read this, we can tell you that your very involvement in reading this book has placed you in line with waking up. It has placed you as one who is opening up and allowing for a greater expansion of consciousness. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 58

Let us discuss a topic of importance there and that is the nature of your free will. This is important, for you must realize that your free will is a gift from your Source and is regarded as that by all of us here on the spiritual plane. We must tell you that our involvement with you must be only as you invite us in. We cannot insinuate ourselves into your life, nor can we manipulate ourselves into your thinking. We always must be invited in. Your free will is inviolate to us, and so you can know that what we are telling you is not a ploy to get you to give up your own authorship, nor your own identity.

Truly, your identity is supreme, but must be known as that which emanates from Source and has that as its origin. Without Source, your identity is a made up thing, an orphan mentality, and a bastard mindset made up of bits and pieces that have followed you and have seemed to encompass enough to make up an identity. But, dear one, your true identity cannot come into full recognition until you know your Source—whence you've come!

You see, your genetic makeup is truly only a pattern of markers, but in no way is whom you really are. Your true identity is held in your Mind, the Mind of Wholeness. It is Mind that gives you your identity and it is Mind that infills you with All That Is there. You see, the Source manifests as the movement of Mind in and through all. It is the energy of living love holding all in its embrace. Yes, these sound as beautiful words and as words that do not really mirror the truth, but we are here to tell you that these words are the truth! You are, indeed, the movement of Mind and as you do so open to receive you will be shown so much more.

The greatest thing you will discover is that you are not alone there to sort it out all by yourself. You are not alone and you have an immense family of others who also are part of the Source. You have countless brothers and sisters there and on the spiritual plane, from many planets and planes and universes. You have the Universal Hierarchy as family, dear one.

Now as ignorance is released amongst the people, more and more will experience this family and more and more will understand the immensity of what we are telling you. Now is the time to quiet your thinking mindset and open to receive. With your free will intact and your openness expressed, we will gift you there, mightily. Open to receive, dear one, indeed, you are never alone.

Chapter 59

We are with you as you live and we are bringing to bear on your life, much needed help. There is need for what we bring and there is purpose to our gifts. You see, your planet is on the precipice of real change there. Your planet is ready to open to the more that is there to be experienced.

Now I can tell you that you are met with the love of your Source and you are met with the ongoing friendship of your inner guidance. Friendship is a wonderful thing to have, and this friend will not be fickle in his/her friendship, nor will this friend depart from you when ignored. You see, the truth is, when you access your guidance, you are accessing a part of whom you are. You could say you are accessing your right Mind, your Mind of Wholeness. So it is all yourself that you are turning to.

Now those who work with you do have an identity of their own, and yet truly your guidance is coming from the Whole of you that has been forgotten, ignored, and/or not known of. We can tell you that always has this One looked for ways to wake you up there. Always, has this One been ready to gift, whenever the slightest turning inward has occurred. But you have not known of the deliberate and non-capriciousness of this giver, this light, this friend.

We are encouraging you to get to know this guide well! Become familiar with this One, and see the dependability and the love with which this One guides you there. Your familiarity with this One is what we are encouraging you to become in this chapter. And so, we again would say to you, practice over and over again and learn of the way to find that inner guidance there.

The method is so clear. It is to quiet your conditioned thinking, allow for peace to be experienced. Gently ask in the way of a child to a parent or a beloved to a lover, “Are you there? Will you help me?” You will be given answers, dear one, and you will become so familiar with your friend who lives within.

I can tell you that the one writing this has learned of her guidance and has now come into close relationship with Him. She has learned and she accesses this guidance daily. She has known of the love that is always there and she has known of the comfort that I provide to her. You also can have this comforter, the One who will not depart, and who has only your best interest at heart. Never alone there ever, dear one, truly never alone.

Chapter 60

Trust into what is unfolding in your life. We can tell you that what is unfolding is truly worth the effort and the ‘staying with’ that you are bringing to it. What you are experiencing is not superficial, nor is it incidental there. What you are learning and doing is the most valuable thing you could do with your time, energy and effort.

Not only are you benefitting yourself, dear one, but you are benefitting the Wholeness, all those on your planet and beyond. You are lessening the density of the third dimension as you proceed to follow guidance. Our goal with you is to wake you up from the miasma of the third dimension and bring you into awareness of the Whole of you. You are, most importantly, a spiritual being, dear one, now having an experience with your third dimensional density. You are now having an experience of limitation and we so want you to awake to the more of you there—the Whole of you.

Those of us who are working with you have known you long before you incarnated on planet Earth. We have known you long before this, and we have worked with you there. We have known of your desire to help those on this dimension to awake, and so we have accompanied you as you did incarnate there. It was a decision you made as you did so come into guidance on the spiritual plane—that you agreed to this mission of lessening the density of those on the three dimensional plane.

