

Veteran's Day

Today's a day of honoring,
Those soldiers who have served,
Some gave their lives for others,
In quiet, we observe.

We recognize the sacrifice,
They died so we could live,
In freedom and in safety,
Respect to them we give.

Yet, deep down we question,
Why can't we live in peace?
Has not mankind the wisdom?
To let the killing cease?

Have we not come further,
Have not our hearts evolved?
Can't we find a better way,
To get our problems solved?

This planet belongs to all of us,
It's the only home we know,
Let's learn to share and compromise,
Let's help each other grow.

Grow in helping other's,
Care for All God's own,
Let the light of love lead onward,
To fulfillment, far beyond what's known.

Let's find what we share together,
As people, we're the same,
Why play up the differences?
Why feed on hate and blame?

Today, let's pray we awaken,
To how useless is war and strife,
Killing, maiming, harming,
It's a tragic waste of life.

I'm here within to help you,
Find peace, then turn to Me,
As love pours right on through you,
To heal humanity.

In closing let Me tell you,
The truth, known spiritually,
All peoples and All nations,
Are One, God's family.

Each one you meet is precious,
Valued beyond compare,
Is One with God's own meaning.
Worthy of love, right there!
