

Christmas 2018

Is This Your Final Christmas?

Is this your final Christmas?
We really do not know,
For life is never guaranteed,
Another year to grow.

Is this the final ending,
Or will many years ensue,
To joy in life's great blessings,
So we can then pursue,

What God has laid before us,
Our calling, deep and true,
To be the love within us,
In all we say and do.

A birth, a death, and what's between,
Our life is never done,
We were, we are, we'll ever be,
Joined with Him as One.

His birth, His death, His in between,
Were gifts He gave to share,
He promised His real Presence,
A gift beyond compare.

He's always there, right there within,
And waiting for your call,
To waken you to Oneness,
In this, you will enthrall.

A promise made, a promise kept,
An ever-present friend,
A teacher, and a Savior,
His love will never end.

His gift of Self He gave us,
An example He would be,
To share ourselves with others,
Letting love come forth so we,

Can share the gift of Oneness,
The truth of who we are,
And move as One together,
With love, our guiding star.

In closing, I would ask you,
If you willingly allow,
To ask Me in, I'm waiting,
The time that's right is now.