It was as we counseled you that you agreed. Now you are here and you are aware that you have something important to give there. You are aware and you are in agreement with it. Willingly, you have turned here and have begun this great adventure there. It has taken persistence to stay with this, dear one, it has taken persistence to stay with this.

From ONE Who Loves You

But you have known that it is the only thing truly worthy of effort there that will have lasting and profound consequences for you. You are aware that what you are involved in will truly herald in a new beginning for planet Earth. And so, we salute you and we honor you and we accompany you as you stay with this most important work.

Chapter 61

Trust is called for even though the times and the culture would mislead you into letting go of trust. Trust is called for, for it is necessary to move forward in your life. You will not have certainty along the way of outcome, nor will you have certainty of material reward, nor of fame there. And so, trust is called for as you live.

Now what you will have is certainty of relationship, for you will feel into the love and the involvement of your inner guidance, your Wholeness, your Source. You will feel into this, and you will benefit greatly from this. Of all the things you could have in your life, this relationship is truly of the utmost value. And it is yours always, free of change there. It is what is of value there, dear one. How wonderful to know that with the slightest turning inward you will feel our love and support. How wonderful to know that you have the immensity of the spiritual dimension there for you. Here is the answer to your quest, for here is the love that will accompany you always.

Now the joy of this relationship will be felt as you move lovingly and lightly through your time there. How joyous to know that you have a guide who will not ever leave you, and who will not give you false nor misleading guidance ever. For it is your guide's will to have you find fulfillment there. It is your guide's will to have fulfillment there without measure. Now this is there for you as you do so open to receive, dear one, this is there for you. Do not think that you will be abandoned there to go it alone.

Now abandonment is common amongst relationships there on your planet. Even in families, sister and brothers, mothers and fathers abandon each other. How often has this happened to you? Have you felt alone there and in need?

From ONE Who Loves You

Have you felt as one without someone to turn to in your life? Most people have. Now how wonderful for you to know that you are not alone there, dear one. How wonderful to know that you are loved and you are met with an eternal friend, and that you have a family that will always see you as its own.

Now the call is to trust that what is unfolding, what guidance is given, is truly of the greatest worth for you. It will be for you, the fulfillment of your mission, and the fulfillment of your life as you live. And so, continue your trust and continue following what you know to be the truth there. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there ever. Let in and allow for, indeed, we are One.

Chapter 62

I can tell you with assurance that your inner guidance is real. You may question this as it seems so far fetched that there could actually be an entity, a presence that has your best interest at heart and who is working with you at each and every choice point there. It may seem far fetched but it is the truth.

Now you are met with a love that knows no bounds and wants for you unending joy and peace, beneficence and the fulfillment that is your birthright there. This One does not have needs that would put you in a position of being manipulated, nor in a position of being used for a purpose other than you coming into your own truth of whom and what you are. Your guide is doing this because that is his/her nature, to be the place of love in the world and to work for the entirety, the Source, to bring those who have fallen asleep, that are still in the miasma, in separation there, to their full awakening.

I can tell you that your guide will not stop ever and so you may put this involvement on hiatus for a while, on the back burner so to speak, but your guide does not take a vacation, or a time out from his/her mission.

It is well to know that your guide is truly part of your right Mind, your Mind of Wholeness and is there always, for you, ready to gift you as you do so open to receive. Now the infinite world of which you are a part has as its mission gifting, fulfillment.

That is the nature of Source, to love and gift His/Her own. But you must be open to receive, dear one. You must be open to receive. You are not without this spiritual presence, but in order for the principles of the kingdom to come forth, you must be open to receive. The gifting is in the Father's hands.

Truly, you must trust that this is what is unfolding there for you. Now is the time to feel into this deepest of relationships and now is the time to open to receive. We will not let you down there, nor cause you discomfort there but you will most likely change for you will need to let go of the limitations you have placed on your mindset. You will need to let go of the limitations there.

We will guide you in this specifically and in this you will not have to figure things out, nor use traditional thinking there. No, the call will be to follow what you heard and get explanations from your guidance until you are ready to move forward. You may need to just move forward and trust there, dear one, truly you must move forward and trust. That is the call there, truly, that is the call. We can tell you this over and over, and yet you need to hear it. You are not alone there ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 63

Move lightly through your world without trepidation nor fear. Move lightly there and trust that what is unfolding is what is meant to bring you into your fulfillment. All circumstances that you are involved in are there for a reason and that reason is to show you a way to live that calls on your greater Wholeness to be turned to. This is the mighty lesson there, the mighty lesson of Oneness and the mighty lesson of the truth of you.

Now even in the seemingly small ways, your guide, your mind of Wholeness, awaits your call to deliver to you, much needed help. Do not think that small steps are unimportant for your movement there, for they are the very substance of life as it is lived. Small things and big things all are of concern and worthy of spiritual guidance there. The great lesson in all of this is the importance of turning inward and asking. Here is the solution to your quest, your problems, and here is the means to bring forward movement, next steps there.

