

Remember I'm Here

I want to reassure you,
That you are not alone,
I am with you always,
True love, from Me, you've known.

You need to hear this often,
To know I'm really there,
Your separated mindset,
Feeds, loneliness, despair.

It doesn't want our union,
For this is its demise,
It fights for your attention,
So cunningly, it lies.

It says, 'to join with spirit,'
Is a foolish use of mind,
You'll be out of the mainstream,
Alone, you're left behind.

Ego's ploys are many,
Yet I can tell you true,
There's no real presence there, dear,
It's all made up by you.

'Letting go' of ego,
This fear-based use of mind,
Means turning to Me right within,
Your truth, at last, to find.

The love we share together,
Means loneliness will cease,
You have a friend forever,
We live, as One, in peace.

The joy we share together,
Will heal your lonely heart,
You'll live each day with gladness,
You'll know we'll never part.

Let Me, again, remind you,
How far we've come as One,
Your life speaks to our joining,
Remember what we've done!

In closing of this little poem,
Remember, I'm right here,
We live as One together,
You are My Love, so dear.
