

A Call for Sharing

Intimacy is called for,
A willingness to share,
Letting in another,
Allows someone to care.

Sharing what your needs are,
Where hurt and pain reside,
Will take away the aching,
Aloneness will subside.

This means that you must trust, dear,
Fear not what one will do.
Rejection and dismissal?
Betrayal's in there, too.

Who you open up to,
It makes a difference there,
Perhaps you know of no one,
With willingness to care.

I offer up Myself, there,
As your listening Friend,
I judge not what you tell Me,
Your words do not offend.

I'll listen, be receptive,
For I know the real you,
God's connection's held there boundless,
Yet bound, we're One, it's true.

The needs, the wants, the pain, there,
God's love transforms the wrong,
His energy of meaning,
Sings out a brand new song.

I'm not off in the distance,
In peace, within your Mind,
Your very present Friend, there,
Seek, and you will find.

Open up to Me, dear,
I'll open up to you,
No longer will you be alone,
You've found a Friend, so true.

In closing I reiterate,
What I have said before,
I love you and will guide you.
Together, evermore.