We, who love you so mightily, are involved and invested in you and we see you as our own. We see you as worthy of great involvement and we see you as truly meant to awaken there, to the truth of your origination, your Source. You are of the importance of our dearest efforts and our dearest longing, for we long for you to come home there and to awaken to your truth. We long for this and our hearts will not cease to bring you into the truth of you—that you are direct inheritors there. You are our brothers and sisters, our family.

Now as the small steps are presented to you, move lightly into guidance and listen there. Quiet your thinking and ask that the way be shown you. Then stay open to receive. It is here that you will come into that radiant truth that is pure and solid and feels so right for you. Now with truth and knowing certain, you can move forward, confident that outcome will be that which is truly meant to release you from the miasma there and show you the beneficence and the blessings that you are given always.

Life there will now take on a sweetness and a joy as the relationship of true worth holds you and supports you and blesses you. You will joy in your journey and you will tread lightly through the miasma and the maze of life.

Now will come the true releasing and the burden, the falsity, the ego creation of you will slip away as a cloud on a sunny day, and then radiant will you be, joying in life and in the love that embraces you always. We are here for you, dear one, and so turn here lightly and openly and with determination, for this is the place of relationship. Never alone, dear one, truly never alone.

Chapter 64

It is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. What sweet words are these, dear one. Is it not remarkable that your Source has this in mind for you? Let us look at what this means in more depth.

We can say that the kingdom here is meant to mean that which is your true inheritance and that which is your birthright there. For you are direct inheritors of the Source and you have what the Source has available to you. Now willingly this gift is given to you and willingly bestowal occurs as you do so open to receive.

When we think of kingdom, we think of royalty, we think of sovereignty and we think of kingship/queenship there. We think of royal birth and we think of real worth.

All comes from the Source of true royalty, from the original Source there and the nature of this Source is sovereign and can be called nobility expressed and expressing. Do not think of yourself as a servant, nor a serf, a maid, nor manservant there. You are not that which is beneath, nor beholden to, for you are indeed a child, an offspring of this greatest of sovereigns, there. And so, the time of eating crumbs thrown from the table as to mongrels there is over. You are not to get crumbs thrown from the table, nor seconds, nor the little inklings of good. No, rather you can claim first fruits and bounty and blessing and all that would benefit sovereignty there.

This kingdom is yours as you come to understand it and to embrace it and to open to receive it. Now this does not imply that you are to walk with ego held high and as above all, but rather, humility is the response of the receiver as the Source so gifts him/her. It is truly for you to understand that the relationship you are involved in has your best interest, your highest good as His/Her vision for you. Ultimately, the greatest gift is the gift of awakening to the truth of your inheritance and your Source, for here is where you will joy most in your understanding.

Here is where you will let go of the mindset of ‘less than’ and ‘beneath’ and ‘below’ and ‘unworthy.’ For you will know that the kingdom is yours—fully and completely yours—dear one, truly you are a true son or daughter and a true one in the lifeline of Source. We are there for you always, and we are working to bring you into this knowing mindset of relationship. Now let us turn inward and ask that the way be made plain. For you are never alone there, ever. Indeed, we are One.

Chapter 65

Do not think that what you are involved in is superficial or something to be placed on the back burner there. Now the movement you are involved in is of the utmost importance there, for it is not only for you that what you are doing is given, but for the many who will benefit from your gift. Do not take this mission as superficial, even though the times seem to indicate that nothing much can come of it, nor will people find meaning here.

Truly it is important to remember that the Source does nothing haphazardly, nor without true intention. Therefore, it is with the intention of the Source that you should give your gift. It is with diligence and excellence that you should move forward there. As you see yourself as coming from that place, you will put nothing in front of this mission, and you will work with diligence and long suffering and patience and persistence. You will not let little things crowd out the work, and you will find that the joy you feel at staying closely involved here will increase. For it is truly the very thing that will provide joy for you. Joy, focus, meaning and forward movement will be yours as you stay with this process of listening and giving the gift you have to give.

Now I can tell you that we are not going to let you feel alone in this, nor isolated, nor without the means for real help there. We are truly involved with this as you are, and we, who are working with you, see the remarkable and the magnanimous nature of this great gift. Now this is only meant to further your conviction and to further the single-mindedness you must have in order to accomplish this, dear one. Truly, you must persist and must stay focused without ceasing. Let your need for relief be seen as only that which takes a little time and your need for rest be only that which is necessary. Do not indulge in wasted time, nor energy, and do not stall there as you move forward. You will find that the will is there and the way to move with clarity and certainty. We can tell you that much rests on this gift, for it is a step forward for many.

Now let your careful listening and your careful following be what you are engaged in. You are not alone there ever, and so keep that in mind always. There is truly for you, clearing of the obstacles that have stood in the way, and the path is clean and clear and ready for you to tread lightly on. Never alone as you travel this journey to fulfillment, and never without the love that is you and surrounds you. Let your dedication be given here and trust that all is well.

Chapter 66

Have you wondered what is occurring on your planet at this time? Let us talk about that a bit. Your planet can be said to be moving into its adolescence there. Infancy past, and childhood moving along, it is time for you to stand tall and look out at the greater planetary Wholeness of which you are a part. It is time for you to think in terms of growing up!

Now we have been parenting you along the way, and have seen you as you have become aware of the other planets and planes of existence. You have looked out at the universe and asked what is your place here. I can tell you that your place is of importance, for it is truly felt as one of great potential to us. We see you as a beloved little brother or sister would be looked at—loved with great hope for what's to come.

Now the people of planet Earth are not only realizing that they are a part of the greater Universal Hierarchy, but they are realizing that they are a part of a grand spiritual unfolding which is never ending. It is truly the will of Source, for this 'ever unfolding anew' principle of life to be felt.

We here, who are working with you, are smiling these days, for so many have let go of the separated mindset, so many have let go and have finally opened to receive your birthright as inheritors of Source.

We see you as you look up and inward and there find the transmission line, that will move you lovingly forward. Here is the place of the great transmission occurring to each and every one of you, and working with each one to further that one into awakening to the gifting, the joy, and the fraternity of which you are a part.

From ONE Who Loves You

Now is the time for the many to release that sense of limitation, that ego framework, and welcome in the truth there. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly, you are not alone there ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

This time on planet Earth is a delicate time, but also the future is certain, as truth will come forth. It must come forth, for there is no other way. The miasma is lifting there, and the clear view shines bright in so many minds. There is truly hope for you, and we think the awakening will not be long from occurring.

Now you are on the cusp of the great awakening and how wonderful this will be. We love you and will be with you to joy in this grandest of forward movements there. Never alone, dear one, truly never alone.

Chapter 67

The time you are living in can be called a time of great and radical change. You were born at a time when many will come to know of the truth of life, that it issues forth from Source through Mind there. What does this mean? That is what we will discuss in this chapter.

Mind is the place where the Source connects with you. The Mind of Source penetrates all and is truly the energy of living love. The Mind of Source is a vibrational field in which creation unfolds anew. Now many are learning of this, and are experimenting with what is to be found there. As many begin this openness to receive, and let go of the sense of separation, they will discover that life is so much more!

Now will come the releasing of the layer of separation, the illusion that each one is a separate entity with separate interests than all else. As the true meaning of life comes brilliantly into vision there, the true interconnectedness will become known. Now will come the great outpouring of love for the planet and all its inhabitants, and now will come the great turning inwards to learn of the multidimensional nature which is each one's inheritance there.

As Mind moves into its Wholeness, the Universal Hierarchy will become a part of what the Earth is involved in and many will come to know that we are involved in a universal unfolding of the greatest magnitude. Yes, dear one, you were born in an exciting time there, and a time of the greatest change your planet has ever experienced. Many are working to bring about this great change, and many have opened to receive. You have been open enough to have purchased this book and to have read this far. This makes you a seeker and a knower there, dear one. You are not alone there ever. We can tell you that your interest in this makes you one who will open there, and will discover your mission and your life's path. You see, the time you are in is truly a time of radical shifting, and even you will feel into this there.

We see you and we know of what you are involved in—the searching and the hunger for the more of you that is there to be felt and lived. We see you and we have vowed to guide you there. We, on the invisible plane, have as our mission, to bring you forward and to give you the knowing mindset that will usher in radical change for you and for your others there on planet Earth. Now is the time to turn inward and ask, dear one, for indeed, we are One. Let in and find anew that which was always there, but now can be known most fully to you, for, indeed, we are One.

Chapter 68

Let your life reflect the will of the Source. Your dedication is there and your willingness to follow is present. We can tell you that your life is meant to reflect your Creator there and your life is truly the place where the will of your Source comes into play in the third dimension. You can count on this reflection of Source as you open to receive it.

You are the place of Presence there, of that Presence which has as its purpose, bringing to the world the light of living love, there. Now as you open to receive, this light will heal all that is sick, and put into order all that is in chaos. This light of living love is truly a boon to the Earth as its radiance is so needed there. We can tell you that as you have allowed for the alignment with spirit, with your guidance, you have increased the harmony and the peace on your plane of existence. You have increased the love and the beauty there. Now I can tell you that your listening and following is important beyond words there, and it is important not only for you, but for the many who are in need there. You can count on this, dear one, truly you can count on this as you live.

Let us turn to inner guidance daily, even when we think that all is fine and that no guidance is needed, for it is the practice of this that will be necessary so that when the need is great there, you will have the necessary way to align there and will be familiar with the process. This is all important, and so it is as you allow now, that the true benefit can be felt. We who love you want so for you to know of the truth of you, and to come into this truth so that you may benefit most bountifully, dear one.

Truly, it is as you open to receive that the gifts can be given. We can tell you this time and time again, but it is truly as you allow for the mindset of connection to occur that you will bring to bear on the situation much needed help. There is truly gifting there, and there is truly healing in all its ways, to be felt. The light of living love makes plain the way and brings order into view in all situations, relationships, financial, housing, health, happiness—all these are addressed, plus everything else you may need help with. All is brought into this order there, dear one.

Now we can tell you that this book is given to you to encourage you to join in the heavenly place, the transcendent place of your Source. Quiet your thinking mindset. Here I await you and here I will show you the way. You are never alone there ever. Let in and allow for, indeed, we are One.

Chapter 69

Joy in the journey to completion and bask in the glow of living love. What beautiful words these are and they hold a meaning there that is truly of importance. You see, joy is an outcome of listening, and basking—radiating—is the outcome of living love. These outcomes are certain and these outcomes can be counted on as you embark on the journey to your Infinitude. To feel radiant and to feel joy is your natural state there, dear one. We can tell you that as you open to receive the Wholeness of you, you will feel into the safety, the security and the surety of knowing that you are joined with the full Presence of whom you are. What a bulwark to be joined, and what a Fullness to have as that which embodies you, your Completeness.

Now you move forward with ease, knowing that the nature of the Fullness is that which has your best interest at heart—your greatest fulfillment as that which is its motive. You go forward with ease and step lightly through life. Joying in the movement and radiant in the moment, there. So wonderful to hold as dear, the Allness, those who are your brothers and sisters there, all that you see and are involved with. For everything has this substance of living love. All is this substance and all is a part of you. Now the great nurturing will occur as millions let go of the separated mindset, the ego mindset, there. All will begin to see clearly and begin to envelope everything with the love that is felt. Cherishingly, all will be embraced and the wonder of this will be beautiful to behold.

Now the discontent will fade and the peace that is your birthright will be felt. The beauty, the peace and the joy of living and walking hand in hand with the Allness will be felt. How wonderful, dear one. How truly wonderful this is!

You are never alone, dear one, truly you are never alone there. Now the power of the living Source will transform all there and the illusion of separation will fade. The power of Oneness with everything will increase and the darkness, doubt and despair will dissipate as if never there, for indeed, they were a creation of the separated mindset.

Now the power of the living Source felt in and through all will bring movement into newness forever. This is a principle of living love, dear one, this is a principle of living love, that all are this newness. All are this Oneness, felt always. Joy in the journey and bask in the glow of living love. You are never alone.

Chapter 70

There is for you as you come into guidance, something that we have not discussed before. As you come into guidance you will learn of much that you have not known and much that will amplify and simplify your understanding. For your guidance brings to you, intelligence—intelligence personified as you. This intelligence will shed light on your situation, and will bring solutions that seem to come from out of nowhere, and seem to penetrate through you as ideas of significance that alter the complex problem you think you have, to something that is simple and easily understood.

Now as you access this wealth of intelligence, know that it is you, as you come into alignment there. Intelligence is your birthright also and is yours to find there as you do so live. You are not without the intelligence of the Source which is the Creator of All.

As you learn of this place of radical shifting, of true intelligence, you will access it more, for who wouldn't want to have at hand, wisdom and intelligence to bring into play much needed help, there. The nature of this intelligence will be that which has the big picture as its backdrop, for it will take into consideration all those who are involved and who would be impacted by the answer.

All will benefit there and not only a few. Harm will not be caused and harm will not be a part of the solution, for the Wholeness, the Source, sees all as that which is a part of itself and therefore would not cause harm to anything that is in and of itself. Ignorance is paramount in the separated mindset there and ignorance is deeply ingrained in your culture.

But ignorance is what is the result of limitation and blindness to the truth of whom and what you are. For as you shut off the pipeline of intelligence, the transmission line of your Wholeness, you shut off the very root, the Source of intelligence there. How marvelous that now with the radical shifting that is occurring, brilliance is entering the Earth again. How marvelous to know that the unfolding of a people into divine intelligence will lead the way to radical and remarkable solutions to every problem that is felt there.

Now in all fields of endeavor will this newness, this shifting away from ignorance occur. It will be a great renaissance, like has never been seen before. The releasing of the mindset of limitation is occurring there and the people of planet Earth will marvel in what is to occur. Now is the time to let in and allow, dear one. Now is the time for your intelligence to come forth. Truly this is your birthright there. Never alone there ever. Let in and allow for your inheritance to be felt.

Chapter 71

It is time to look at some of the themes that have been repeated in this book, and time to focus on how what you have read should be viewed and adopted into your life. It is time to refocus our attention on the meaning that this book has for you as you have chosen to read this far and have found your interest aroused there.

Let us look first at the idea of guidance. This idea is central to the book and it is central to your life. Briefly, the work tells you that guidance is available to everyone. That this guidance is given to you by One who is assigned to you particularly, and is focused on bringing you into alignment, into awareness, of whom and what you are. Guidance is not coming from an entity that has motivation to undermine you, nor pull the rug out from under you, nor harm you in any way.

Your guide has a mission to bring you into awareness of your inheritance, whom and what you are. Your guide is connected to the greater Wholeness and this Wholeness is also interested in you awakening to your truth. Their reason being that they cannot experience all of the Source without everyone partaking in the truth there. It is the nature of Source to know itself fully, not partially and not without full agreement from its Allness. The reason you have not known of this is that you forgot along the way.

Originally, you were connected, and you did live from your connection to your Source, but over eons of time you decided to do it yourself. You then created defenses that held you apart from your Source as you decided to do it yourself. You decided that you could make the decisions there and live as a separate one. This you do to maintain your power as you thought you had it without the Source.

Defenses were put in place and a wall of separation was created in mind that was made up of ego distractions, guilt, fear, and all the things that you thought would shield you from the world as you now saw it as a place of suffering, death, decay, and that which was worthy of great fear. You saw your world as a place of challenges to be overcome. You created a mindset bent on doing it alone, and this has been the cause of all your problems on planet Earth.

The good news is that the times are changing, for people are awakening to the truth as never before. We are ready to experience a great releasing there. It is a releasing into the mindset of Wholeness, the truth of whom and what you are. How wonderful to live as you were created to live, in connection to Wholeness and to your Creator, to family, to the Allness there. You are to discover that your nature is living love, and this nature has joy, peace and healing as its true identity. You are never alone there ever, dear one, truly you are never alone. Let in and allow for the very truth of you is coming forth. We are One there always, truly we are One.

Chapter 72

Let your life be felt as a movement of joy. As you have lived there and as you have felt the reality of our togetherness, you have welcomed into your life, joy, which is felt as that which is your natural state there. Now as you have found joy in your life, you have felt as blessed there, for this joy is truly that which enlivens you and moves you forward there. Joy is a feeling of ebullient and energetic energy which not only blesses you, but blesses others there as you so radiate this. Joy is an underlying feeling which will not depart, and it is a feeling that allows for getting through, what may be viewed as tough times there. For though times may be tough, the underlying feeling of joy can be felt.

Your planet is undergoing difficult times as many are caught up in the mindset of limitation and disparity. Many are caught in the mindset of lack and longing there. Now this is not the truth of each one, but is what is promulgated by your media and your culture there.

You are caught in a horrendous deluge of bad news, and in the uncertainty that would cause many to be led down a path of disillusionment. Now this is truly a way that those in power would have it, as you now are easily manipulated there and brought into the flow of the needs of those who would dominate you.

These ones are truly only interested in the greed and the accumulation of a few. They see themselves as the elite there and those who 'call the shots,' who bend the way of people to the dictates that they would have. Now this is truly erroneous there, and is truly not the way of a free people, joined with their Source.

You see, you are truly endowed with all that you need to live and all that you need to move forward there. As you align yourself with the mindset of your Wholeness, of your inner guidance, of the Source, you will have the next steps to take in your life. Your guidance has your best interest at heart and can lead you specifically there.

Now this is truly the way for you to proceed and this is the way that will allow for true joy to come forth. You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there ever. This teaching on joy and on how to move with it and embody it is given to you so that you will know that you are not meant to be a 'follower,' nor a person of 'less than' there.

Truly, you are an equal and have that as your birthright. You are never alone there, ever. Let in and allow for, indeed, we are One.

Chapter 73

We are working with you on many levels there. Now the need for you is to trust that you are involved in a movement of significance. The movement of significance involves many, and you are a part of this great and meaningful movement there on planet Earth.

Each one has a part to play and each one has a gift to give. Now we are telling you this so that you will see that what you are involved in is something of worth and value and of dedicating your life to it. It is not a haphazard thing now, a thing that is on the fringes of the movement. No, your gift is truly important and significant. You are given your gift to give, and you are imbued with what is necessary to give the gift, but you must give it of your own free will. You cannot give it out of fear, nor out of desperation, nor out of boredom in anything else.

No, rather you must bring with your gift, your own will to do this thing and your own reasons for doing it. You must have the perseverance and the fortitude to withstand the ego dynamics which are there, subtly trying to persuade you to forgo this 'whimsical thing' as it would tell you, and get involved in the cultural call there. Here, it promises you, is where you will find your real meaning. Here is where the monetary gifts and the acclaim will be given you.

But, dear one, the incantations of the ego are false! They are a made up thing, a defensive thing, that was instilled in you over eons of time there, and became synonymous with life. But, I can tell you that your ego is a bastardly thing and an orphan mentality that has no roots, no heritage, and no grounding in reality. It is a made up thing, there. You are truly much more, dear one, and this 'much more' is where your true substance is. Would you not like to have as your lifeline, the direct connection to your Source, the One who created you, who is a part of you and has only your best interest at heart? Would you not want to be joined with whom and what you really are?

We here, are earnestly trying to awaken you to this truth. Many now are among the multitudes that are awakening and many are among the ones who have identified their mission and their gift to give. As you have picked up this book and as you have read to this point, we can tell you that you, too, have been given a gift. You, too, have come into alignment there and are showing the interest that is necessary to move forward.

We are with you now and forever. Stay with, dear one, and listen for inner guidance. We are here working mightily to bring you to your truth, your deepest meaning there. Never alone there ever. Let in and allow for, indeed, we are One.

Chapter 74

Now is the time to let go of the ego mindset and allow for true connection there. Now is the time to enter into a relationship of magnificence there. We can tell you that your relationship with guidance will bring to you much needed help, and will usher in radical shifting there—real change.

Now you are met with the infiltration of the media and the culture that will tell you that all of this is poppycock and without merit there. But I can tell you that true merit is found in these pages, and in the mighty friend that awaits you within. Now I can tell you that your friendship is real there, and your friendship will lead you into a place of joy there.

You will never feel alone as you live, as you open to receive this true friend. I am with you as you live and I am abiding there, ready to show you the way. We are not separate, you and I, but you have not known of me, nor allowed for our joining to be felt. You have not known and you have been led to believe what your churches and your religions would instill in you, and yet the truth is that I am here for you. I have your best interest at heart, and I have your direct movement into Wholeness as my goal.

Now this movement is truly based on what we know of you, and what you are involved in, and will take all of this into account there. You do not need to fill us in, nor do you need to alert us, for we are intimately aware of your needs and the place in conscious awareness that you are in. Now we will work with you to let go of the ego defenses that have been built into your life over eons of time, that have caused you to not listen to your true Source there. We will help you abandon these and let go of the orphan mindset there. Now we would tell you that you can count on true love there always, and you can count on our abiding relationship. This will be such joy for you, for you will have a true friend to turn to, always. Never alone as you live, dear one, truly never alone.

Now the call for you is to turn inward and ask, “Are you there? Are you there for me?” You will receive an answer—you will receive an answer there! I will give you a sign, a signal, a touch, a tone, something that is unique to you, that will let you know that we are connected and that you have spirit available to you. Now this will begin the true journey inward and the true awakening into my presence there for you. Let in, dear one, let in and allow, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 75

Move forward with love and do not allow for doubt to enter in. There is much that is unknown to you as you proceed there, and so trust is called for and intention to stay focused on inner guidance will point the way.

Now you are involved in a mission there as you read this. You are involved in a mission of great proportions which will be a benefit to your others there. We who are working with you, are working to release the miasma of the separated way and we are working to allow for continual releasing of the illusions of separation. As these are released, the light of living love, the awareness of the Wholeness, will become obvious to millions there.

Soon the time of separation will be gone and many will open to the truth of life, that you are not alone there ever. We would say to you to let in and allow, for indeed, you are One with the Wholeness, dear one. This book is given to you for the express purpose of informing you of what is going on with planet Earth and in your own life. It is given to you to clarify the importance of opening to the more of you there.

We can tell you that this book has as its origination the Voice for Truth and it is coming from One who loves you mightily there. I can tell you that I was involved with you from the beginning and we were called on together to give this gift. You agreed to come to planet Earth and to give your gift. You agreed and we counseled together and you were told that you would learn of what your gift, your mission is as you sojourned there. For as you did so come to Earth you were brought into the culture and you forgot that you had a mission. Now you are remembering and you are asking, ‘What is it there? What is it that I am meant to do while I am here?' We can tell you that your inner guidance will give you particulars in your life and will show you what steps to take there. You are not alone there ever and you are not meant to wander and wonder.

No, your steps should be from certainty and from intention and deep meaning there. Your life is meant to be a life of meaning and fulfillment. Now we will work with you to uncover your gift and we will show you the way to easily accomplish and give what you have to give.

You will feel 'on target' as you move in this direction and quiet your traditional thinking and move into alignment there. Here is the place of true worth for you and true guidance. We are with you, dear one, and will not let you down. Trust that what you hear is the truth, for you are never alone, dear one, truly never alone.

Chapter 76

Journey into the ‘joined perspective’ as this is the place where your movement will yield fulfillment. Here is the truth of you and here is the place of certitude. Now you are meant to live from this place, for truly here is where you can tune into your Source and live from the words given to you. You are not without a road map there, and you are not without a guide intent on pointing the way. Your journey to Wholeness is a journey of letting go and allowing for your Wholeness to be experienced.

For what you have placed as real is indeed a false and a made up thing based on indoctrination from the ego framework and the cultural miasma so persistently instilled into you from birth there. Now your life is meant to be much more than that, and your life is meant to be a real Presence based on the foundation of truth from your Source. You are as a wanderer in the dark, a blind one, as you so live from your separated sense of self.

You are brought into a maze of delusions and you work to operate in that maze, never knowing the place of meaning, but wandering around in circles, wondering what next. You see life as a series of opportunities to get ahead and advance yourself and live as your culture would validate to you. You are told to ‘come along’ and ‘get along’ and ‘do not make waves.’

Now you are being scrutinized more and more there and you are looked at as a potential disrupter. This is truly a place that your culture is moving in, and it is a place of tyranny there, dear one. We, who are working with you, want so for you to listen to your inner guidance so that we can lead you through the difficult times that are ahead for you. Now all of this is covered up with that which would lull you into sleep and into the mindset of apathy. For you see yourself as helpless and caught there. Even your railing at injustice is not heeded, nor looked at as to be taken seriously. And so, you 'come along' and 'go along' in hopes of getting through life with enough money and health and social support to get you through.

But life is meant to be more than that, dear one, life is meant to be much more! You are meant to live a life of deep meaning, and that is why you must align yourself with your Source who can show you the way. It is only for you that this is given. No one has anything to gain from this other than to bring another into the truth, there. Now is the time to allow, dear one, truly now is the time to allow. We are One, you and I, and I want you to open to receive. Let in, dear one, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 77

Listen to the words that you hear coming through to you. These words are coming from your guides who exist there on the spiritual plane. Yes, dear one, there are a multitude of others working to bring you into awareness of whom and what you are. We here, have as our duty, our mission, to awaken your plane to the truth of its involvement in the planetary hierarchy there. Now it is as citizens there, wake up to their greater Wholeness, that we can usher in the forward movement.

It is as you awaken to the truth of your connection to the spiritual plane of existence and begin to live from here that you will move forward as an individual and as a planet there. We have as our focus, bringing each one out of the slumber of separation into the full awareness of whom and what you are. We are working mightily with many to awaken you to this truth, for you have long been asleep and without knowledge of your multidimensional nature.

Now you have viewed the spiritual side as only that which is accessed after death, and you have been caught up in the physical world there. You have thought that this was the only place to focus on, for you have felt as the spiritual world was either nonexistent or inaccessible to you. You looked at those who claimed such communication as those who were off balance and of little import there. You have felt that the movement into your own connection to the spiritual reality of you was of little importance or meaning.

But times are changing, and many now know that they are directly connected and are truly spiritual in and through all. The call for you is to awaken to this dimension of you and to live your lives moving through the dimensions easily and meaningfully, incorporating what you learned into the three dimensional world there. For it is as you open to this dimension of you that you will move most lovingly forward and find your truth.

You are not alone there ever, dear one, truly you are not alone there ever. Let in and allow, for indeed, we are One. Now as you have felt that this is true we would say, quiet your conditioned thinking and let the spiritual reality usher in for you, much needed help. We are here to work with you and to show you the way. Never alone, there, ever, for indeed, we are One.

Chapter 78

As we come to the conclusion of this book we will take stock of what has been presented here. We have given you a story of the discovery of true guidance by those who live elsewhere in time and place.

This story brings a tale of citizens of a planet moving forward into the truth of whom and what they are. As the miasma of eons is lifted, a new found joy and peace is felt and an awareness of the deep interconnectedness of those on other planets and those who reside on other planes are woven in a tapestry of living love.

Now the movement into the truth of our characters was brought about by a willingness to listen and respond to curiosity and to experiment with what they found so intriguing. These characters can be held as models of what those on planet Earth should follow, for they are truly examples of beings intent on living from guidance.

We have also given you pages of teachings there that will reaffirm to you the lessons that have been shown in the story. We can tell you that this is given to you only for your true enlightenment, as it is not meant to misguide you in anyway.

As you wonder about this, and as you express some curiosity, allow for the penetration of your guidance to be felt and joy in this new found friend. I am there for you always and I will not depart from you ever. We are One, you and I, truly we are One.

From ONE Who Loves You

~ The End ~

Questions for group discussion:

Did the book open any doors in your understanding about Spiritual Guides? Do you know your Guide? Are you open to discovery of your Guide?

In the book, Mind Groups were formed as people became aware of spiritual guidance. Would you ever join a Mind Group if one became available? Discuss issues about bringing spiritual guidance into these groups through the “speaking through” process.

Discuss or reflect on the big picture of Oneness of our Creator as it includes All That Is. How would a full understanding of this heal the planet and its divisiveness?

Discuss or reflect on the “energy of the substance of living love” and its power to transform.

Who is your favorite character and why? What qualities did that character possess that allowed for his or her forward movement?

The Universal Hierarchy is calling for our planet to “grow up.” What responsibility do we have to further this growth?

The book explains that Mind is a vibrational field that interpenetrates everything. Everything is held in the Mind of our Creator. Your Mind is a trans-communication device from and to your Source. Are you willing to discover, like the characters in this book, that this is true?

